SENATORS ACT TO EASE LOANS AND SCHOOLING

Seek More Liberal 'Bill of Rights'

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP)—Revision of the GI bill of rights to make it easier for veterans to go to school at government expense or get loans in buying homes, farms, or businesses was recommended today by a subcommittee of the senate finance committee.

It proposed:

1. Extension until 10 years after the war of the time in which veterans may apply for government guaranteed loans. Present law allows only five years after the war's official end.

Farms and Businesses

2. Authorization for loans on farms or businesses to include not only the value of real estate but also supplies, capital, and inventory.

3. A 35 year period, instead of 20, for repayment of loans on farms.

4. Authorization for loans based on the "reasonable value" of the property. The present law reads "reasonable normal value" and complaints have been made that the word "normal" is being interpreted by appraisers as barring many loans on present market values.

5. Opening of the educational program to veterans irrespective of age. The present law applies to those whose education was interrupted by reason of war service.

Increase in Allowances

6. An increase from $50 to $65 in the monthly living allowance for single veterans attending an educational institution and from $75 to $90 for those with dependents.

7. Authorization for the veterans' administration to enter into an agreement with state institutions on payments for tuition of veterans without regard for the usual tuition charges.

The latter recommendation grew out of this situation:

Some state colleges make no charge for tuition for residents of the state and in other cases tuition charges are considerably smaller than the actual costs to the state.

It was argued that the federal government should make some payment to state institutions more in line with payments to private institutions.

Present Authorized Maximum

The original GI bill provides costs of tuition up to $500 a year. The law as it stands also directs that any payments under the educational program shall be deducted in event a future "bonus" is paid to veterans. This provision would be stricken from the law under a recommendation by the senate group.

The recommendations came from the veterans subcommittee of the finance committee. They are subject to later review by the full finance committee as well as by the senate and house.

Chairman Johnson [D., Colo.] of the subcommittee said he hoped to get them before the full committee early next week.

No change was recommended in the maximum amount of the government guarantee of a loan. This is now up to 50 per cent or a maximum of $2,000.

Seize 600 in Raid on Frankfurt Black Market

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 31 (AP)—More than 600 persons were arrested today in the biggest raid ever carried out against black market operations in this section. Goods seized included American cigarets, lard, oil, and cheap jewelry.

GOOD MEDICINE: DOGS AND FROGS AND CHIPMUNKS!

BY NORMA LEE BROWNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Pawling, N. Y., Oct. 31—America's sick and wounded air heroes have been temporarily grounded at the army air forces convalescent hospital in Pawling, N. Y.

The hills that once felt the marching feet of men who fought for American freedom 170 years ago now echo with what is probably the nation's most revolutionary and streamlined experiment in rehabilitation of World War II. veterans.

Here a husky engineer gunner with 30 missions to his credit sat solemnly all one afternoon with his big hands clamped around a tin can. His body heat was tonic for a sick chipmunk inside.

Even a Frog Derby!

Here a staff sergeant named Bill Post won the Pawling Frog Derby with his 2 year old racing frog, Whirlaway; and a young B-17 pilot with operational fatigue found the road back to normalcy behind a team of horses.

Here Guernsey cows and broad breasted tom turkeys copped a slew of blue ribbons for air force convalescents at the Dutchess county fair; and every patient who wants one may have a dog of his own—free and for keeps!

Pawling was the first military hospital to recognize the therapeutic value of animals and to inaugurate a large scale animal program thru its 622 acre farm, its nature study courses, and the now famous "Dog for Every Patient" project.

Hospital's "Problem Child"

One morning more than a year ago a young boy who had been a gunner in a B-17 walked into the office of Lt. Don Tracy, head of the hospital's farm program, and asked for something to do.

He was the hospital's problem child. Nothing held his interest. Nothing could penetrate the dazed, detached stupor he lived in. His diagnosis—severe operational fatigue.

There were many things he might do on the farm. There were 45 acres of alfalfa hay, 40 acres of corn, apple and pear orchards, tractors, milking and pasteurizing machines, 22 head of Guernsey cows, 75 Hampshire hogs, 1,000 chickens, a flock of turkeys, quick-freeze equipment.

His Choice: Horses

Finally the lad blurted out:

"Isn't there just an old team of horses around here that I could drive for a while?"

There was. And every morning for six months, promptly at 8 o'clock, the former problem patient could be seen taking off across the fields behind a team of horses. At the end of the six months he was sent back to duty, cured.

Fantastic? Not at all when you consider that the happiest years of his boyhood were spent on a small farm in South Dakota driving an old team of horses for his dad.

Many city bred patients, like the sergeant who used to be a shoe salesman in Philadelphia, ask to milk cows. Others help vaccinate and butcher hogs, tend the chickens and turkeys. Many take pride in exhibiting farm animals at county fairs.

Most of the hospital's supply of

Taft Calls Scheme Inflationary

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—Labor leaders today generally approved President Truman's wage and price policy, while industrial leaders for the most part criticized it or declined to comment. In congress it was indorsed by administration Democrats, but viewed with apprehension by the Republicans and many conservative Democrats.

By many critics the Truman program to raise wages first and then raise prices when necessary to enable employers to make a fair profit was viewed as a device to put pressure on management to yield to labor's demands for a 30 per cent raise. It tends to remove in advance any contention that the raise would wipe out profits, because the government promises to raise prices sufficiently, if necessary, to yield a profit.

Typical of the critical comment was the opinion of Sen. Taft [R., O.] that Mr. Truman has embarked on a policy that can prove only injurious to the country.

Discourages Expansion

"The new so-called wage-price policy," said Taft, "can only discourage business expansion and kill increased employment. Ultimately it can only mean increased prices and inflation."

There was much speculation on the machinery necessary to administer the program. The general opinion on Capitol hill was that the President will create a new wage board which, together with the office of price administration, will be inundated with wage raise demands by labor organizations and price increase applications by employers.

One expected result of the program is the stimulation of wage disputes to test the operation of the plan. Until a dispute comes before the prospective new board and is decided, neither employers nor employes will know exactly what they may and may not do.

Questions and Answers

In response to questions at his press conference, the President said that the wage-price program does not contemplate pay boosts on an industry-wide basis.

Asked what maximum pay increase could be granted on an industry-wide basis under the new policy, he replied—none. Each case, the President said, is individual, and that is why we must have collective bargaining.

Mr. Truman told reporters that a radio survey indicated about 32,000,000 adults heard his address.

In connection with the provision of the Truman executive order that

10% Boost Sure; Board May Set 15%

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

Members of the Cook county board have decided to give the county's 3,000 white collar employes a general wage increase of at least 10 per cent Dec. 1, when the next fiscal year begins, Daniel Ryan, chairman of the board's finance committee, disclosed last night. The increase, he added, may be as much as 15 per cent.

Building trades union members who are county employes also are scheduled to receive wage increases Dec. 1 thru adjustments that have been made in their prevailing scale, Ryan said. The only county employes whose wages will be unchanged, he explained, are those whose salaries are fixed by statute or otherwise limited.

Final Decision Awaits Study

A decision on the exact percentage of increase awaits a report on a study of the county's expected revenues, which is being made by County Auditor Lee J. Howard, County Controler Michael J. Flynn, and Chief Deputy Controler Richard J. Daley.

A white collar employes' wage increase of 10 per cent, with increases to building trades union members, will add about $1,350,000 to the county pay roll. If the white collar employes get a raise of 15 per cent, the cost would be $2,025,000.

Million for Improvements

Ryan also said the county is planning to spend approximately one million dollars during the fiscal year on improvements to county institutions. The expenditures will be made for materials and labor to modernize County hospital, the Oak Forest infirmary, the psychopathic section of County hospital, and the Juvenile home.

Ryan and Daley informed the board at its meeting earlier in the day that budget figures would be ready for submission in a few days. It was indicated that 16 million dollars in taxes will be needed for the fiscal year of 1946, or nearly $1,300,000 more than for 1945.

Sixteen millions is the figure at which the county's levy is pegged by state law.

Boosts May Exceed Savings

For 1945 the budget included $3,800,000 to pay old bills. The county's credit is now good.

Wage lifting, repairs, and an extra 10 per cent on supply bills of some 3 millions may overbalance the saving thru lack of old bills.

It is estimated that the county will have smaller collections of delinquent taxes than in 1945; possibly a drop of 2 millions from the 4 millions estimated last year.

The 1945 budget was about 25 millions, with more than 10 millions of revenue coming from fees and sources other than taxation. Should this revenue drop to 8 millions and the current spending be increased by 4 millions, then the limit of the tax peg will be reached.

ATROCITY TRIAL REVEALS MASS RAPE IN MANILA

400 Most Beautiful Women Victims

BY ROBERT CROMIE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 1 [Thursday]—The trial of Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, former Jap commander in the Philippines, was closed to the press and public this morning as evidence was heard in the mass rape of 400 women and young girls by Japanese troops last February.

Witnesses told how the Japanese rounded up all the women in the fashionable Ermita district of Manila and herded them into the Plaza Ferguson, where they picked out 400 of the prettiest. These then were taken to nearby Bayview hotel, where both soldiers and officers raped them.

The victims included girls as young as 12 and 14.

Released During Fire

The following day some women were taken to nearby apartment buildings, where they were repeatedly raped. As the Americans fought for the city, however, all three buildings in which they were confined caught fire and they were released Feb. 12 and 13—three or four days after their seizure.

About the same time the Japanese took 30 Spanish, Russian, Chinese, and Filipino women to the Manila hotel, where they also were violated.

During their imprisonment the women were given virtually no food, little water, and were in constant terror not only of their captors but also of American artillery shells falling in the area.

Lieutenant Saved Baby

The only indication of Japanese decency during the nightmare stay in the candlelit hotel was given by a married woman. She told how a marine who slapped her when she refused to give up her infant son was prevented from taking the baby by a Japanese lieutenant. He first took her, her mother, and the baby to his own room for refuge and then advised them to stay in the dining room as "the safest place."

Later, she said, she found a Japanese captain named Akashi, whom she knew, and informed him that some girls had been violated during the night. He told her, "The Japanese men have just returned from the front lines and when they are off duty they cannot be interfered with by the officers, but can do as they wish."

She said another officer whose name she does not know told her there was an order from "a higher command" to kill all civilians in Manila. The same officer, the witness said, added that they "hated white women" and planned to kill them, but were waiting to see whether it might not be advisable to use them as a means of slowing up the advancing American troops.

Courtroom Reopened

The statement about the "higher command" was the closest Yamashita has come to being noticed since the trial began.

After the eighth witness had testified in the trial the commission ordered this particular case brought to a close and the courtroom was once more opened to both the press and spectators. The hearing had been closed to prevent identification of witnesses and to cause them as little embarrassment as possible.

Witnesses yesterday afternoon told in gruesome detail how the Japanese sprung a murder trap baited with candy wiping out several hundred persons while the Americans were battering their way into the city.

The prosecution first called black robed, gentle faced Sister Anna de Jesus. She told of hearing a great explosion late in the afternoon of Feb. 9 and seeing St. Paul's college burst into flames. She was watching from Assumption college across the street, where she had been a teacher for 21 years.

A fortnight later, she said, she visited the ruins of St. Paul's and found 40 charred corpses in a single

4,000 Strike on Greyhound System Lines

Greyhound Line buses operating east and south out of Chicago were tied up early today by a strike of 300 union drivers and mechanics. The strike began at midnight, an hour after nearly 4,000 other Greyhound workers struck in eastern states.

The walkout came after a breakdown of last minute negotiations between union officials and federal conciliators in Washington, D. C. The dispute is over a demand for higher wages.

Many States Affected

The area affected includes most of Illinois and extends eastward to the Atlantic coast and north and south between the Canadian boundary and the Mason-Dixon line. Separate companies of the bus system involved are Illinois Greyhound, Central Greyhound, Pennsylvania Greyhound, and New England Greyhound. Central and Pennsylvania alone carry close to 90,000 passengers a day.

Jay L. Shepard, vice president of Central and New England Greyhound, said, "The company has no intention of trying to hire substitute drivers. The runs will be shut down."

The strike in Chicago stranded many travelers at the Union Bus terminal, Roosevelt rd. and Wabash av., which handles 300 Greyhound buses and 7,500 Greyhound passengers a day. Others were left at depots at 170 N. State st. and 63d st. and Stony Island av.

One of the most disgusted passengers was former Pvt. Francis Littlejohn, 25, still in uniform, and eager to get to his home in Lawrenceville, Ill., after 49 months of fighting in the Pacific. He was last home Sept. 23, 1941.

Ex-Soldier Put Out

"I don't like this a bit," he said. "They ought to put some of these drivers out on those islands. Maybe some of those atom bombs ought to be dropped right here at home."

Ticket agents, members of a non-striking union, tried to help stranded bus passengers get railroad reservations. The agents said they will continue selling tickets to nonstruck lines unless picket lines are established. Among nonstriking lines are the Overland and Northland Greyhounds, operating north and west out of Chicago.

Strikers are members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America [AFL]. They are seeking a general wage boost of three-quarters of a cent a mile for drivers and a raise of 30 per cent for mechanics and others to offset pay losses resulting from a cut from 48 to 40 hours a week. About 2,000 are drivers, who now get 4 to 5 cents a mile.

BUTTER PRICE RISE SLATED FOR TODAY INSTEAD OF NOV. 8

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP)—Retail prices of butter will go up 5 or 6 cents a pound tomorrow instead of Nov. 8 as planned originally, an OPA spokesman said today.

A 5 cents a pound increase in processors' and wholesalers' price ceilings will go into effect tomorrow, as previously scheduled. The OPA said the retail increase is being advanced a week at the request of dealers.

The agency explained that grocers complained that if there is a week's spread between the retail and wholesale increases, retailers would have to pay more for butter but could not sell it for more until several days later.

The price increases result from withdrawal of a 5 cents a pound subsidy paid to processors.

CALLS HIS WIFE CRUEL, BUT SHE HAS BLACK EYE

C. R. Nickel, 28, owner of a plastics company at 4306 Fullerton av., was testifying yesterday in his divorce action before Judge Edwin A. Robson in Superior court, where he had charged his wife Rose, 27, of 2941 N. Neva av., with cruelty, when she walked into the courtroom.

Mrs. Rose Nickel

"Who gave you that black eye?" Judge Robson asked her. Mrs. Nickel nodded in the general direction of her husband.

"And he is charging you with cruelty," the court observed. "I think the state's attorney's office had better look into this."

Nickel and his wife went to the state's attorney's office, where they were interviewed by John Fitzpatrick, an assistant. When they returned to Judge Robson's court, Fitzpatrick's recommendation had preceded them.

It urged that Nickel's bill be dismissed. Judge Robson did so.

Knife Duel Girl Returns, Tells Love for Killer

BY RITA FITZPATRICK

Minus bobby socks and wearing moccasins, Betty Albrecht, 16, returned last night from Warren, O., to admit to Assistant State's Atty. William Brumlik that she was in love with John [Jinks] Taubery, 17, slayer of Charles Dryden, 14. She denied, however, that it was the reason she fled town Sunday night, altho scheduled to appear as the principal witness in the murder trial the next day.

The pretty, high school sophomore descended from the train alone in the Dearborn station, bare headed and bare legged. She hurried thru the depot with her mother, Mrs. Sadie Albrecht, 58, and was driven in a police car to Brumlik's office.

Denies Threat or Money Offer

There, she told a confusing story, but denied she had been threatened or offered money to take the trip to Ohio. She said she had gone to Warren to take care of her older sister, Violet Barry, who was ill.

With reluctance, the unsmiling girl said the story she told of Taubery's attempt to rape her and of the subsequent knifing duel which ended in Dryden's death on June 30 was true. She repeated that Dryden had tried to protect her from Taubery's drunken advances.

Loved Dryden, Too

"Johnny followed me up to the bathroom in the Brudnicki home at 3150 S. Green st., where I was taking care of three children, and demanded that I take off my dress," she explained. "When I refused, he tore it from the neck to the hem. Charlie tried to help me. I loved Charlie."

"But you loved Johnny. He was your boy friend. Wasn't he?" Brumlik questioned.

"Yes, I loved Johnny."

Betty confessed she had visited Taubery in the county jail and talked with his lawyer, Thaddeus Toudor. She said the defendant, who is an ex-inmate of Illinois State Training School, near St. Charles, had written her notes from the jail.

Hasn't Written Since Fight

"I didn't write to him there," she insisted. "I may have written him a love letter before the fight, but I haven't since."

Betty earlier denied any knowledge that a subpena had been left at her home last Friday.

"I had waited so long for the subpena that I just thought I'd let you wait," she explained.

Betty was allowed to return to her home at 1837 Loomis st. on her promise that she would be on hand for the trial, which will be opened again Nov. 13.

BERLIN YANKS RUSH TO SEND HOME NEARLY $500,000 IN A DAY

BERLIN, Oct. 31 (AP)—The main United States army postoffice in Berlin claimed an all-time record for a single day's issue of money orders today as American soldiers from GIs to generals sent home nearly $500,000.

The rush is to beat new restrictions on the transfer of funds which become effective on Nov. 10. At the finance office of the group control headquarters 4,400 money orders were written today. Most of these were for the maximum single money order—$100.

This meant that the dollar volume was nearly $440,000 and that 4,400,000 occupation marks, worth 10 cents apiece, had been redeemed in dollars. Most of the occupation marks originate on a Russian printing press. All four allied powers print occupation marks but the last official report showed the Russians were printing more than the other three combined.

WOMAN KILLED IN MYSTERIOUS 31ST STORY FALL

Police strove last night to unravel the mystery surrounding the fatal plunge of a woman about 25 years old from a corridor window on the 31st floor of the Palmolive building to the roof of a setback at the building's 22d floor level. Her body, still warm, was found on the roof at 5:15 p. m. Police were unable to find any one who saw her emerge from the window or strike the roof.

Fifteen minutes earlier, a woman had called the county morgue and in agitated tones asked Charles Sullivan, morgue keeper, if he had received the body of a young woman. The caller hung up when Sullivan attempted to learn her identity.

The dead woman had brown hair, brown eyes, and weighed about 115 pounds. She wore a pink blouse, dark blue skirt, brown shoes, and a brown tweed coat. A purse beside the body contained a Holy Family church bulletin, a coin purse with two pennies, a rosary, the cap of a whisky bottle, and a penciled note on an envelope referring to a woman whom police were unable to locate.

The clothing bore no store labels, cleaning marks, or other means of identification.

corridor. As Sister Anna put on her glasses to identify photographs of the scene for the trial commission, Yamashita, seated across the room at the defense table, also donned his glasses and examined the same photos.

As Sister Anna left the stand, her winged white cap bobbing slightly as she walked, she brushed past the incoming witness—Luisa Barajona, a beautiful brunet who with her mother and sister escaped from St. Paul's just after the explosion.

Senorita Barajona told how she, her mother, and her sister were ordered by two Japanese to leave their home and go to St. Paul's. About 1,000 persons from the neighborhood were herded into a large dining room about 4 p. m.

"Well," Senorita Barajona said, "the Japanese closed all the doors. Then they brought in a big box of candy, something to drink, and threw it in the center of the room. We had had no lunch, all were hungry, and the people began picking up the candy. Then I noticed that the lights overhead were all covered with black cloth.

Girl of 16 Stabbed

"I saw strings moving and my maid cried out, 'The lights are moving.' People were eating the candy and just at that time I heard a blast from the lights. Every one started running and many were wounded. My mother fainted on my left side and my sister on my right. I saw every one jumping out of the windows and then the Japanese started chasing all who were still alive. I saw them stab one young girl about 16 in the back.

"Finally when I heard no more machine guns my mother and sister and I went out of a window and ran to a house near-by."

Asked by Capt. Jack Page of New York City, member of the prosecution staff, how many were dead, she said: "An exact estimate I cannot make, but around 800, maybe."

Boy Describes Scene

A Filipino doctor then told a roughly similar story, describing his escape thru a hole blown in a wall. The prosecution then called 13 year old Winfred Coloma, whose legs were not quite long enough to reach the floor as he sat in the witness chair. He spoke in a small, even voice that threw an absolute hush over the courtroom. Here is a portion of his story:

"The Japanese gave us candy and then closed the doors. Then they threw hand grenades. I go to the door with mother, they throw more hand grenades, then I saw my mother died and my two sisters died, then my one brother over by the dead man and I see my brother escape. Then me too jump out of window and I see Japanese machine-gun my brother and my brother was dead on the ground. Then I go to doctor's house with my other brother and I saw Japanese kill small children and ladies with babies.

"Then I was afraid and run out and my brother was sick already. Then I see the Japanese and he saw me, shooting me and I was hit in the back, but I run out."

His mother, two sisters, and one brother were killed by shelling later.

GEN. YAMASHITA TRIAL BASED ON UNWRITTEN LAW

Col. Lanza Traces Rise of Military Commission

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA

Gen. Yamashita of the Japanese army is being tried at Manila, P. I., by a military commission for war crimes. Why is he not tried by a court martial, and what is the difference between a court martial and a military commission, many ask?

Courts martial are ancient instrumentalities for military justice. In 1775 we adopted the prevailing British custom. These courts are older than our Constitution, and older than any United States court, for by act of congress on Sept. 29, 1789, the courts martial in existence were recognized and continued as they were.

Numerous laws relating to courts martial have since been enacted. These affect the composition of the courts, their jurisdiction, and their powers. The authority lies in article 1, section 8, of the Constitution, which grants power to congress to make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces.

Precedent Set in 1847

Courts martial have jurisdiction under the law only over members of the army, or navy for naval courts martial, and over what are called retainers to the camp and all persons accompanying or serving with the armies of the United States. In the latter class are war correspondents and civilian employes working with the army.

Now Gen. Yamashita has never been a member of the United States army or a retainer to the camp of our forces. Consequently, under the law, American courts martial have no jurisdiction over him or over any member of an enemy army, no matter what the crime alleged.

To meet the cases of war crimes committed by persons other than those connected with the army, the military commission as now known was first established in American law by Gen. Winfield Scott in 1847 in the war with Mexico. He named it "commission" and assigned it the task of trying persons charged with violent crimes, such as murder and robbery, whether civilians or others, over whom courts martial had no jurisdiction. He also created "councils of war" for punishment of war crimes, particularly atrocities committed by guerrillas.

Congress Recognizes Procedure

In our Civil war, without any law being passed, commissions and councils of war were replaced by "military commissions," which term has stuck to this day. There is no law providing specifically for this type of court. But congress has recognized the military commissions by passing laws providing that the President shall have the power to organize them, by providing for review of trials, and by appointments of recorders, interpreters, etc. The Supreme court has repeatedly recognized the jurisdiction of military commissions and the validity of their judgments.

There is no statute regarding the procedure of military commissions. In practice they are commonly conducted according to the customs of war. Proceedings of a military commission are not invalid by omission of details required for courts martial by statute, such as members being required to take a specific oath. Both courts martial and military commissions usually follow the rules of evidence for federal courts, but they are not required to do so.

There is no provision in law as to punishments to be imposed by military commissions, with the exception of spies, for whom the death penalty is prescribed. Gen. Yamashita is not accused of having been a spy, and, if he is found guilty, his punishment may be anything the military commission believes appropriate. The usual punishments are death, imprisonment, or fines.

Neither courts martial nor military commissions form part of the judicial system of the United States. The civil courts have no authority to review their proceedings. Sentences of courts martial and military commissions are beyond review by civil courts for alleged errors. The civil courts can inquire into the jurisdiction of military courts, and occasionally do so under habeas corpus proceedings.

The army, however, has by law its own system of review. Proceedings of military commissions, as well as of certain courts martial, are automatically reviewed by a board of review established in the judge advocate general's department. No appeal is necessary. Sentences are automatically suspended until the review is had.

SEIZE HARVEY GI IN TOKYO BLACK MARKET RAIDS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

TOKYO, Oct. 31—Four American soldiers seized yesterday in raids that smashed huge black market operations were identified today as Pvt. S. Bobst, Philadelphia; Pvt. E. Tucker, Louisville; 1st Sgt. Harry Babcock, Harvey, Ill., and S/Sgt. Alexander R. Mintz, whose home town was not available.

Authorities identified Bobst as the leader of the gang. They also said Bobst and Tucker admitted connections with the black market in Marseilles, France, where they were attached to the same quartermaster depot.

Officers who supervised the roundup, which also netted two Italian embassy workers, two Japanese, and about 40 other "small fry," disclosed that the four Yanks had between 70,000 and 80,000 yen [$4,500 to $5,500] when they were seized. One of the soldiers said this was "just pocket money."

U. S. Destroyer Captured by Japs Is Back on Duty

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 31 (AP)—The United States destroyer Stewart, captured by the Japanese in drydock at Soerabaja, Java, in March, 1942, and used in the Japanese fleet during the war, returned to duty with the Pacific fleet Oct. 29.

RED-NATIONAL WAR FLARES IN NORTHERN CHINA

BY JOSEPH HEARST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ADVANCE HDQ., CHINESE NATIONALIST ARMY, Near the Manchurian Border, Oct. 31—China's incipient civil war got off to a flying start here today when Chinese Communists engaged an advance element of the Kuomintang [Nationalist] army and wounded four men.

Earlier reports that the Communists had fallen back without a show of resistance, allowing Nationalist troops to occupy the walled city of Shanhaikwan were found to be erroneous when American correspondents arrived here.

Instead of finding a well armed Chinese Nationalist army in control of the city, which was regarded as a communist stronghold, they found the Communists dug in on the north side of a shallow, rocky river two miles from the city. The Nationalists were not disposed to open an assault until their forces were fully marshalled and their general, Lt. Gen. Shih Chiao, was present to direct them.

1,000 Attack Nationalists

After the initial skirmish in which about a thousand Communists attacked the Nationalists, the Communists retired to positions on the north side of the river, where apparently they were well dug in. If they are driven out, they can fall back to the wall that surrounds Shanhaikwan and forms part of the Great Wall of China.

Col. Chen Ju-lon, commanding the advance regiment, estimated the Communists had about 3,000 men entrenched beyond the river with an additional 6,000 in the immediate vicinity. When the colonel encountered Communists in the darkness, he returned their fire and when the skirmish ended, disposed his men in villages along the road leading back to Chinwangtao. He also posted an advance unit of 500 to keep the Communists under observation.

More Troops Landed.

Another group of Chinese troops was being unloaded tonight from another squadron of American transports.

On the basis of their fire power it appears the Nationalists would be able to blast the Communists from their positions whenever Gen. Shih, who arrived from Chinwangtao tonight by ship with his personal bodyguard of 600 picked soldiers, decides to make the assault. Men along the road today carried American made bazookas, flame throwers, 81 mm. mortars, pack howitzers, and plenty of rifles and automatic weapons.

CHINA'S NO. 2 RED RIPS NATIONALIST TROOP TRANSPORT BY U. S.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 31 (AP)—Activities of American military forces in China were criticized today by the No. 2 leader of the Chinese Communists.

Gen. Chou En-lai, who was named by the Communists to negotiate with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek for peaceful settlement of China's internal problems, said in an interview:

"We consider there is no necessity at all for the United States transportation of Kuomintang [central government] troops to areas which the Communists have recovered from the Japanese."

Chou denied, however, a cabinet spokesman's assertion the Communists have informed Chungking their troops would fire on central government soldiers landing from American ships in communist "liberated areas."

SHIFT IN ALLIED PLAN ON PEACE TREATIES HINTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Oct. 31—The recall of James Dunn, assistant secretary of state, from London to Washington, D. C., was interpreted here tonight by diplomatic observers as indicating the failure of the Potsdam procedure and grouping of leading powers for a new approach to writing peace treaties.

Dunn, with the four other deputy foreign ministers from Britain, Russia, France, and China, represented the third team in international affairs as set up by the conference at Potsdam last summer. He is expected to sail for America Nov. 4.

Ronald Campbell, Britain's deputy, has gone off on a vacation and won't return until the day before Dunn is expected to sail. The other deputies, Fedor Gusev, soviet ambassador to London, Chinese Ambassador V. K. Wellington Koo, and M. Couve de Murville of France, are still waiting for word from their governments.

LIGHT BAIL GIVEN RAPE SUSPECT IRKS EVANSTON

Mothers Express Fears for Children

A storm of protest was loosed yesterday in northwest Evanston over the release in $1,000 bond of Howard G. Stiles Jr., 16, of 2326 Brown av., Evanston, charged with the rape of an 8 year old girl and the attempted rape of a 10 year old girl in the suburb on Sept. 16 and Aug. 24. He has a previous police record of sex irregularity.

Stiles was released by Juvenile Judge Frank H. Bicek, who declared that unless the state presents new evidence he will discharge Stiles next Tuesday.

"We of the Lincolnwood Parent-Teacher association are much discouraged," said Mrs. Ernest G. Brick, 2916 Grant st., Evanston. "We have been misinformed and kept in the dark on the handling of this case."

Mrs. Harris M. Sullivan, 2503 Noyes st., Evanston, mother of two children, said she did not feel free to allow her children "out of my sight," with Stiles at large.

"Just Little People"

Mrs. Arthur Cunningham, 2428 Grant st., Evanston, echoed these remarks. The mother of one of the victims said, "We are just little people and have no political pull."

"If they are not satisfied," said Judge Bicek, "let them go to the state's attorney and get an indictment. So far the state has proved nothing. Unless the state offers something Tuesday I shall dismiss the case.

"It is a judge's duty to protect society and we do that. At the same time we must protect those brought before us and give them a fair trial."

Atty. Richard G. Finn is counsel for Stiles. He is opposed by Assistant State's Atty. Patrick Egan, whose appearance for the state caused Evanston Police Lt. L. W. Calderwood to ask: "Why don't they get someone who knows something about child psychology and juvenile procedure?"

Irregularities Admitted

Calderwood first picked up Stiles in 1943 when, the police lieutenant said, the young man admitted, and was supported by associates involved, that he was guilty of sex irregularities. At that time, Calderwood said, Stiles was placed in the hands of a family welfare association and a psychiatrist. Judge Bicek pointed out that this matter never was brought before the court.

Factors in the Stiles case are his alleged confession, a lie detector test, the question whether police car sirens were sounded at one crime scene, and the identification of Stiles by the 10 year old girl.

Judge Bicek dismissed the confession as a "prepared statement to which police got his signature," and held that it was obtained after Stiles had been detained without food for six or seven hours and without being advised of his constitutional rights. Calderwood declared the accused, when advised he might as well tell the truth, admitted that this would be a good idea, confessed the attempted rape and later the rape.

Parts of Clothing Found

"He told me one thing that could have been known only to the guilty person," said Calderwood. "He said the attempted assault took place 5 feet from the intersection of two forest preserve paths. There we found parts of the girl's clothing and buttons."

The lie detector test, Judge Bicek said, was in favor of Stiles. Calderwood said that in the opinion of the operator of the machine "the boy gave responses [of guilt] in the attempted rape case," none in the rape. And at this time, Calderwood said, Stiles verbally admitted new sex irregularities.

"The 10 year old girl's identification was hazy," said Judge Bicek. "She saw him pass by her house for several days and then decided that he was the boy."

"There never was a better identification," said Calderwood. "Five boys were paraded before the two girls. The 10 year old pointed out Stiles and identified him as her assailant. The 8 year old was not able to make an identification."

Stiles, who later repudiated his confessions, said that he followed police sirens to the crime scene. Calderwood said none was sounded. Witnesses for Stiles said they were.

Stressing the fact that he knew little about this particular case, Virgil Peterson of the Chicago Crime commission said: "The bond is rather low for the seriousness of the offense. In cases of this kind the most important thing is the protection of society."

COURT DISORDER BRINGS POLICE; WOMAN SEIZED

State's attorney's police and deputy sheriffs rushed to Judge Leonard Reid's Criminal court yesterday after a dozen relatives and friends of Joseph Termini, 30, on trial on a charge of assault to rape, swarmed around his accuser, a Cicero woman.

Court had recessed for the day, and the jury was out when Termini's sister, Miss Anne Termini, 18, of 208 W. Grand av., stepped up to the accuser and allegedly threatened her. Assistant State's Attorneys William Brumlik and John Philip Reed ordered Miss Termini away, whereupon other relatives swarmed up, all crying out. Police were called. Miss Termini was taken into custody and will be arraigned today before Judge Reid. The other demonstrators were questioned and released.

Termini, a parolee from the Illinois penitentiary since 1943, when he was released after serving eight years for auto theft, is accused of attempting to attack the woman at Austin blvd. and 21st st. last Aug. 18. He denied her story before the jury. The case will go to the jury today.

FIND SERGEANT GUILTY IN RAPE CASE; 15 YEARS

Sgt. John L. Andretich, 24, of 9228 Baltimore av., has been convicted by a court martial on a charge of attempt to rape and sentenced to 15 years at hard labor, military authorities at Fort Sheridan disclosed yesterday.

Sgt. J. L. Andretich

He was arrested by police Sept. 7 at 94th st. and Phillips av., on complaint of a 25 year old deaf mute who told police Andretich had attacked her in an automobile which was parked near-by.

Andretich's court martial sentence, which carries with it dishonorable discharge from the army and forfeiture of pay, is subject to review by the commanding general of the 6th service command. Andretich played football at Mount Carmel High school and Purdue university.

BOND QUOTA SET FOR COUNTY AND CITY EMPLOYES

A quota of $3,462,330 was set for city and Cook county employes in the current Victory loan campaign yesterday at a meeting called by Mayor Kelly in the city council chambers. Attending were officials of the city, county, board of education, and park and sanitary districts.

Each department was given a quota. City employes are expected to purchase bonds totaling $1,463,332, board of education employes $1,356,666, county workers $372,666, park district employes $163,000, and sanitary district $106,666.

Twelve hundred and forty-seven major industrial plants in Cook county have pledged to sell $45,149,618 in bonds under the pay roll deduction plan, George Huth, chairman of the pay roll savings division of the Victory loan committee, announced yesterday.

State Seeks Indictment Charging Rape, Robbery

Assistant State's Atty. Samuel Papanek said yesterday that he would appear before the grand jury today to seek an indictment charging rape and robbery against George Bobrowsik, 19, of 2847 W. 25th pl. Papanek said that Bobrowsik has admitted that on Monday he beat Richard Stanley, 16, of 2358 S. St. Louis av., and robbed him and then raped Stanley's girl companion, 15. The attack occurred in Douglas park near 19th st. and California av. Bobrowsik is on probation on a charge of auto larceny.

15 WAR PRISONERS DIE WHEN TRAIN STRIKES TRUCK

Blissfield, Mich., Oct. 31 (AP)—Fifteen German prisoners of war were killed and 11 other persons were injured, several critically, when a truck in which they were riding was struck by a westbound New York Central passenger train near here this afternoon.

The injured included nine prisoners, all of whom were members of Rommel's Afrika Korps, an American soldier, and a civilian.

Eleven of the prisoners were killed instantly and the other four died a few hours later. Bodies of the victims were strewn over a 300 foot stretch along the railroad right of way.

'45 HALLOWEEN QUIET FOR COPS; ONLY 940 CALLS

Altho 940 calls poured into the complaint room at Central police station between 4 and 10 p. m. yesterday, Chicago passed a comparatively quiet Halloween, police conceded.

Many complaints involved the opening of fire hydrants, the greasing of street car tracks, fences torn down, bonfires burning, and the temporary seizure of a street car by a band of young hoodlums in the Englewood district.

The fire alarm office reported 156 alarms between 8 a. m. and 8 p. m., much less than the numbers on previous Halloweens.

100,000 in Park Centers

Approximately 100,000 adults and children capered in the city's 95 park district recreational centers, starting in the forenoon. The celebrations included parades, costume parties, variety shows, movies, and weiner roasts. One of the largest gatherings was in Garfield park, where 1,000 persons were in high spirits. More than 1,200 boys and girls, in costumes, wound up a south side parade in Tuley park, where a haunted house, complete with phosphorous skeletons, false snakes, and other mysterious paraphernalia, awaited them. At 8 p. m. they also had another treat—ice cream and candy.

Khaki and navy blue were the only costumes in the city's three service men's centers where 10,000 soldiers, sailors, and marines celebrated a rousing Halloween. At the Michigan av. center, a pumpkin carving contest was conducted with 10 long distance telephone calls for prizes.

Day Parade in Barrington

In Barrington, the children turned out for a day time costume parade, led by the school band. Parties were held for all ages, from kindergarten youngsters to adults, in East park and in the school gymnasium. A huge bonfire built by the junior high school pupils dispelled the spooks.

All in all, thruout Chicago and surrounding areas, gloom didn't have a ghost of a chance yesterday.

DOG KEEPS LOST CHILD ALIVE IN ARIZONA WILDS

Digs Him a Shelter, Routs Coyotes

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 31 [Special]—With his faithful dog standing guard beside him, little Michael McDonald, 2½ year old son of a cowboy, was found unharmed today by members of a posse of more than 200 persons rallied by radio to hunt him after he became lost yesterday in the wild countryside of Sulphur Springs valley.

The child lay asleep in a hole apparently dug by his dog Mack, which had accompanied him in wandering away from their ranch home yesterday morning. The dog was believed to have spent the night fighting off coyotes, whose tracks were found near the crude cave dug beside a mound.

Periled by Bears and Cold

Bobcats and bears roaming the rough terrain, which is overgrown with cactus and mesquite, and a teeth chattering cold that comes after darkness also had threatened the boy's welfare.

Trailwise cowboys who led the hunt thru the night expressed belief the dog had "bedded down" his young charge when nightfall overtook them, and had kept the boy from risking further danger by wandering about in the dark.

Altho Michael was barefoot, he was in good condition except for hunger and a cut on his toe. The only treatment he needed was a brisk rubbing of his cold limbs and some warm food.

Trailed for 15 Miles

Tho he was found only three miles from his home, cowboys who backtracked on his trail, said he and his canine companion had wandered 15 miles thru the desolate countryside.

The team of Mike and Mack had left the Cowan ranch, where the boy's father, Ed McDonald, is employed as a cowboy, about 9 a. m. yesterday. About 15 cowboys led by State Sen. Ralph Cowan, owner of the ranch, began an immediate search when the distraught mother reported the disappearance of one of her twin boys.

The cowboys picked up the trail of the wandering pair and had followed it five miles from home when they were balked by darkness. Cowan hurried to Bisbee, 20 miles from the scene, and solicited the aid of Sheriff I. V. Pruitt. Upon the sheriff's request, radio station KSNU broadcast an appeal for persons to join the search.

Within a short time automobiles loaded with searchers were streaming out of Bisbee, Tombstone, Douglas, and McNeal.

RUMORS LESSEN YANKS' BOREDOM IN PRISON CAMP

Tall Tales Told Solemnly and Believed Eagerly

The efforts of American prisoners of war to keep up morale in the Japanese prison camp at Cabanatuan are told in this instalment of "Men Who Wouldn't Die." The author, a former Chicago advertising man, served during the Bataan campaign as an aide to Gen. Edward P. King Jr. This story is based on his diary.

BY MAJ. A. C. TISDELLE
as told to Carl Wiegman
[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

One of the hardest things to bear in a prison camp is the monotony. The worst moments of suffering never seemed so bad because they came and went, but the monotony was unbroken. Many days I made no entries in my diary; the days were all the same.

Our minds fed on rumors. We heard we were going to be taken to Ecuador to be interned there. We heard we were to be exchanged for Japs captured by the American army. Men swore they had talked to a man who swore he saw in Manila harbor a white ship which had come to take us home. There was a fresh rumor every few days and we half believed all of them, no matter how ridiculous.

Death Score and Ball Score

All thru 1942, tragic and trivial events are recorded in my diary side by side, as the following entries indicate:

"Our camp softball team was taken over to Camp 3 to play its team. We won, 8 to 2. The Japs are very interested in baseball."

"Up to Oct. 20, there have been 1,997 deaths among the 7,000 prisoners brought to this camp."

"We put on a show called 'Poppzahellin', a take-off on 'Hellzapoppin', with members of the cast spotted in the audience to raise a commotion. The Nip guards seemed baffled by the humor of this show, but they enjoyed the music."

"The doctors have a new treatment for athlete's foot. We soak our feet in a brew made of cigaret butts steeped in water. It seems to work."

Two Shot for Trying to Flee

"Col. Mori [the Jap commanding officer] made a speech to the prisoners on the folly of attempting to escape. That same night [Sept. 26] two lieutenant colonels and a navy lieutenant were caught trying to escape. They were tied up and violently beaten for two days, then shot."

"The Japs have given us seven harmonicas, enough to form an orchestra."

"We are making yeast in our bakery, using sugar water with rice soaked in it and bacteria from the air. The fluid produced is supposed to contain vitamins. Our doctors have ordered a cup of it to be served daily to each man in camp. You can get a mild 'kick' out of this stuff if you drink enough of it."

Thus the days dragged on. Occasionally the Japs took a kind of academic interest in our physical condition. One day they selected 200 prisoners at random, weighed them, and questioned them on their normal weight. The men averaged 60 pounds under weight.

Food Sufficient for Work

Late in 1942 there was some improvement in our rations, not enough to make us gain weight, but enough to keep us able to work on the prison farms. A can of evaporated milk was issued daily to each hospital patient, and the death rate dropped from a high of 40 a day to two or three daily.

At the request of Col. Babcock, the morale officer, I gave another series of lectures. This time I discussed post-war job opportunities in the United States. The lectures were not intended to be comical, and my audiences, nearly 7,000 miles from home, listened to them solemnly. I told them there was always a boom after every war, and the land would be flowing with milk and honey, or words to that effect.

We developed a system of getting accurate news from home. A group of enlisted men worked in the Jap headquarters area, repairing electric motors, gasoline engines, and doing other work. Col. Mori, the Jap commander, had a radio which fortunately got out of repair frequently. Our mechanics fixed it so it would work a reasonable length of time, but while they were testing it, they listened with head phones to a San Francisco short wave station.

Large congregations of officers waited for the repair men to come back to camp to report. One evening a prisoner who worked as a truck driver reached camp before the repair men, and we asked him if he had heard what the radio said.

"American troops are 16 or 60 miles from Rome, Nome, or home," he said. "Dammit, that's all I heard."

On Oct. 1, all officers below the rank of major were put to work as farmer laborers. Previously, officers had been used only as foremen of labor details. I was then a captain, so joined the ranks of the laborers.

Try to Keep Friends Together

There was excitement in camp on Oct. 6, when a detail of 17 officers and 781 enlisted men was taken out of the camp and shipped away, destination unknown. During the next three weeks, four additional details totaling 2,029 men were shipped out.

Men were permitted to volunteer for these details, but if there were not enough volunteers, additional men were drafted to fill the quota demanded by the Japs. Our senior officers, who made up the details, did their best to keep friends together. In Jap prison camps it was often a matter of life or death to have a friend to help you when you were sick.

The prison grapevine reported that the shipments of prisoners were bound for Japan to work in factories, and of course this provided a topic for endless conversation. Some of us thought it might be wiser to go to Japan than to remain in the Philippines because we felt sure the Japs would massacre prisoners before they permitted them to be rescued by an invading American army.

Days Drag On

The days dragged on. Nov. 15 a dysentery patient was shot and killed by a Jap guard who asserted the prisoner was trying to escape. In fact, the man was not even near the fence.

The Japs made a gesture toward obeying international law on Dec. 12, when officers were paid for the first time and were excused from manual labor on the farm. Enlisted men, who did the work, received no pay. As a captain, I was "paid" 250 pesos a month, but was allowed to keep only 20 pesos [$10 at the pre-war rate]. The balance was credited to me in the Jap postal savings system, equivalent to our war bonds.

Our first pay day also was notable because we received our first mail from home. There were only 75 letters for the entire camp, but they cheered up everybody. The mail showed that home really existed. One medical officer got a letter from his draft board asking him why he didn't report.

Lectures on War Strategy

As Christmas approached — our first Christmas as prisoners — the camp's morale ebbed lower and lower. Col. Babcock suggested that I give a series of pep talks on the war situation and the general strategy of the Pacific campaign, about which I knew nothing.

Thus I became the biggest liar in camp. Pretending to have inside dope on Gen. MacArthur's plans, I delivered long speeches proving that American troops would be landing in Japan or Luzon within six months. I even read off mythical statistics on the production of aircraft, ships, and tanks. The men listened to the speeches avidly and asked questions afterward. They believed what I said because they wanted to believe it.

No Discrepancies Challenged

Several months later Col. Babcock called for a new round of talks and the same process of lying was repeated, with some changes in names and figures to make the talks sound different. Not once did any man ask questions about contradictions or discrepancies from previous spee[illegible]. I made such a talk it made [illegible]ow in spirit and I would loo[illegible] friend, Capt. Tom Hewlett, a [illegible] officer, and cry on his shoulde[illegible] would laugh and tell me lies about how the American troops certainly would be in Luzon or Japan in six months. It's a funny thing, but I believed him.

As far as I know, Tom didn't have anybody to tell lies to him.

Bossier City, La., Oct. 31 [Special] —The happiest woman in town today was Mrs. Herbert F. Leeman who welcomed back from the wars both her son and her husband. After more than three years' absence, Staff Sgt. James Harrison Markham, her son, and Tech. Sgt. Leeman, her husband, returned from Japanese prison camps they occupied after the fall of Bataan. Her husband's arm stripes show seven army enlistments for a total of 21 years, and overseas service since November, 1941.

JAPS TO TRACE BILLIONS SPENT IN 8 YRS. OF WAR

TOKYO, Nov. 1 [Thursday] (AP)—The war ministry today ordered an audit of the billions of dollars spent by the Japanese army and navy in the war years 1937 to 1945.

The ministry also announced it will investigate reported wholesale theft of money and material by officers and men between the surrender and American occupation.

The Japanese press quoted Col. Takekatsu Endo, director of the war ministry's accounts bureau, as saying extraordinary army expenditures totaled 222,000,000,000 yen [about $31,500,000,000.].

The government was not permitted to audit the accounts of either service thruout the war.

Applies Only to Arms

Endo's estimate was only indicative of the vast unchecked public sums which flowed into battle. The total includes navy expenditures and numerous other budgetary appropriations for both services.

[Endo's 222,000,000,000 yen estimate, translated into pre-Pearl Harbor rates, was approximately $100,000,000,000.]

Endo told a press conference that open rivalry between the army and navy and mutual disregard of government established ceiling prices for war manufactures boosted expenditures.

Newspapers said the finance ministry and an audit board would jointly investigate the expenditures as a result of increasing public clamor.

Endo said the army had appointed a committee to investigate the disappearance of military goods after the surrender. He termed the looting one of the nation's major scandals. Numerous top ranking officers were reported involved in the wholesale theft of food and clothing for their own use, or for disposal in the black market.

Move to Purge Schools

Allied headquarters yesterday moved to clear Japan's educational system of influences that brought war and suffering to the common people.

A directive ordered the dismissal of all known militarists and ultra-nationalists from the nation's school system and temporary denial of teaching positions to former members of the military element.

The order supplemented that of Oct. 22 which directed Japan to overhaul the school system so it would fit into the democratic picture of the future.

BRITAIN ACCEPTS U. S. PROGRAM TO PRESERVE PEACE

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Britain's Labor government indorsed President Truman's new 12 point foreign policy program for world peace today, and advocated international agreements instead of regional economic and commercial pacts.

Foreign Secretary Bevin told commons the American policy would prove a valuable contribution to world peace, "the more it becomes effective." During a foreign policy question period, however, he reflected grave concern over international problems.

Bevin disclosed Russia had informed Britain that the soviet government does "not consider that legitimate British interests" are affected by the recent soviet-Hungarian and soviet-Romanian trade pacts.

Bevin also reported that Foreign Commissar Molotov, at the recent council of foreign ministers, limited Russia's assurance of freedom from censorship in countries under soviet control to Romania. The British government is "pursuing negotiations" with France on the withdrawal of troops from the Levant.

China Denies Russia Asks Pay for Manchuria Army

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 31 (AP)—A cabinet spokesman, B. H. Chang, said today that discussions are being held between China and Russia on an exchange rate for soviet occupation notes in Manchuria. He denied, however, widespread reports that Russia has demanded that China pay the entire cost of the soviet invasion and occupation of Manchuria.

Gandhi Urges Clemency for Jap Sponsored Army

POONA, India, Oct. 31 [Reuters]—Mohandas K. Gandhi has addressed two letters to Viceroy Wavell urging clemency for the members of the "Indian national army" [the Japanese-sponsored force] now awaiting trial at New Delhi, it was learned here today.

Leather
Like pipe-smoke or the companionable fragrance of a cozy camp-fire, the smell of good leather is associated with strictly masculine activities.
No man wants to give out with a bouquet like a boudoir. But we don't believe he needs to smell like a hospital, either . . . to prove he's clean and a two-fisted, "regular" guy.
So, in developing our exclusive men's toiletries, we've managed a subtle fragrance that is redolent of fine leather . . . and all the vigorous, outdoor sports in which leather plays so prominent a part.

BRITISH RUSHING WARSHIPS AND PLANES TO JAVA

Warn Indonese Outbreaks Will Be Crushed

BATAVIA, Java, Oct. 31 (AP)—British reënforcements, including warships and fighter planes, were reported speeding to trouble spots in Java tonight after the allied commander warned Indonesians in an ultimatum that unprovoked attacks would be crushed.

The ultimatum, inspired by the killing of British Brig. A. W. F. Mallaby at Soerabaja, came as 700 Indian Gurkhas battled Indonesians at Magelang in central Java.

British sources described the fighting at Magelang as "an unfortunate repercussion" of the Soerabaja outbreak. The fighting was said to be restricted to "sniper fire," but the British said the "disturbing feature of the situation is that a great many people have been streaming toward Magelang from Jogjakarta," 25 miles to the south.

Center of Youth Movement

Jogjakarta is the center of the Indonesian youth movement and youths have been gathering there for days in preparation for a convention which President Soekarno of the "Sudonesian Republic" was scheduled to address Nov. 10.

Altho a British spokesman reported nationalist reëforcements were going into Magelang "in fairly large numbers," he gave no indication what military steps the British might take. The Dutch news agency, Aneta, said a bombing line had been established two miles south of Magelang and that pilots had been ordered to prevent any Indonesian forces from reaching the town.

Soekarno was scheduled to broadcast to his people tonight to remain orderly, and to fly tomorrow to Magelang to try to halt the fighting.

Meanwhile, Soekarno announced he would begin informal discussions with acting governor general Hubertus van Mook on Indonesian demands for independence. A British army spokesman said there would be extremely important developments in the Indonesian situation within the next 24 hours.

Ask Singapore for Help

Aneta said the British had sent an urgent request for reëforcements to the Southeast Asia command in Singapore. It said 16 Mosquito bombers were due to arrive today and a full squadron tomorrow.

The dispatch also said all available British warships were ordered to Soerabaja immediately and that other aircraft were being rushed there to evacuate European women and children interned in the vicinity.

British sources said there were 15,000 armed Indoniesians around Soerabaja. They were described as varying from raw youths to regular soldiers, well-trained under the Japanese.

GOES MONTEIRO AGAIN BRAZIL'S WAR MINISTER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 31 (AP)—Gen. Pedro Aurelio Goes Monteiro, one of the men behind the ouster of President Getulio Vargas, became war minister in the new government today as Vargas retired from the political scene without "hates or personal animosities."

Goes Monteiro, who was war minister under Vargas when the present crisis arose, was sworn in with six other members of President Jose Linhares' cabinet after reconsidering an earlier decision to retire from public life.

The new cabinet immediately met with Linhares to consider problems growing out of Vargas' decree advancing state elections from May, 1946, to next Dec. 2 to coincide with federal elections and directing that Vargas-appointed interventors [governors] in all the states write new constitutions within 30 days. It was this decree which resulted in the crisis leading to the bloodless coup.

LONDON, Oct. 31—A final decision on permanent headquarters for the new world organization will be reached at a meeting of the united nations general assembly in London in January but the United States seems almost certain to be the host country.

The executive committee from 14 nations which has been doing the spade work for the global set-up recently voted nine to three for a permanent seat in the United States with the United States and Canada abstaining from the ballot. Russia cast its vote with the majority.

The united nations preparatory commission will meet in London Nov. 22 to act upon the recommendation.

CANADA SENDS 15 SHIPLOADS OF MEAT TO BRITAIN

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 31 (AP)—The Canadian meat board discosed today that 15 steamships carrying 60,000,000 pounds of meat cleared Canadian ports this month for Britain.

The board said shipments were at an "all-time" high and that it had ample refrigerator ocean space booked to handle all meats now available for shipment.

Two additional steamships are loading at Montreal and five others are due to load meat in the next 10 days. The board said 110,000,000 pounds of meat has cleared or been booked for clearance overseas since Oct. 1.

WAR OF WORDS WAGED IN U. S. FOR INDONESIA

Backing Is Sought for Cause of Freedom

BY CHARLES GOTTHART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Oct. 31—The United States phase of the battle for Indonesian independence was explained today by John R. Andu, president of the Indonesian club of America.

The campaign against the Dutch is being conducted in print thru a monthly publication, Indonesian Review, circulated among the 1,000 Indonesians living in the United States and among Americans whose support is sought for the cause of freedom.

"The United States must exert its influence for freedom, and convince the imperialist nations that freedom for the Philippines can be duplicated for the other Asiatic peoples," Andu said.

"Using Fascist Forces"

"Gen. MacArthur, in closing the Japanese surrender proceedings, declared that peace and freedom were on the march in Asia. Yet a few weeks later colonial Asia is caught up in a bloody struggle for taking these words literally.

"The united nations are using fascist forces to put down demonstrations raising the slogans which joined them—independence, freedom from tyranny, and the right of self-government."

American support is sought because this country has the biggest stake in Indonesian commerce, taking the largest proportion of tin, rubber, oil and other products, Andu said.

"Soon the material wealth of Indonesia will again flow into the American market, but we will never return to pre-war conditions," he asserted. "Indonesia is capable of making greater contributions to the world's political, social and economic life than she was permitted to do before the Japanese invasion."

Many In U. S. Illegally

Indonesia and its 70 million people have been ruled by the Netherlands for 340 years, but the Dutch have failed to fulfill their promises of a greater voice in government, Andu said.

Most of the 1,000 Indonesians in the United States are here illegally and face deportation within three months, immigration authorities revealed.

BRITISH CHARGE INDONESE KILL DUTCH CHILDREN

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SOERABAJA, Java, Oct. 30 [Delayed]—Twenty British trucks carrying Dutch women and children were ambushed on Sunday and the occupants of 17 of the vehicles still are missing, British headquarters learned today. The British accused Indonesians of attacking the convoy.

Two of the trucks succeeded in escaping the ambush and reached British positions. In one truck a child was killed and two women injured, and in the other two women and two children were injured. Sunday night 12 women and children from a third truck walked into the hospital in suburban Darmo. They were led by an Indian officer who carried a woman with a broken leg. Two of the women carried another woman whose right eye had been shot out.

British Officer Killed

About 40 women and children were believed riding in the other 17 trucks. The British officer in charge of the convoy was killed. Some of the trucks were loaded with household goods and thus carried only a few persons.

The women and children were among internees evacuated a month ago from Jap camps in mid-Java to Goebeng, residential suburb of Soerabaja. On Sunday the British began moving 800 to Darmo, where 3,206 former internees are living.

The trucks had transferred approximately 500 during the day and as the final convoy left for Darmo the Indonesians began what turned out to be a concerted 24 hour attack on British positions thruout Soerabaja. When the convoy moved into the main street, it is claimed, the Indonesians opened fire. The drivers of the two trucks that escaped said they swerved into a side street.

See Bodies Amid Wreckage

After the Indonesians and British arranged a truce, a patrol from Darmo found three of the trucks burned and others overturned or smashed against buildings. Bodies of women and children, drivers and guards were reported scattered amid the wreckage.

Darmo guards reëstablished contact with headquarters today to report the ambush. British forces broke thru barricades and found the natives looting the trucks and attempting to repair the less damaged ones. The ground was blood stained but no bodies were found. Attemps to learn the whereabouts of the survivors so far have been futile.

PROTEST REDS' 'NEW POLAND OCCUPATION'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Oct. 31—A protest against the "new occupation of Poland" by the Russian army at the invitation of the soviet sponsored provisional regime was voiced last night as a massmeeting in Edinburgh, Scotland. The gathering, representing Polish professional and regional organizations, sent telegrams to President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee urging the allies to implement the Atlantic Charter by restoring Poland's freedom.

Return of Red troops to every Polish county capital, said a resolution adopted at the meeting, "means that no branch of Polish life will be left free and uncontroled by the Russians, and that the present government of Poland, is not a free agent."

The resolution asserted Poland has "no freedom from want and no freedom of expression," and asked for aid in removing foreign troops and establishing free elections.

SWISS TO VOTE ON MEMBERSHIP IN NEW LEAGUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 31—The question of Switzerland's joining the united nations will be submitted to a plebiscite of the people when the time comes for a final decision. A commission will meet Nov. 14 to advise on the final Swiss stand.

This was revealed today by Foreign Minister Max Petitpierre, who said that the nation is maintaining a careful, expectant attitude toward the San Francisco charter. No country, Petitpierre said, can be indifferent to an attempt to creat durable world peace thru the solidarity of peoples.

The Bern press says whether or not the new league will reside in Geneva plays no role in the Swiss attitude, as the country's security is the paramount issue. Switzerland is unwilling to abandon her traditional neutrality, still recognized by the league of nations, which has not been dissolved and therefore continues to be recognized by all its signatories, including Britain and France. As Russia was expelled from the league, Moscow no longer guarantees Swiss neutrality.

British Jet Plane Flies 609 Miles an Hour in Test

HERNE BAY, Kent, England, Oct. 31 [Reuters]—Speeds of 601 and 609 miles an hour, more than 100 miles an hour faster than the present record, were achieved by Group Capt. Wilson in his jet propelled Meteor fighter plane Tuesday, it was announced today after revision of calculations. A second plane averaged 525 MPH. The flights were made in preparation for an official attempt to set a new speed record.

TELL HOW NAZIS SENT 8,000 TO BE SUNK BY PLANES

Survivor of 'Slave' Ships Describes Voyage

NEUSTADT, Schleswig-Holstein, Germany, Oct. 31 (AP)—More than 8,000 Nazi concentration camp victims are believed to have been killed five days before V-E day when they were jammed into four ships and sent into the Baltic to be sunk by allied warplanes, survivors said today.

Bodies of some of the "slave" workers, burned to death in the ships or drowned, still are being washed ashore here. The German naval commander responsible for sending the victims, most of them from the Neue Gamme prison camp, to death on two pleasure liners and two small fraters, is being sought.

Survivor Tells of Escape

Pieszerock Nikodem, 23, a Pole now in a displaced persons camp, said he escaped by swimming to shore. He said he was jammed with Athene 2,000 others onto the frater Athene, and later transferred to the pleasure ship Cap Arcona.

"For four days we had no food at all," he said. "We had little water and nowhere to wash."

He said allied planes bombed the ship with rocket bombs.

"There was a young American boy with us," Nikodem continued. "He escaped, too, but his father, who had been working in the camp hospital, did not."

400 Victims Rescued

The American boy, named Jackson, had been imprisoned with his family for participating in the underground movement. His mother was French. He is expected to be a witness in the war crimes trials of Neue Gamme prison guards.

A naval lieutenant who witnessed the sinking from the coast said he helped rescue about 400 victims, many of whom were terribly burned.

REVEAL HITLER DODGED TAXES; TOO ANNOYING

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 31 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, altho one of the highest paid men in Nazi Germany, never paid an income tax because he argued that "the head of the nation should not be annoyed by such requirements," the American military government said today.

"Not only were large sums of money granted for Hitler's use, for which no accounting was required, but also no taxes were paid on extensive expenditures for erection of castles for his use," an official report said.

German field marshals, Nazi party officials, and some of Hitler's personal favorites also dodged the payment of income taxes, the report said.

NORWAY LABOR PARTY FORMS NEW CABINET

LONDON, Oct. 31 [Reuters]—Composition of the new Norwegian Labor party government that will succeed the coalition regime formed last June was announced tonight by the Norwegian government information office here.

Einar Gerhardsen will retain the premiership and Trygve Lie will remain as foreign minister. Oscar Torp, minister of defense, will be minister of supply and reconstruction, while the ministries of education, social welfare and trade will remain unchanged. New appointments are Erik Brofoss, finance; O. C. Gundersen, justice; Kristian Fjeld, agriculture; Nils Langhelle, labor, and Jens Hauge, defense. The old government will offer its resignation to King Haakon tomorrow, the information office said.

Recent general elections made the Labor party the largest in parliament. Parliament is expected to be summoned soon.

ASSERTS HITLER SOUGHT WAR ERE HE WAS TOO OLD

BY P. E. BRIQUET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 31—How Adolf Hitler in 1938 desired war "as soon as possible" so he could reconstruct Germany "after victory" was told today in the diary of the fuehrer's interpreter, Dr. Schmidt, published in the Geneva Journal.

"I am now 50," Hitler is quoted as telling a meeting of his generals in the autumn of 1938. "In case the war does not start soon I shall be too old to assume the supervision of German reconstruction after victory."

Schmidt's diary said that "during the first years of Hitler's regime all conferences with representatives of other countries, except Italy's, displayed a general desire to satisfy Hitler."

Expected War

The interpreter said he did not understand why the other powers, Britain especially, were so eager to please the fuehrer, who often said he expected the British to declare war during the Ethiopian affair. Schmidt asserted the British must have guessed that the fuehrer would follow Mussolini's example.

If as late as the occupation of the Rhineland the British had reacted decisively it is quite possible that Hitler would have changed his policy, the diary said. But Britain's conciliatory attitude finally convinced Hitler that he could allow himself anything. This was all the more surprising to Schmidt, he said, since the British must have known that Hitler was only bluffing at first. However, Schmidt asserted that he believed John Simon, British foreign secretary from 1931 to 1935, had discovered Hitler's game before the two met in Berlin in March, 1935, when Hitler tried in vain to impress his British interlocutor.

Mussolini Once the Master

Schmidt also revealed that at the beginning of the Hitler-Mussolini meetings the Italian dictator appeared to be the master, the fuehrer only the pupil.

Their first meeting on June 14, 1934, was a comical spectacle Schmidt disclosed. Hitler had been told by Konstantin von Neurath, then German foreign minister, that he had better wear civilian clothes. The fuehrer appeared in a blue striped serge suit, while Mussolini showed up dressed as tho for the opera. Hitler felt that he appeared at a disadvantage, was humiliated and never forgave Von Neurath, while Mussolini also was disappointed.

Interprets in French

Mussolini spoke and understood German. Therefore Schmidt did not act as interpreter at the first meeting between the duce and Hitler. But soon his presence was indispensable as the duce tired after a few minutes of Hitler's long speeches. But Schmidt did not know Italian, so he translated into French, that language being the only medium which both the German and Italian dictators could understand as they plotted together against France.

Mussolini longed for the opportunity to gain revenge for the long monologs of Hitler but was not able to satisfy his desire until the last years of the war. Then the duce flew to a meeting with Hitler and offered to take him for a short flight with Mussolini as pilot. Hitler did not like to fly but accepted in order not to lose prestige. During the whole trip he was frightened. Mussolini talked all the time and gesticulated abundantly.

CZECH CHUTISTS FROM BRITAIN SLEW 'HANGMAN'

WIESBADEN, Germany, Oct. 31 (AP)—An eyewitness to the assassination of Reinhard Heydrich, the Nazi "hangman" fatally wounded on the outskirts of Prague May 27, 1942, said today the assignment was carried out by Czech parachutists flown from Britain.

The leader was identified as Lt. Jan Opletal, 30. He and his two men, armed with British weapons, later committed suicide with four companions when the Gestapo surrounded them in the Prague church of Karel Boromejsky, said the witness. He is a young Czech liaison officer attached to the war crimes commission here. He was a policeman in Prague at the time.

Another Czech parachutist now is in custody in Prague, accused of tipping off the Germans to the men's hideout in the church.

GERMAN UNREST NEARING REVOLT, IKE WARNS U.S.

Only Few Problems Are Solved, He Reports

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 31 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower reported to Washington today that there was dangerous unrest in Germany, which was "just one step" from organized resistance.

Some United States troops already have been attacked by youths and returned German soldiers, he said.

President Truman announced in Washington that he had set June 1 as a goal for transferring the German government from military to civilian hands.

Few Problems Settled

Eisenhower's third monthly report also said "no real progress" has been made toward setting up central administrative machinery for Germany and that a "disappointingly" small number of problems had been settled by the allied control council because of failure to obtain unanimous agreement.

Other developments in the report:

The problem of handling thousands of displaced persons continues serious. "Cases of murder and organized looting occurred at an unpleasant rate," and the German populace has become increasingly bitter as a result of the increased lawlessness.

The food and fuel situation was growing worse as winter approached. "There will be practically no coal for German civilians," and extensive plans are now being made for mass feeding of Germans in the American zone.

Masses Won't Respond

The failure of the German masses to respond to free political movements was retarding any program to restore self-government.

Eisenhower said groups of idle German youths and returning German soldiers were becoming increasingly and dangerously restless.

He reported that while some attacks had been made on individual American soldiers, the activity of the youths consisted mainly of distributing handbills and posters warning "faithless" German girls who were fraternizing with Americans and displaced persons.

Potential Danger

"There is a potential danger that this jealous resentment against and hatred of displaced persons will serve as a popular rallying point for idle youth and young discharged German soldiers," the report said.

"From this type of resistance activity it is just one step to organized resistance directed against the occupation forces."

Referring to difficulties of the control council itself, Eisenhower expressed disappointment over delays in disposing of important matters and said he hoped Russia, Britain, and France would follow the American example of giving in when they held a minority view.

END OF BRITISH DOCKS STRIKE BELIEVED NEAR

LIVERPOOL, England, Oct. 31—(AP)—The dock workers' national strike committee met secretly tonight, apparently to vote on returning to work, and the British Press association said that all dockers in Britain's strike-bound ports might be back at work by Monday. The committee's decision is expected not to be announced before Friday, the Press association said.

The strikers have been demanding a 40 hour week and a minimum daily wage increase from $3.10 to $5. The government has refused to intervene on the grounds the strike of 40,000 men was not authorized by the Transport and General Workers' union.

Several thousand more soldiers were assigned today to the unloading of ships.

Northern Ireland Refuses to Free Political Captives

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Oct. 31—A Nationalist party motion demanding the release of political prisoners and internees was defeated in the Northern Ireland house of commons last night, 24 to 12. W. Lowry, attorney general, while admitting that from the start of the war to Oct. 9 this year 827 persons were interned, said only 36 still were held.

CIVILIAN RULE OF GERMANY SET TO BEGIN JUNE 1

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31—The goal for shifting the allied control of Germany from military to civilian hands is June 1, President Truman disclosed today.

The chief executive read at his news conference a letter from Gen. Eisenhower which outlined the plan for shifting the control "at the earliest possible moment."

At the same time Mr. Truman said he expects the same pattern will be followed in Japan. He also reported he expects Russia to join in sessions of the allied advisory commission on Japan here next week.

Troops to Stay On

Under the plan to shift control of Germany to allied civilian officials, the military occupation by Great Britain, France, Russia, and the United States will continue as long as is necessary. The troops will be on hand to back up the rule of the allied civilian officials.

The shift is to be worked out in collaboration with the other major powers concerned. These nave not yet been consulted and it is not known how they will react to the suggestion.

In his letter Gen. Eisenhower recalled that he and Mr. Truman discussed the shift when the chief executive was in Europe last summer for the Potsdam conference.

Plan Called Sound

"As you pointed out when here," Gen. Eisenhower wrote, "separation of occupational and government responsibility is sound just as soon as there is no longer any military or security reason for holding them together, if for no other reason than because of its conformity to the American principle of keeping the army as such out of the civil government field."

Eisenhower said the transfer should be effected at the "earliest possible moment," holding that he was not in a position to recommend an exact date, but finding that "from our local standpoint" next June 1 "should be the latest date for the shift."

4 TRAITORS SLAIN BY CRETAN MOB INSIDE A PRISON

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 31 [Reuters]—Three women and one youth, found guilty of betraying 37 Cretan patriots to the Germans during the occupation, today were stabbed to death and their bodies thrown into the street by a mob which broke into Heraklion prison, Crete.

The mob killed another youth who had been acquitted. All five were members of the one family.

One of the women was under sentence of death by the court and the others to varying terms of imprisonment. Gendarmes and troops who tried to rescue the prisoners were overpowered.

FRENCH RETURN SICK PRISONERS OF WAR TO U. S.

Shift Follows Charges of Ill Treatment

BY DAVID DARRAH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Oct. 31—German prisoners, too ill to perform the labor for which they were turned over to the French, were being taken back by American army authorities today.

They will be hospitalized and fed in an effort to restore them to health. First to be shifted were the prisoners at Bolbec, Compeigne, and Marseille. The transfers will go on thruout November.

After the German surrender last May the American high command agreed to turn over 1,300,000 German prisoners to the French to furnish a labor supply and help rehabilitate the damaged country.

700,000 Transferred

Some 700,000 Germans were transferred under this agreement.

Three weeks ago International Red Cross investigators reported that German prisoners were badly treated in French camps, that they were underfed and many of them too ill to work. It was charged that the French were violating the Geneva convention in their handling of the prisoners.

On the strength of this report the American high command at Frankfurt notified the French government that no more prisoners would be turned over. Several days of hectic denials and discussion followed. The French claimed that the Americans had turned over sick prisoners to them.

U. S. Army Bears Cost

The American army will bear the brunt of the costs of taking care of all German prisoners who are adjudged too ill to work in France.

French newspapers since early in September have been exposing conditions in German prisoner camps and demanding an investigation of their management.

Belgians Return Prisoners

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 31—(AP)—The United States army agreed today to take back some of the 30,000 German prisoners of war recently allotted to Belgium and replace them with 3,000 other captives capable of heavy mining work.

The army announcement said the Belgians reported 9,000 of the original allotment were found unfit for general labor.

MANY JAP SHIPS TO BE SCUTTLED, OTHERS DIVIDED

Four Powers Will Share 38 Destroyers

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31—The major vessels remaining in the Japanese fleet will be scuttled and some 38 destroyers will be divided by the United States, Great Britain, Russia, and China, State Secretary Byrnes announced today at a press conference.

One battleship, four cruisers, four aircraft carriers, and 51 submarines—a total of 60 ships—will be sent to Davey Jones' locker. It is expected that the battleship will be a target for an atome bomb to add another and possibly final chapter to the controversy of the airplane versus the battleship. The United States will direct the scuttling.

Problem of Stature

The major vessels will be sunk rather than divided, according to navy circles, because their specifications prevent useful employment by the four major powers. The space between the decks of Jap ships is some 6 inches less than that of other navies, because of the smaller stature of the Japanese, which makes effective use by taller peoples most difficult if not impossible.

The destroyers were built to specifications which permits employment by other powers, it was understood. In several instances the Japs obtained plans from ship builders for destroyers by copying plans sent for approval and returning them as unsatisfactory, so that they escaped payment for the plans.

Coast Defense Ships

A number of coast defense ships and various auxiliary craft also will be divided by the four powers. No agreement has yet been reached, Byrnes said, on the disposition of what Jap merchant ships remain.

The secretary reported that there is nothing new on the disposition of the German fleet, saying he could make no comment on the situation because certain expected developments have not taken place. It was agreed at Potsdam that allied experts would work out the disposition of the German navy and merchant fleet.

The Italian Fleet

The problem of the Italian fleet, he said, is involved in the peace treaty to be negotiated with Italy. In this connection Byrnes disclosed that the text of the long suppressed Italian armistice terms will be released before his next press conference next Wednesday.

There have been various reports that these terms were so harsh that the United States has insisted upon their suppression, not wishing to disclose this country's hand in the allied Italian policy.

Byrnes reported this country has sent to Turkey its suggestion for the future control of the strategic Dardanelles, which Russia has coveted for centuries. He added that he did not know and had not even inquired as to what proposals Britain or Russia will make.

Request of British

He said a number of questions—four or five—relating to the Anglo-American financial discussions on the British request for five billion dollars, remains undecided. He insisted it is an obligation of this country to see that all Japs in China surrender and demobilize.

Byrnes expressed the hope that the recently announced discovery of Jap documents relating to the attack on Pearl Harbor had forever disposed of the charge that former State Secretary Hull had "touched the button which started the war."

Ultimatum Is Recalled

The reference was to Hull's ultimatum to Japan during the Japanese-American negotiations here immediately preceding Pearl Harbor.

Navy Secretary Forrestal reported on Saturday in a navy address that documents had been found aboard a Jap man-o'-war which purportedly reveal Japan set the date for the attack on Pearl Harbor a month before the ultimatum was issued.

Lane Tech Honored

The two daughters of the late Albert G. Lane, former superintendent of Chicago public schools after whom Lane Technical High school was named, were special guests yesterday afternoon at the recording of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S youth radio show, "Citizens of Tomorrow." They are Mrs. Clara Lane Noble, 5052 Marine dr., and Mrs. Harriet Lane McPherrin, 5200 Sheridan rd. The transcription was made in the school auditorium before 2,200 young men, and it will be heard on W-G-N Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The daughters were welcomed by Principal James H. Smith. They congratulated John Frenster, 17, senior student, whose name was added to the program's honor roll. Lane is America's largest technical high school. Supt. Lane was accredited with introducing manual training in the Chicago public schools.

U. S. EXPERTS TO STUDY DR. LEY'S DAMAGED BRAIN

Nazi Chief's Organ on Way to Washington

NUERNBERG, Germany, Oct. 31 (AP)—The brain of Dr. Robert Ley, nazi labor leader who hanged himself rather than face trial as a war criminal, is en route today to the surgeon general in Washington, D. C., for study.

It was removed from the body a few hours after the suicide. Capt. Najeeb Klan, a pathologist of Cambridge, Mass., performed the operation at the 116th general hospital.

Psychiatric and neurological studies of Ley before his death indicated he had sustained damage to the frontal lobe, said Maj. Douglas M. Kelley of San Francisco.

"This was probably caused by an air crash in 1917 over the western front while Ley was an aerial observer," Kelley said, adding that Ley's skull was fractured in the crash and that he was unconscious several hours.

Asked for Father Coughlin

"Later he developed his stammer," Kelley said. "To overcome it, he turned to liquor. He found that if he drank a lot, the impediment became less noticeable."

Kelley said Ley had requested Father Coughlin, the American priest and radio speaker, as his defense counsel.

"He was filled with grandiose dreams and left a long treatise on labor among his writings. He suggested that he should be saved and taken to America to straighten out American labor difficulties," Kelley said.

Goering Selects Counsel

Dr. Otto St. Hamer of Kiel was announced as the defense attorney selected by Hermann Goering, former nazi reichsmarshal, for the war crimes trial opening here Nov. 20.

Other defense attorneys newly chosen are Dr. Robert Servatius of Cologne, for Fritz Sauckel, and Dr. Franz Exner of Munich for Col. Gen. Albert Jodl.

Julius Streicher, the anti-Semite propagandist, will plead in his own defense all points dealing with the Jewish problem, his attorney said today.

"It has been made clear to him that under no circumstances will I defend him against anti-Semitic charges," said Dr. Hans Marx, the lawyer. "I will argue only the good points."

The attorney asserted that Streicher's "good points" included the claim that he freed 30 Communists from jail every Christmas. Marx said Streicher apologized to him yesterday at their first conference for having him jailed in 1936 because of Free Masonry activities.

Release of GIs Cuts Air Transport Fleet in Pacific

HONOLULU, Oct. 31 (AP)—The army transport command has been forced to reduce its Pacific fleet of C-54 transport planes from 248 to 150 because of the release of high point men, it was revealed today, Maj. Gen. William Ord Ryan, commanding general of the ATC's Pacific division, told the Stars and Stripes that the loss of trained personnel was "greatly hampering" his efforts to bring service men home from the Pacific.

U. S. APPROVES RUSSIAN AIM IN EUROPE: BYRNES

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—State Secretary Byrnes declared tonight that the United States is "fully aware" of Russia's "special security interests" in the countries of eastern and central Europe and will never join in intrigues against them. He expressed confidence Russia would keep hands off the Americas.

Byrnes implied American favor for a kind of Monroe Doctrine arrangement under soviet leadership in eastern and central Europe, but spoke out strongly against forceful imposition of the soviet system upon any country.

"One World for All"

In a speech before the Herald Tribune forum he called for complete integration of regional systems into the world-wide system of allied nations and said that in this atomic age "there must be one world for all of us or there will be no world for any of us."

Much of his speech was a statement of American friendship for Russia. He said this country could not deny to other nations the right to develop a regional policy such as it has fostered on the basis of the Monroe Doctrine in the western hemisphere.

"Far from opposing, we have sympathized with, for example, the effort of the soviet union to draw into closer and more friendly association with her central and eastern European neighbors," he said.

"We're Fully Aware"

"We are fully aware of her special security interests in those countries and we have recognized those interests in the arrangements made for the occupation and control of the former enemy states.

"We can appreciate the determination of the people of the soviet union that never again will they tolerate the pursuit of policies in those countries deliberately directed against the soviet union's security and way of life.

"And America will never join any groups in those countries in hostile intrigue against the soviet union. We are also confident that the soviet union would not join in hostile intrigue against us in this hemisphere."

"Bonds of Friendship"

Calling for governments fashioned out of the choice of the people, Brynes said the United States had practiced that policy in the western hemisphere, and added:

"The soviet union has also declared that it does not wish to force the soviet system on its neighbors. The wholehearted acceptance of this principle by all the united nations will greatly strengthen the bonds of friendship among nations everywhere."

Byrnes said the United States cannot recognize "regional arrangements as a substitute for a world system" designed to preserve peace.

Message from Truman

President Truman, in a message to the forum, said "it is incumbent upon all of us as we move into the task of reconversion to bear constantly in mind the responsibility of victory." He urged that "counsel and guidance" be sought in discussion of current problems.

Gen. Eisenhower broadcast a talk to the forum by radio from Weisbaden, Germany. He said international coöperation must meet the challenge of "suspicion, hunger, privation, fear of disease, and fear of death" or face world chaos.

War Secretary Patterson, addressing the forum in person, urged unification of America's air, land, and sea arms, and adoption of a program of universal military training.

HITS BILL GIVING TRUMAN POWER TO USE TROOPS

Let Congress Decide, Wheeler Demands

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP)—Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] demanded today that congress keep the power to say when American troops assigned to the world security council may act against aggression.

He told a reporter he will fight an administration proposal that the President without consulting congress, may order use of the troops.

The state department has drafted a bill which also would empower the President alone to authorize casting the United States delegate's vote on the council for employing force to keep the peace.

"Congress Should Pass on It"

"I believe that before any American boys are sent to fight on foreign soil, congress should first pass on the question," Wheeler said.

"To give the President power to use forces for the purpose of putting down aggression in Europe or Asia, in combination with other countries, means war.

"I'm opposed to the congress, which has the sole power under the Constitution to declare war, giving that authority to any President."

Wheeler voted "yes" when the senate approved the allied nations charter 89 to 2 last July 28. But he promised then a "real fight" on the question of authority to be delegated to the American representative on the security council.

The administration's measure was called before the senate foreign relations committee today.

Seek Public Airing

Sen. La Follette [Prog., Wis.] made some objections when the bill was shown to a group of members Monday and Undersecretary of State Acheson agreed to rewrite some of the language.

La Follette said he is willing to let the President direct the use of the limited forces allocated to the council by this country. But he wants it made clear that the President cannot augment those forces without first getting congress' approval.

Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] said he thought the revised version might prove acceptable to all of the committee members. In that case, he said, he saw no reason to hold hearings.

But Chairman Taft [R., O.] of the minority steering committee said Republicans probably will want the subject aired publicly.

REPORT BRITISH SEEK LOAN FOR A-BOMB MAKING

They Know Secrets, Truman Says

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31—President Truman's confirmation of a report in the house of commons that Great Britain and Canada have all the secrets of the atomic bomb in theory and manufacture brought reports tonight in official circles that Britain's pending demand for financial aid is based in part on the expectation of making atomic bombs.

It was said that Britain at present is financially unable to make the bombs, as it would take 1 or 2 billion dollars to set up atomic bomb plants. Britain is seeking a grant of 5 billion dollars from the United States, while American representatives in the negotiations are suggesting a long term low interest loan.

At the same time it was said that a similar bomb making expectation is behind Russian overtures for a 6 billion dollar loan from this country. Russia would need a billion or two to prepare for war in the atomic age.

Denies Secret Pact

In acknowledging that Britain has the atomic bomb secrets, Mr. Truman, at his press conference today, branded as untrue as far as he knows a report that the late President Roosevelt and former Prime Minister Churchill reached a secret agreement on peace time control of the atomic bomb at the Quebec conference.

The whole subject of the atomic bomb will be canvassed next month during the visit of Prime Minister Attlee, he said. Attlee is coming to this country for the purpose of discussing the future use of atomic energy, he explained.

Mr. Truman acknowledged, however, that Attlee might take up other questions during the visit. He would not say whether the visit was the prelude to a meeting of the United States, Britain, and Russia, but explained the next step after agreement by the United States, Britain, and Canada on an atomic energy policy will be to discuss the policy with other governments.

Discusses Jewish Problem

It was announced yesterday that Attlee and Prime Minister Mackenzie-King of Canada will come to Washington for discussions to begin not later than Nov. 11.

Mr. Truman disclosed that he has exchanged two or three messages with Attlee on the Palestine situation, but added that he is not in a position to release this correspondence because the matter is still under discussion. The President has suggested that 100,000 Jews be permitted to enter Palestine annually.

The President also said he had received a satisfactory reply from Marshall Stalin to the letter that American Ambassador Harriman recently delivered to Stalin at his vacation retreat in the Crimea.

State Secretary Byrnes told his news conference later in the day that the United States had not received a letter direct from Stalin but rather a letter from Harriman concerning his talks with Stalin.

NAVY REPORTS 12 DIE AS BOAT CAPSIZES IN BAY

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 31 (AP)—The navy announced today that possibly 12 sailors drowned when a whaleboat capsized in the bay during the height of a storm yesterday. Sixteen were rescued.

The whaleboat had left Potrero Point to return the sailors to the U. S. S. Lyman. About a mile from the berth waves capsized the boat and hurled the men into the water.

The navy, without having their ratings, identified three of the missing men as Henry James McClatlin of Valley City, N. D.; William Avery Robinson of Atlanta, Ga., and Raymond Lee Carroll, Atlanta.

TRUMAN BLAST DIMS HOPE FOR HIS 2 PET BILLS

Legislators He Criticized Are Up in Arms

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—President Truman's accusation of "damaging delay" against two house committees considering job legislation created a storm of indignation in congress today which was widely interpreted as killing the last faint hopes of the administration for favorable action on the two pending measures.

Mr. Truman's radio address last night evoked as caustic criticism as the late President Roosevelt ever aroused by his frequent blasts at congress. "Unfair, unjust," and "political gymnastics" were some of the words and phrases used in describing the President's attack upon the two committees.

The Two Measures

The two bills upon which Mr. Truman sought to force action are the so-called "full employment" measure, which guarantees a job thru federally financed work projects, to every man or woman in the nation who wants one, and the unemployment compensation bill, which provides up to $25 a week for 26 weeks to the jobless.

Both passed the senate, with certain modifications, but have been held up in the house committee on executive expenditures and the house ways and means committee. A majority of members of both groups are hostile to the bills.

The first outburst against the President came as Treasury Secretary Vinson was before the executive expenditures committee in behalf of the "full employment" bill. Vinson eventually confessed there appeared to be "a chasm between congress and the President" on the measure.

Statement by Chairman

Chairman Manasco [D., Ala.] said the President's statement "hurt the chances of getting even a compromise bill out of the committee." Addressing Secretary Vinson, he said:

"The President can do anything he is asking for in this bill without additional legislation. He can send up a budget estimating future unemployment and propose a program of public works to cure it. He had no right to accuse the committee of delaying reconversion when the bill itself is obviously unnecessary and merely contains a declaration of policy strongly reminiscent of soviet Russia's policy."

"Unfair and Unjust"

Representatives Hoffman [R., Mich.] and Rich [R., Pa.] called the President's criticism "unfair and unjust."

Rich said Mr. Truman's speech was "as unjust as it could possibly be."

"This committee is giving as much consideration to this bill as is humanly possible," he said. "It is doing a fine job. It deserves praise—not blame—from congress and the American people."

PRESIDENT FAILS TO SHOW LABOR STAND: RICHBERG

President Truman's speech on a national wage-price policy left many difficulties up in the air and gave encouragement to labor organizations to continue their aggressive campaigns, Donald R. Richberg told the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday at a luncheon meeting in the Palmer House.

Richberg, who was chairman of the committee which drafted the Burton-Ball-Hatch bill for a "super railway labor act" covering all labor, discussed the President's speech in response to a question from the floor after he had read a prepared address on the subject of "How to Prevent Strikes."

"I had a feeling of disappointment in the President's speech," he said. "He presented no clear guide posts for government policy.

In his formal address, Richberg denounced "political" strikes such as the recent walkouts of telephone operators and miners, which were not directed against employers but against the government. He said such strikes have no legal or moral justification and should be quickly and completely forbidden by law.

Wage Hikes Top Living Cost Rise

LABOR APPLAUDS TRUMAN'S PLAN; OTHERS CRITICAL

It's Inflationary, Says Sen. Taft

wage advances will be approved in cases in which the increase in hourly rates does not equal the increase in cost of living between January, 1941 and September, 1945, the bureau of labor statistics in the department of labor stated that living costs went up 28.2 per cent between Jan. 1, 1941, and Aug. 15, 1945.

Not the least interesting disclosure of the day depicted the Truman program as a victory for the labor department. The six months test period to determine whether a wage raise would necessitate a price raise was thought up in the labor department and was ascribed to a Micawberish hope that something will turn up in the next six months to ease or remove price controls. Price Administrator Bowles opposed the price raising provision.

Domestic Problems Unsolved

Rep. Allen [R., Ill.] in a speech in the house pictured Mr. Truman as the real Micawber. The President's address, he said, "was not clear, concise, factual in plotting the course of national interest but filled with the hope that something, somehow, somewhere, eventually will happen.

"There isn't any intelligent American who will deny that this administration has attempted thru time and money to solve the problems of foreign nations," Allen said. "However, most agree very little has been done to solve the problems of our own people."

He said the country was "suffering the results of being maladministered and governed by a cracker barrel administration playing cracker barrel politics close to the executive department."

Rep. Knutson [Minn.], ranking Republican on the house ways and means committee, said that the administration "is definitely a labor government and there can no longer be any doubt that the President proposes to give labor all they ask for and perhaps more."

The remarks of Knutson and Allen brought forth shouts of "Politics!" and "Shame!" from Representatives Patrick [D., Ala.] and Rabaut [D., Mich.].

COOK COUNTY SCHOOL BOARDS VOTE SURVEY UNDER NEW STATUTE

Members of school boards in Cook county voted last night in the Morrison hotel to conduct a survey of school districts within the county looking to possible consolidations or other changes. The vote was 115 to 33. The survey was authorized, at the discretion of school boards within the various counties, by the last legislature.

In conformity with the legislation, a committee of nine was named to conduct the survey and to make a preliminary report by July 1, 1947, and a final report by Jan. 1, 1948, to the county superintendent of schools.

Members of the committee, which must meet and organize within 10 days, are John Babb, Barrington; Charles Erickson, Mokena; Walter Smith, Palos Park; Richard Harding, Tinley Park; Thomas Quin, Palos Park; Harvey Adair, Chicago Heights; Mrs. Dorothy B. Richmond, La Grange; Bert M. Kohler, Glencoe, and Mrs. H. M. Drucker, Wilmette.

UNEMPLOYMENT PAY UP DESPITE OFFERS OF JOBS

The paradox of Illinois' swollen unemployment compensation rolls existing in the face of a plea by many employers for more workers represents one phase of economic upheaval caused by the war, state officials said yesterday.

More than 108,000 idle workers are drawing weekly checks, ranging up to $20 from the state. The number is rising every day. There are approximately 75,000 new applications a week. Yet service industries are unable to get help.

"It is a paradoxical situation and it is our biggest headache," Jack Cohen, assistant commissioner of unemployment compensation, said. "We are administering the law and the policies set up by our advisory board and it is our belief that the situation will right itself when reconversion is completed and industry is going full blast."

Bulk in Two Classes

Cohen explained that most of the job openings fall into two categories: skilled and unskilled, while the vast majority of those on the compensation rolls are the semi-skilled.

He cited the case of a bellhop in a loop hotel who during the war took a job on the assembly line in a war plant and whose weekly checks, with overtime, averaged $70.

"There is a good chance that when reconversion is farther along, he'll be able to get a good job using some of the skill he acquired during the war," Cohen said. "Our policy is to give him every possible chance to maintain his new-found position in life, even tho it means he'll be drawing $20 a week from the state and turning down jobs as a bell hop."

Paid Six to 10 Weeks

A skilled worker is given 10 weeks to find a job equal to his last one, a semi-skilled worker gets eight weeks, and an unskilled, six weeks. However, that does not mean a worker always gets the full limit or that he is always cut off the rolls after the limit has passed, Cohen said.

"These are human beings and we treat them as such," Cohen said. "Each case has different angles and it's up to the deputies in the field to judge each one on its merits."

Thousands of service employes—belhops, waitresses, service station attendants, busboys, maids, handy men, etc.—have improved their lot during the war, Cohen said. "It is not reasonable to expect them to jump at the first such job offered them now, while there is still a chance they can hang on to the higher rung," he added.

60 Per Cent in Chicago

Most of these former service employes probably will wind up again supplying service to an eager public, Cohen said, but it will be only when no other jobs are available and when higher wages are offered.

Of the Illinois total receiving unemployment compensation, approximately 60 per cent are Chicagoans. Since the day of Japan's surrender, 52 per cent of all who applied for compensation have dropped off the rolls.

The maximum period for the payment of compensation to an individual is 26 weeks.

Urges Secret of A-Bomb Be Shared with Russians

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Beaverbrook's Conservative Daily Express today urged editorially that the secret of the atomic bomb be given to Russia. "It is absolutely wrong that one nation or two nations should control the weapon," the paper declared.

CARMELL RAPS ILLEGAL STRIKE PENALTY BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 31—Daniel D. Carmell of Chicago, Illinois State Federation of Labor attorney, today called the legislation to punish unions that violate no-strike contracts "an invitation to anarchy, if passed by congress." The legislation, sponsored by Rep. Arends [R., Ill.], was approved yesterday by the house military affairs committee.

Carmell made the charge in an address to the federation's convention. He said "Rep. Arends has done the whole nation a disservice by his recommendation."

He said "the action was taken in secret without giving any one an opportunity to be heard."

DANIELS URGES ONE COMMAND FOR ARMY, NAVY

Cites 1913 Incident When War Threatened

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31—Josephus Daniels, 83 year old former navy secretary, delved into the history of the Wilson administration and the Bible today to support the proposed unification of the army, navy, and air forces within a single department.

Josephus Daniels

Testifying before the senate military affairs committee, which is holding hearings on bills proposing army-navy unification, Daniels said placing the military and naval services under a single cabinet officer would eliminate waste and duplication and strengthen the nation's defenses.

Daniels recalled that in 1913, shortly after he was named navy secretary by President Wilson, a break between Japan and the United States was threatened because the Japanese took offense at the California land laws, which they said discriminated against Japanese.

Army Plan Vetoed

Altho the threatened break was averted by diplomatic action, Daniels said Gen. Leonard Wood evolved a plan to send army forces to the far east and obtained the coöperation of high navy officers. When the plan came to light, Daniels continued, President Wilson repudiated his military leaders and dissolved the joint army-navy board, which had supported the plan.

The incident proved, Daniels declared, the need for constant civilian control of the army and navy. Combining them in a single department, he said, would provide the control necessary to prevent improper use of military power.

Another incident of the Wilson administration recalled by Daniels was the insistence of the army that it should land an occupation army at Vera Cruz, Mexico, in 1915, after Mexican authorities had been restored to power by the navy. Combined operations would have prevented the occurrence, Daniels said.

Bible Is Quoted

Daniels turned to the Bible to support his argument for unification by quoting from I. Corinthians 12 the verses describing the parts of the body as "many members," and ending, "Now ye are one body."

"This scripture, liberally interpreted," Daniels told the committee, "calls upon the military forces to hasten the day when it shall be said, 'Now ye are one body.'"

Referring to the Pearl Harbor disaster, Daniels said: "My own judgment is that probably if one head had controled all branches of the military services in Hawaii, that most humiliating defeat of somnolent forces on that island would have been averted."

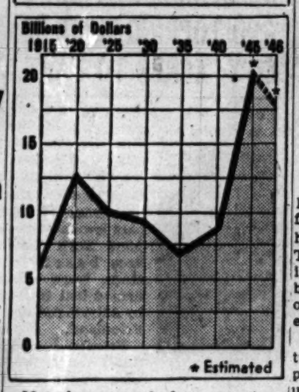
GLENVIEW NAVY AIR STATION TO BE U. S. CENTER

Operation of the Glenview naval air station will be continued, Capt. H. E. Sears, acting chief of naval air primary training, said yesterday.

Glenview has been headquarters of the naval air primary training command. Today, it becomes headquarters of the naval air reserves training command.

Rear Adm. Frank D. Wagner will report at the station in a few days from a tour of duty in the Pacific, to become chief of the new command, which will supervise all air stations conducting naval reserve training. Active air training also will continue at Glenview. Wagner has been aircraft commander of the 7th fleet.

See Farm Income Cut



Net income of farmers since 1915 and anticipated drop during 1946.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP)—A decline of as much as 15 per cent in the net income of farmers in 1946 was forecast today by the department of agriculture. It said cash receipts from marketing probably would not drop quite that much, but that some prices farmers pay for what they buy will increase. This would be the first decline since 1935, figures reveal.

A 15 per cent decline in real farm income, however, would leave it more than double the pre-war average, including peak years after the first World war, the department said.

Total demand for farm products will remain high thru 1946, the department predicted. Curtailment of military purchases would be offset largely, if not entirely, by expanding civilian relief and export requirements.

Evanston Police Veteran Retires After 20 Years

Patrolman Robert Borland, 51, voluntarily retired from the Evanston police force at midnight last night after 20 years of duty. He was one of the captors of David Shanks, Negro, slayer of Miss Jennie Constance, Northwestern university graduate student, in 1928. Borland and his wife, Edna, the parents of nine children, reside at 200 South blvd., Evanston.

STATE PROTESTS USE OF FUNDS ON PUBLIC HOUSING

BY GEORGE TAGGE

Controversy over Mayor Kelly's plan to use slum clearance funds for public ownership housing blazed hotter yesterday when Chairman Temple McFayden of the state housing board served notice that the board will not permit a state grant of $4,300,000 for Chicago to be thus employed.

McFayden said the 1945 legislature voted a 10 million dollar appropriation for slum clearance only upon the agreement that it would be used to help private enterprise do the job.

"We can't stop the Chicago housing authority from making application for state funds to spend on public housing, but we can refuse to approve the application," McFayden said. "Certainly the state housing board will carry out its promise to the legislature.

Aid for Private Projects

"Our plan is to employ the state fund to reduce the price of slum property to the point where it will be redeveloped by private enterprise, the keystone of our American system. If private enterprise for any reason cannot do the job, then it may be assumed that public housing could properly enter the picture."

Asked whether Mayor Kelly was aware of this attitude, McFayden replied, "Certainly, I told him myself."

McFayden added his opinion that the city administration is premature in planning to spend even its 5 million dollars from a bond issue on public housing construction. Indications are that congress will enact legislation under which the city would do better to save this money to buy land for which federal funds would provide the buildings, he said.

Intended as Revolving Fund.

Paul S. Millikan of Danville, member of the state board, agreed with Chairman McFayden.

"State grants to local government agencies are intended to be used as a revolving fund for the purchase of slum property," he said. "Private enterprise will put up new buildings and most of the state money will be recovered to continue to buy more slum land.

"We clearly understood from the legislature that private enterprise should be favored. The state fund is not for building construction. Of course when private enterprise does the job the property will pay taxes, unlike public housing."

Has Authority to Reject

Both private and public housing development are permitted under terms of the state appropriation bill. However, the state housing board has authority to accept or reject specific local projects.

A city council battle last week ended with advancement of Kelly's proposal to give the Chicago housing authority control of the 5 million dollar bond issue. It was presumed that the CHA also would be given use of the $4,300,000 state grant.

Devised by the New Deal to operate tax-exempt public housing projects, the CHA is accused of giving only lip service to private enterprise. It has plans for three public housing projects in Negro districts on the south and near west sides.

Favors Private Enterprise

Public housing in itself is not the answer to slum clearance, Ald. Wagner [14th] wrote yesterday in reply to a letter from Municipal Judge George L. Quilici, who expressed surprise at the alderman's opposition to the slum clearance program proposal submitted to the council.

Public housing and slum clearance, while closely related, draw wide distinctions, Wagner added. The job to be done, he stated, can be done better thru private enterprise.

The alderman said that his plan envisages slum clearance by degree —a block at a time, probably. In that way, he explained, no serious displacement of residents would result.

Fighters Return to Wed, License Increase Shows

Returning soldiers and sailors are keeping the marriage license bureau busy, County Clerk Flynn said yesterday in disclosing that 4,158 licenses were issued in October, compared with 3,699 in September and 3,179 in October of 1944. So far this year, he said, 35,000 marriage licenses have been issued, compared with 32,863 for the corresponding period last year.

GOOD MEDICINE: DOGS AND FROGS AND CHIPMUNKS!

Four Footed Friends Help Flyers Get Well

eggs and milk comes from the hospital farm. Milk is pasteurized and bottled by patients for patients.

With the exception of five paid civilians, the big hospital farm [leased from the Consolidated Edison company] is operated entirely by the voluntary help of patients.

On the theory that being out in the woods might help calm battle jarred nerves, the hospital also has instituted a group of informal nature study courses.

A small log cabin at the edge of a trout stream serves as a "natural history museum." Here are all kinds of wild life captured by convalescents — raccoons, snakes, opossums, salamanders, furtles, stuffed mourning doves, thrushes, grackles. [Patients don't believe in killing animals; mounted birds were found already dead.]

Afraid of Snakes

A gunner from New York City who downed four German planes determined to overcome his fear of snakes by catching one. He did.

The man we saw nursing the sick chipmunk had been a truck driver in Boston. He had never known about animals until he came to Pawling.

It was another "severe operational fatigue" case who became responsible for the hospital's most unique animal-therapy program by expressing a desire for a little German shepherd puppy.

Today almost half the patients here have dogs — dalmatians, airdales, beagles, scotties, great Danes, dachshunds, afghan hounds. In greatest demand are cocker spaniels, German shepherds, collies. Some are discharged K-9 veterans. All are purebred, with the exception of a few mongrels—by request.

$10,000 Dog House

Dogs are housed in $10,000 fireresistant kennels equipped with steam heat, hot and cold running water, 15-foot dog runs, folding sleeping boxes, dog bathtubs, refrigerator, stove, and cooking utensils for preparing dog food.

This dog heaven was financed by contributions from dog lovers all over the country, and not thru government funds.

In order to get a dog, all the patient has to do is put in his request [he has a first and second choice of breed, sex, age, color] thru Miss Marian Card, Red Cross worker, and sign a pledge that he will feed and care for the dog properly, and either take it home with him when he's discharged or return it to its owner or the Red Cross.

He cannot sell the dog. Most patients take their dogs home with them when they're discharged.

Source of the Dogs

Dogs are obtained by the Red Cross in coöperation with the Westchester County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

"Dogs can't actually cure a man," explained Capt. James E. Gladstone, chief of the convalescent services. "But often they can help straighten out emotional conflicts."

The patients in this hospital, which was once an exclusive boys' prep school, are about evenly divided between operational fatigue and orthopedic cases.

As in all air corps convalescent hospitals, Pawling welcomes wives and babies. Mess halls are provided with high chairs and the patient may take his whole family, including the dog, to chow with him. He may also include the family in any of the scores of educational, vocational, or recreational activities—ranging from trout fishing to Greek—offered by the hospital.

The Enemy: "Hospitalitis"

The purpose of the air forces convalescent program is to combat "hospitalitis." So successful has it been that the patients at Pawling have nicknamed it "Paradise," and one patient, discharged from the hospital, returned recently to spend part of his furlough here—just for fun!

ADMIRAL BACKS YANK GRIPES ON CHINA SERVICE

BY JOSEPH HEARST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHINWANGTAO, China, Oct. 31—Sailors and marines who are wondering why they must remain in Asia transporting Chinese soldiers, repatriating Japanese, and holding cities for the Kuomintang government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek today found an ally in Vice Adm. Daniel E. Barbey, commanding the 7th amphibious force.

Adm. Barbey estimated that the task might occupy United States transport for a full year unless a different system was adopted.

American transport crewmen who this week brought large forces of Chinese Nationalists here from a port south of Shanghai complained that while they had no particular objection to giving the Chinese a hand, they could not understand why they had to remain here. They asserted that 10,000 American sailors and officers were engaged in this particular troop movement and said that 50,000 of the 7th amphibious force are engaged in moving Chinese or Japanese.

When asked about the figures Adm. Barbey said that 50,000 is a fair estimate of the number of his command operating ships that are repatriating Japanese, bringing Chinese and Koreans home from Japan, and moving Chinese troops into north China areas which the marines first took over and which are difficult to reach other than by sea.

Puzzled by U. S. Role

The admiral said he knew the men are restless and understands that they are puzzled by United States activities in north China where our aid to the central government is causing resentment among the Communists.

Barbey said there are about 2,000,000 Jap soldiers and 2,000,000 civilians who are to be repatriated. He said it is important to get the Japs out of China as they are a potential source of trouble.

He suggested that a solution to this vexing task and the chore of moving Chiang's troops might be to assign a hundred LST's to the Japs and a number of Liberty ships to the Chinese.

He said that Japan must have many experienced seamen who could man the LSTs under American direction and who could release that many Americans for return to the United States.

Could Avoid Meddling

The Chinese, if they manned Liberty ships under the Chinese flag, would be able to move their own troops where they desire and at the same time the United States would be relieved to a great extent of the charge that it is meddling in China's internal affairs, the admiral said.

Barbey said that Liberty ships are more expensive to operate than LSTs but when not needed for troop movements they could be used to aid China's economy by their employment as cargo carriers.

ICE STAR SONJA HENIE AND TOPPING MEET IN CITY; AGREE TO PART

Sonja Henie

Reports of a marital rift between Sonja Henie, ice skating champion and movie actress, and Daniel Reed Topping, millionaire sportsman and part owner of the New York Yankees baseball team, were confirmed last night by Atty. J. Arthur Friedland.

Friedland said Sonja and Topping met yesterday in Chicago, talked things over, and decided to separate. They have, he said, no immediate plans regarding a divorce.

"They have great respect for each other and I know they will continue to be good friends," Friedland said. He added that he was personal counsel and friend to both Sonja and Topping.

The Toppings were married July 4, 1940, in Chicago. It was Sonja's first and Topping's third marriage. He was divorced in May, 1940, from Arline Judge, movie actress.

KLUPAR RESIGNS AS HEAD OF CITY WELFARE BOARD

George J. Klupar of 1646 Merrimac av., head of the Chicago welfare commission for the last four years and a member for 13 years, yesterday submitted his resignation to Mayor Kelly. Klupar, who has supervised relief expenditures exceeding 200 million dollars, will become executive secretary of the Catholic Cemeteries association of the Chicago diocese. Highest relief costs were in 1937 when 37 million dollars were spent. The lowest was last year's 8 million. In 1933 there were 571,000 persons on relief rolls. This year there are 28,000.

TRUMAN ASKED WHY HE REDUCED GAMBLER'S TERM

Clemency Becomes Issue in Louisville Election

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 31 [Special]—President Truman was asked today by a local Republican group for an explanation of the granting of executive clemency to James Gavin, Jeffersonville gambler, whose recent parole from an income tax evasion sentence assertedly was sponsored by Kentucky's Democratic congressmen.

The incident, which has puzzled many persons here, has been made an issue in the mayoralty election campaign now in its final stage. The vote is Tuesday.

The request for the explanation was telegraphed to Washington, D. C., by the Southern Republican club. Charles B. Ernst, vice president of the club, told Mr. Truman the club would hold a campaign rally tomorrow night at which "we shall be pleased to read your explanation over the air."

"Crime Wave Sweeps City"

Ernst said his followers especially are interested in the election "because of the crime wave that has been sweeping our city," and are particularly interested in the Gavin case because Kentucky's Senators Barkley and Chandler and Rep. O'Neal had been credited with sponsoring the gambler's parole. Chandler is leaving the senate to become baseball commissioner.

"We are all little taxpayers who pay our taxes regularly," Ernst telegraphed the President. "Therefore, we feel we are entitled to an explanation of your act in pardoning a man who evaded his income taxes.

"If you, or Sen. Chandler or Barkley, or Rep. O'Neal would prefer to fly here to explain in person, we shall be glad to grant you the courtesy of any time you need over the air."

In Washington the justice department disclosed the grounds on which Gavin was paroled after completing 16 months of a five year prison sentence for an alleged $53,000 income tax evasion.

Asks for Parole

Gavin was convicted May 24, 1944, and fined $5,000 in addition to his prison sentence. On Aug. 4, 1944, he filed a petition for commutation to the President, which was refused on Nov. 11. He later paid the fine and the $53,000 tax.

On Sept. 10 of this year Gavin asked for reconsideration of his appeal. Three days later the President commuted his sentence to two years. Gavin immediately asked for parole, which was granted on Sept. 21, effective immediately.

A justice department spokesman said the United States parole board granted the parole because Gavin was a first offender, had an excellent prison record, and because many prominent citizens of his community had attested that he was a good citizen.

Denies Asking Pardon

The spokesman said the sponsors who appealed to President Truman on Gavin's behalf included Barkley, Chandler, O'Neal, William B. O'Connell, Washington attorney, and James J. Doherty, Jeffersonville, Ind.

O'Neal told reporters his office files contained no letter written on Gavin's behalf and asserted he had "never requested that anybody be pardoned." But he added:

"I may have called up Daniel M. Lyons, the justice department's pardon attorney, and asked that the matter be given careful consideration."

Changes Suit

MRS. IRENE OMENS

Mrs. Irene Omens, 23, of 41 N. Central av., yesterday amended her petition for divorce against Dr. Harold D. Omens, 36, of 1211 Independence blvd., to separate maintenance, before Judge Peter Schwaba in Superior court. She charged desertion. Her attorney, Irving Eisenman, told the court that his client's reason for the change was that she did not want the "stigma of a divorce." Mrs. Omens had been awarded $17 a week temporary support by Judge Edwin A. Robson in a previous hearing. Eisenman introduced a medical report indicating that Mrs. Omens was unable to work.

CURRAN ASSAILS SLOW GI RETURN FROM OVERSEAS

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—Joseph Curran, president of the CIO National Maritime union, said today that unless the government speeds redeployment to get high point men on the way home from abroad by Christmas, he will recommend that the union refuse to provide crews for any ships except troopships.

Asserting in a press conference that the government was guilty of "ghastly manipulation of ships, and callous disregard of our troops," Curran said he had sent a telegram to President Truman urging immediate action to prevent "further misery and death among our troops abroad."

Curran, who recently returned from Europe, said service men told him that in one camp in France six soldiers committed suicide in one week and that in three camps a total of 12 veterans went insane.

"These boys had cracked under the strain of endless waiting, delays, and changed orders to ship them home," Curran asserted.

SINGAPORE DOCK STRIKE ENDS

STATE TRAINING SCHOOL'S CHIEF CURBS ESCAPES

Col. Hodgin Tells Plans for Drills and Sports

BY ORVILLE DWYER

After three weeks as superintendent of the Illinois State Training School for Boys, near St. Charles, Col. J. C. Hodgin of Ottawa said yesterday he believes a program of athletics and additional military and vocational training he is installing will go far toward solving the escape problem at the 1,200 acre institution.

Col. J. C. Hodgin

The army man said he also had taken some disciplinary measures that he thinks will help ease the collective mind of the Fox River valley, which long has suffered from depredations by young hoodlums and robbers who often have gone over the fence in groups.

Number of Escapes Reduced

"I have seen to it since I came here that the boys are now under much more careful surveillance than they suspect," Col. Hodgin said. "Only two have got away since I came here three weeks ago. I am confident we are going to be able to cut runaways to a minimum. There always will be some going over the fence in an institution such as this, but I have high hope that from now on there won't be many."

About 500 boys usually are held at the school. Col. Hodgin said these come from Juvenile and Circuit courts thruout the state. A bill enacted by the recent legislature limited the ages of those sent there at 12 to 17 years, inclusive.

Old Regimes Careless

"I found when I came that past regimes had neglected the use of athletics and that discipline was poor," Col. Hodgins continued.

"There was carelessness about how they were dressed in the past. We've changed that, too. They're all dressed alike now and we keep them neat."

He pointed to groups in black sweaters, small navy-like hats, denim trousers, and gray shirts. The colonel walked over and the half dozen boys smiled and saluted him.

Sports and Drills Provided

"As for athletics," the colonel said, "I found there were only baseball and football, the gym, and a swimming tank. Now we're building volley ball and tennis courts at the houses we call cottages, where 30 to 40 boys live under close supervision. You see, 500 boys can't play football at a time. So we're giving them a variety of sports and games.

"We've increased the military training, marching, and drills with wooden guns. I'm now trying to get 500 regular army 'trainer' rifles —with all the parts except that the barrels are solid and you can't shoot them."

He added that the majority of the boys were convicted of thefts: "Many of them stole automobiles or were caught in stolen cars. Most of them are here because they were allowed to run wild at home, got no supervision or training from their parents. You'd be surprised how many of them can be made into little gentlemen here."

600 TO ATTEND PUBLIC WORKS PARLEYS HERE

The American Public Works association will hold its 1945 meeting from Sunday thru Tuesday in Hotel Sherman, with V. E. Gunlock, Chicago commissioner of subways and super-highways, as chairman. Six hundred persons, half of them from Chicago, are expected to attend.

Airport operation, traffic safety, street cleaning, waterworks and sewage, and financial problems will be discussed.

Col. J. Carroll Cone of New York, assistant vice president of Pan American World Airways, will speak at the banquet Monday evening. Others on the program include Mayor Kelly; Lloyd M. Johnson, commissioner of streets and electricity; W. W. De Berard, city engineer; Darwin W. Townsend, consulting engineer; Elizabeth Wood, secretary, Chicago housing authority; Neil R. Jacoby, vice president, University of Chicago; George B. McKibbin, state director of planning, and Donald O. White, contractor.

CARRIES PRESS ISSUE TO HOUSE IN UNRRA FIGHT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP)—Republicans carried to the house floor today a fight to refuse UNNRA funds to countries that restrict the activities of the American press.

Rep. Brown [R., O.], with the backing of the G. O. P. steering committee, served notice in a speech that he would insist on such a provision in the new $550,000,000 United States contribution to the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

The appropriations committee previously had rejected the amendment.

Brown made his demand during a four hour general debate on the supplemental UNRRA sum.

Brown proposes that the relief funds be withheld from countries where "the controlling government refuses full and free access to the news of any and all activities of UNRRA by representatives of the press and radio of the United States."

MEXICO TO SET UP QUOTAS FOR IMMIGRATION

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31—(AP)—Mexico will reëstablish immigration quotas next year. A decree authorizes unlimited immigration by citizens of Spain and all countries of the Americas.

Immigration of 1,000 persons each annually is authorized from Belgium, Denmark, France, Holland, British Isles, Italy, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and the Soviet Union. A limit of 100 is placed on citizens of other countries.

Outside these quotas the government may approve immigration of "colonies" or special workers needed here.

Police to Drop 4,000 Guns Into Lake This Morning

The first mass disposal of firearms taken from prisoners at police headquarters since the start of the war will be held at 8:30 a. m. today. The guns, various types of side arms, rifles, and shotguns, will be loaded on a city tug at the lower level of Wabash av. at Wacker dr., taken out five miles in the lake and dumped. Guns estimated to total more than 4,000 will be dropped.

N.Y. VOTE FIGHT HAS NEW FACES, BUT OLD ISSUES

BY ARTHUR EVANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Oct. 31—New York's mayoralty campaign revolved around its favorite topic of gangsters and underworld politics today.

George J. Beldock, Republican, Kings county district attorney, hurled accusations of law enforcement laxity against William O'Dwyer, former Kings county district attorney and now a candidate for mayor on the ticket of the Democratic and communist controled American Labor parties.

The election is Nov. 6. The Republican candidate is Judge Jonah J. Goldstein.

Beldock charged that O'Dwyer failed to use Abe Reles, a gangster informant, to start proceedings against Albert Anastasia, who was described last night by O'Dwyer as the chief director of the killings in Brooklyn "during the waterfront extortion racket a few years ago. Anastasia still is at large.

Asks About Muzzling

Beldock raised a question of dates in his attack on O'Dwyer.

"Mr. O'Dwyer, you knew you had a perfectly good case against Anastasia in March or April of 1940," Beldock said. "Reles lived for 18 months thereafter. You sent Reles into grand jury rooms in Brooklyn and Sullivan county and even to far off California.

"The testimony of Reles sent four killers to the electric chair. As long as Reles was lively and talking his head off, why, Mr. O'Dwyer, did you fail to send him before a Brooklyn grand jury against Anastasia? You let Reles talk about everybody else. Why was he muzzled when it came to Anastasia?"

Charges Underworld Backing

Goldstein, speaking tonight, said O'Dwyer remains silent about "underworld support from underworld figures such as Frank Costello, Joe Adonis, and Irving Sherman."

In earlier speeches Goldstein described these figures as Costello, "gambling, slot machine king, and a Democratic machine boss"; Sherman, "front man and go-between for Costello," and Adonis, "a key underworld figure."

O'Dwyer Replies

O'Dwyer, analyzing his record, told of breaking up Murder, Inc., and sending seven killers to the electric chair and others to prison.

In the waterfront extortion cases, he said his office had a "perfectly good case" against Anastasia as long as Reles was alive. He said it was no longer a clear case after Reles was killed trying to escape from a Coney Island hotel where he had been in police custody.

Meanwhile, Gov. Dewey polished up at Albany an address he is to make here for Goldstein Friday night.

Blonde Lures Him to Auto for Pals to Slug, Steal $110

John Johnson, 22, of Long Beach, Cal., was slugged on the head yesterday and robbed of $110 by two men hidden in the rear seat of an automobile in which Johnson was sitting. He told police that an attractive blonde, whom he had met in a tavern at 173 N. Clark st., suggested they sit in her car. Immediately after entering the automobile he was slugged. A sailor introduced him to the blonde and was apparently an accomplice, he said.

MOTHER A VICTIM IN NEW MICHIGAN MYSTERY DEATH

Body Found Near Site of Thompson Slaying

Pontiac, Mich., Oct. 31 [Special]—State police and county authorities sought today to discover if a connection exists between the unsolved Oct. 11 slaying of Mrs. Lydia Thompson and the death of an unidentified woman whose body was found this morning in the Clinton river, two miles east of here.

The river victim had been shot thru the head, and authorities said they were unable to determine whether she had been slain or had taken her own life. Coroner Leon Cobb said the body had been in the water only a few hours and placed the time of death at about midnight last night.

Viewed By Investigators

All officers who have been working on the Thompson case were summoned to the Oakland county morgue to view the body to determine if the woman may have been among persons interviewed in the Thompson investigation. They said they did not recognize her. The place where her body was found is about 18 miles from the lonely wooded spot where the mutilated body of Mrs. Thompson was discovered by mushroom pickers Oct. 13.

The woman from the river was described as from 25 to 30 years old and about five feet three inches tall. She wore a light tan suit, brown silk blouse, and black shoes. She had two rings on her fingers, one of them a diamond wedding ring. There was a gold earring on one ear.

Two motorists noticed the body in the river about 11 a. m. It was caught on a rock about 35 feet below a bridge spanning the river. Officers found bloodstains on the bridge flooring and on a gravel approach to the bridge.

Theory of Sheriff

Sheriff E. K. Thomas theorized the body may have been brought to the bridge in a car and thrown into the river. He said the bridge had a high railing which made it unlikely that the woman could have shot herself on the bridge and then fallen into the river. No gun was found in the vicinity and dragging operations were begun in a search for one on the river bottom.

A woman's black purse, weighted with stones, was found in the river near the bridge. There was nothing in it to identify its owner, officers said.

Dr. Isaac Prevette, who examined the body at the morgue, said there was no water in the lungs, indicating she was dead before she went into the river. He said she had given birth to several children.

Mrs. Thompson, separated for several weeks from her husband, Louis, a wealthy automobile dealer, lived alone in an elaborate summer home at nearby Orchard lake. She was killed by a blow in the neck from an ax or hatchet and her body bore numerous stab wounds.

Boy, 2, at Play Near Fire, Fatally Burned

Lawrence Finucane, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester D. Finucane, 4915 Lake st., died yesterday in St. Anne's hospital of burns suffered when his clothing caught fire while he was playing near a rubbish fire in a vacant lot at 4927 W. Lake st.

Sobs Over Threat

[Associated Press Wirephoto]

Mark D. Eagleton weeping after telling Missouri senate of kidnap threats against son.

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 31 (AP)—Dramatic revelation of kidnaping and assault threats against key figures in the expulsion trial of Sen. Joseph A. Falzone jolted the Missouri senate today.

Mark D. Eagleton, co-counsel for the senate and president of the St. Louis board of police commissioners, broke into sobs as he told from the witness stand of threats that his son, Tom, 16, would be kidnaped if he continued the prosecution. His principal witness, Mrs. Lillian V. Maccallum, also was threatened with bodily harm and an attack on her reputation, Eagleton said.

Brokenly, Eagleton quoted his mysterious male telephone caller as saying "You know Falzone and you know what he can do."

Eagleton's disclosure came while the senate was considering whether to recess the unprecedented proceedings in which Falzone is charged with asking $1,500 to push a cosmetology bill thru the legislature.

Under an out of court settlement, she receives $450 a month for herself and two adopted children.

PIECES OF ROPE PROVIDE LINK IN DOUBLE KILLING

Rockport, Ind., Oct. 31 [Special]—A new clew in the gangland deaths of a man and a girl found buried near here was reported tonight in the discovery that a piece of rope found in the ashes of a burned barn near Sulphur had come from the same strand as that found around the girl's neck.

Meanwhile the arrest of a man in St. Louis, Mo., brought forth the information that George E. Tyson, 38, whose body was one of those in the grave, had been connected with two members of a St. Louis "east side" gang who were slain in 1943.

Laboratory tests established that the section of rope found today had come from the length used to garrote Ethel Sparks, 18, whose body was found Sunday with Tyson's in a shallow wheat field grave.

Find Personal Articles

Investigators also found in the barn's charred ruins remnants of clothing, jewelry, eye glasses, and alarm clock that police said were identified by friends of Tyson and Miss Sparks as having belonged to the couple.

The barn, which burned Saturday night, is on highway 62 half a mile east of Sulphur. It is about 45 miles from the Spaetti farm near Rockport, where the bodies were found, and about the same distance from Jeffersonville, where the couple had occupied an apartment for several weeks.

Investigators theorized the couple may have been slain in the barn and their bodies brought here.

Seen at Apartment

A couple identified by tenants of a Jeffersonville apartment building as Tyson and Miss Sparks were reported seen at their apartment Thursday night and in Jeffersonville Friday morning. Tenants said the couple had lived there for the last six weeks.

The man seized in St. Louis was William Robert Rollins, 30. He was said to have been a witness of Tyson's shooting and wounding of Joe Callahan at Madison, Ill., last July 16.

In connection with the arrest, St. Louis police said they learned that Tyson had been friendly with Lawrence Drewer, an ex-convict, who was a driver for Norman Farr and Harley Grizell, "east side" gangsters killed Dec. 7, 1943. Police theorized that Tyson may have been killed by other members of that gang.

WIFE TESTIFIES MATE BEAT HER WITH BLACKJACK

Winfield, W. Va., Oct. 31 [Special]—Mrs. Elizabeth Amos, 34, testified at her murder trial here today that she killed her husband, Pearl Martin Amos, 42, with a shotgun Sept. 6 when he attacked her with a blackjack after a night of whiskey drinking.

During their 12 years of married life, she said, he had worn out three blackjacks by beating her with them and on this occasion had a new one with which he said he intended to kill her.

"He raised up with the blackjack and said, 'I'm going to give you your last damn beating,'" she said. "I ran into the bedroom for a gun and must have shot him. When I came to I was sitting besides his body on the living room floor crying."

ONTARIO BOOSTS WINE AND LIQUOR RATIONS TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 31—Individual liquor and wine rations will be increased tomorrow, W. G. Webster, Ontario liquor board chairman, said today, and all rationing of wines and spirits will be lifted early in 1946.

Tomorrow's increase will allow a permit holder to buy 104 ounces, or four bottles of liquor each month. The present ration is two bottles of either Scotch whisky, rum or rye, or four bottles of gin. Purchase must be made on the basis of two bottles during each half of the month. Not more than one of the four bottles per month can be imported Scotch whisky. The wine ration of two bottles of imported wine a month is doubled. Twelve bottles of sparkling wine may be purchased each month.

YOU CAN'T DO BUSINESS WITH RUSSIA

Mr. Stalin may be sick or even dead, as reported by rumor. He may be alive and well. Censorship could conceal the fact that he is no longer with us while the rivals for his place shoot it out. Stalin in his day won his place by being quickest on the draw. Whatever may be the fact as to his state of health, there is no uncertainty regarding his promises and pledges. They are either sick or dead.

However unenviable the state of Europe might be today, even if Russia had honored the signature of its head of government, the continent might not, if there had been good faith, present such a picture of despair. When the soviet union was in peril and needed help there was no difficulty in getting signatures from it. At the Moscow conference of foreign secretaries, which Mr. Hull attended, at the Tehran conference of Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin, and at the Yalta conference of the same three, Russia agreed to act jointly with its two allies.

The Yalta declaration said: "They [Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin] jointly declare their mutual agreement to concert, during the temporary period of instability in liberated Europe, the policies of their three governments in assisting the people liberated from the domination of nazi Germany and the peoples of the former axis satellite states of Europe to solve by democratic means their pressing political and economic problems." Stalin's signature is to that pledge. His signature pledged joint action in forming interim governments in the satellites as well as the liberated countries. He consented to the establishment of a three power commission to determine the interim government of Poland. He pledged himself to the holding of free elections in Poland.

"A most sovereign declaration," said Mr. Churchill in explaining the Yalta agreement in parliament, "has been made by Marshal Stalin and the soviet union that the sovereign independence of Poland is to be maintained." Russia, we know, has fostered a government in Poland which has all the familiar soviet apparatus of concentration camps, terrorist police, and other means of destroying intelligence, conscience, and opinion. "Emerging from these friendly conferences," said Roosevelt, Stalin, and Churchill at Tehran, "we look with confidence to the day when all the peoples of the world may lead free lives untouched by tyranny and according to their varying desires and their own consciences."

That was a noble sentiment. In few words it said about everything the Atlantic Charter had to say and it contained most of the freedoms. In 1942, in extremity, Stalin had adopted the Atlantic Charter and joined the united nations. At Tehran, in December, 1943, he was breathing easier, but was not out of the woods. At Yalta, in February, 1945, the end of Germany was within reasonable expectation. At Potsdam, in August of this same year, Germany was in collapse, defeat, and surrender, and Stalin was a free man—free except for one thing which may have had a moderating influence on a dictator who otherwise might have gone completely out of hand. Mr. Truman and Mr. Churchill had told him that an atom bomb was about to be dropped on Japan.

Nevertheless, at Potsdam, Mr. Stalin slipped a little joker into the agreement. It said that Russian recommendations for an improvement in the joint control arrangements had been considered and that in Romania, Bulgaria, and Hungary there would be a revision which would take into account "the interests and responsibilities" of the three governments. Mr. Truman and Mr. Attlee, succeeding Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, seem to have recognized a sphere of special Russian interests in eastern Europe, along with considerations, which must attenuate the rights and subdue the desires of peoples for "free lives untouched by tyranny."

Russia has been proceeding on its own construction of that clause. It acts arbitrarily and alone. Its former allies are in constant and useless protest against its action in Austria, against its procedure in Hungary, Bulgaria, and Romania. Its conduct runs from minor brigandage to major terrorism. Little outrages are mixed with big ones. Formal protests thru diplomatic channels go unanswered.

The theft by force of a wrench from an American embassy car was one incident. The Reds apparently wanted another one to throw into the peace arrangements. Apologists say that the regions in which the soviet union is acting with arrogance, insolence, and bad faith are the Russian spheres of influence where its interests are analogous to ours in the western hemisphere. That isn't the way we heard it from Moscow, Tehran, and Yalta when it was Russia's policy to conciliate and not insult the people who were saving its neck.

It would be strange if bad faith did not make bad relations. A government quite as bad as Hitler's is establishing its power in a large section of Europe. It didn't adopt his methods. It was founded by them. Its few years of professed reform were years of hypocrisy. Its demands for loot are insatiable. Its demands for dominance have broken up every attempt to make peace. Italy, at least, should have had its peace treaty long ago.

Russia presents a serious problem to the United States. Our entanglements in Europe were bad enough without these encounters with an openly hostile, truculent, and perfidious former ally. There is little probability that the Russians will change their ways. They are exultant. They have a chance to terrorize other people. They are forming other governments in their own image. Where freedom was promised despotism spreads. The leftist tendencies in Europe invite the Reds to contemplate a sweep across the continent. American experiences with them in Asia match the experiences in Europe.

As winter comes the ferocity of this peace will rival the ferocity of the war. Our government has made some very bad commitments. Congress already has consented to some of them. Coöperation with organized brutality begins to stink in the nostrils of more Americans every day.

DEATH OF A BOGEY

Mr. Truman was probably unaware of it, but in his Navy day speech he knocked into a cocked hat the major thesis of Mr. Roosevelt's interventionism. Mr. Truman said that even in the day of atomic bombs, the navy still is able to guard our shores against foreign attack.

If that is true in a world of atomic bombs, it surely was true before. Mr. Roosevelt told us that we were in mortal danger of invasion. He said that even Wichita, Kas., wasn't safe. We now know that even with the fleet sunk we weren't invaded.

WAGES AND PRICES

President Truman had a very large audience for his Tuesday night speech. The country is alarmed by the disputes over wages which threaten to interfere with the transition of our industries to a peace basis. Every one was hopeful that the President would be able to announce a policy that would materially aid in resolving the problem. The hopes were not realized.

Wage raises are in the air. They are being granted widely. In advance of the policy declaration by the President, many agreements calling for higher scales have already been negotiated with unions. Thoughtful employers are also giving consideration to their white collar workers who, altho they have been affected by higher living costs and have suffered a diminution of their purchasing power, were not on the President's mind.

The President was concerned about the decline in earnings suffered particularly by workers in the munitions industries. These employes enjoyed during the war the highest rates of pay in the whole realm of business. The producer could pay any amount he wanted to his help, because the buyer of the product was the government with an unlimited access to funds.

A different situation confronts the producer who turns out a product sold to the public. He must obtain enough from the buyer of his product to pay all of his costs, including labor. It is utterly impossible for any outside body to know what a factory should charge for its products in all their diversity, and with all the competition there is from other producers in the same industry, and from the products of other industry. Profits must be high on some items to make good losses on others.

The President properly resisted the demand of CIO leaders that he specify a flat advance in wages to be given all around. That would certainly have resulted in a widespread closing down of businesses. The repeal of the excess profits tax and the provision enabling corporations whose earnings drop below their normal peace time level to recapture a high proportion of the excess profits already paid were stressed by CIO spokesmen, but are of limited application. One-third of all corporations operated in the red during the war and three-fourths of the rest did not have enough income to bring them under the excess profits tax.

The President's policy is based upon a doctrine brought into this country from England by John Maynard Keynes. It is that nothing is ever wrong with the country that the distribution of some more currency will not cure. Keynes told President Roosevelt that if the government would arrange to disburse an additional 4 billion dollars, by whatever means, prosperity would return. He was mistaken, as the country learned to its great sorrow. Mr. Truman has swallowed the same fallacy. He said that the annual wage and salary bill will, unless checked, shrink by 20 billions. He calls this deflation and proposes that it be counteracted by pay boosts.

President Truman pictured the merchant, the manufacturer, and the farmer experiencing hardship because wage earners will not have enough money to buy what is offered for sale unless wages are put up. The situation which confronts us is the reverse of that. There is already too much money and too little goods. Thanks to OPA pricing policies, strikes, and the let-down in efficiency that always comes after a war, the supplies of merchandise reaching the market have been kept down. There is no lack of a market for the farmers. Live stock is selling at ceiling prices and other farm products are at the high levels of recent years.

What we are witnessing is a reënactment of the days of 1919. There is now seven times as much money in the hands of the people as there was then, current disbursements are four times as great, and supplies of many things are smaller than they were then. We cannot believe that the President did anything useful when he proposed that the size of the stream of purchasing power emptying into the swollen pool be increased.

THE TRIBUNE believes in and practices a high wage policy, but there is no heed to stress this philosophy now when wage increases are being granted very generally. The need is to expand the country's stock of goods and opportunities for employment. It is hard to see how these ends can be served by increasing the costs of making things and holding down the prices at which they are sold.

GOOD GRAY MONTH

Five of us were talking over the coffee cups the other night, and apropos of nothing it came out that three were November children, with birthdays close together. None of us knew what the horoscopes had said of our future, but the omens must have been favorable, for we had survived two world wars, various epidemics and depressions, and the mortal risks of numerous marvelous inventions that have slaughtered millions. So let us lift our voice in praise of November, the month of graying skies which has been grossly neglected by poets, exhausted by their October ecstasies.

A classic columnist of the 18th century, Joseph Addison, wrote in disparagement: "The gloomy month of November, when the people of England hang and drown themselves." But he inhabited a reeking city on a foggy island, and probably never gazed upon the glory of Orion, spangled on the eastern firmament, and the brilliance of the other stars that make the cold weather half of the year a great time for communion with the universe.

A Roman emperor was born this month, and his flatterers wanted to name it after him so that he might have equal rank in tradition with the two preceding Caesars, Julius and Augustus. But Tiberius, who bears a bad reputation in other respects, must be congratulated for declining the honor. He set an example for potentates who want to monkey with the calendar by saying to his sycophantic senate, "What will you do when you have 13 Caesars?"

* * *

In spite of its threat of first snow, it brings such notable anniversaries as Armistice day, Thanksgiving day, the Gettysburg address, and the Chicago Press Veterans' dinner. A good month for a birthday. Please pass the topaz stickpins.

TREES AT TWILIGHT

Dark boughs now shorn of summer's luxuries
Pose in their sculptured grace against a sky
Still stained with sunset. Twisted hawthorn trees
Lift spidery branches, tangled and awry.
Catalpas lace their twigs to catch the stars,
And poplars lean and whisper to the wind;
This hour that hides the oak trees' weathered scars
Shakes out its final shadows, blurred and thinned.
Dusk pivots on this gypsy hour when day
And night meet on the ragged timberline,
When branches lift in quiet disarray
To etch themselves in wintery design,
To hold the white November moon at bay,
And know their silhouettes are strong and fine.

Elephants As Money

After the World's Fair of 1893 closed, I moved my "certificates of visitation" booth to the Manufactures building, where hundreds of exhibitors were dismantling their displays. Among my customers, I'll not forget the eight gentlemen in black silk pajamas and little round silk hats who approached my desk in single file. They were merchants and craftsmen from the Chinese pavilion.

Their gestures, accompanied by bowing and smiling, informed me that each wanted a certificate. The names had to be in plain roman capital letters, one inch high, so they could be read the length of the homeland shop. When the work was done, each extracted an ebony elephant with ivory tusks from some fold in his garment and laid it on my desk.

When I protested that hard cash was expected, all I got was more bows, smiles, and twitterings. They seemed to be delighted that I was getting the best of this trade. Chiggers build a fire blazing bright and high,

I'll tie a scarlet ribbon round my head and play some music from the Latin south.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

G. H. writes: "I was 44 when drafted in 1942. After two months and 24 days of service I was released in 1943, altho I did not request discharge. My discharge certificate says I was released to accept essential employment. Am I not entitled to mustering out pay? I did return to my former job in a war plant."

No. Whether you asked for release or not, the fact that you accepted a discharge for the stated purpose of returning to work in a war plant bars you from receiving mustering out pay.

Reader asks: "Can you answer in the Tribune what chance a sailor who never has been out of the country has of getting home by Christmas? How many points does he need? How many does he have with three years in service? He is married."

Without knowing the sailor's age, it is impossible to say how many points he has toward discharge, but you can figure his score on this basis: One-half point for each year of age, figured to nearest birthday; one-half point for each month of active duty since Sept. 1, 1939; 10 points for dependents [wife, children, or parents]. A total of 41 points will be required Nov. 1 for navy enlisted men. If the man is 26 or over, has been in service for three years, and has a wife, he must have 41 points now. He may be retained in service for 120 days after he has acquired sufficient points for discharge. Wives acquired after Aug. 15, 1945, may not be counted as dependents for the purpose of discharge.

THE MANAGEMENT OF MEASLES

MEASLES is our most contagious disease and, like falling in love, few individuals reach adult life without having been a victim. Unlike the German variety, it may prove dangerous particularly in infancy. Altho the cause has not been established definitely, there is abundant evidence to show that a filtrable virus is the culprit. Even before the skin manifestations are observed, this invader is present in the blood as well as the nasal and mouth secretions.

Babies born of immune mothers are protected for six months. Should the malady strike soon thereafter, a modified attack is the rule. There are reports on record of children being born with the disorder whose mothers were victims at the time. Recurrences are unusual; on the other hand, some fail to develop immunity and encounter three or four episodes. It is estimated that 97 per cent of our cases occur in childhood.

From 10 to 11 days after exposure the patient develops fever, followed by symptoms of a severe coryza—nasal discharge, sneezing, and redness of the membranes of the eyes. The infection then travels downward with subsequent hoarseness and a dry, hard cough. The throat and tonsils are usually congested and white spots, described originally by Koplik, appear on the inner cheeks. When these are noted the doctor can predict that the typical eruption is to be expected shortly. All during this period the youngster may be drowsy and complain of headache, pain in the back and joints, and nausea. Were the blood to be studied, a marked drop in white corpuscles would be observed.

The skin outbreak generally begins three or four days after the onset of fever. As a rule, the initial lesions are behind the ears, on the neck, or over the forehead. At first they are small, dark, red spots which become more profuse. Within 24 hours they are elevated sufficiently to be felt with the fingers. The edges are irregular and, when enough are present, the epidermis actually looks puffy.

On the second day the rash is exhibited beneath the chin, eventually invading the chest, back, and extremities. By the time it reaches the legs the blemishes on the face start to fade. Ordinarily, the outbreak lasts four days, but a brownish discoloration may remain for a week or more. The terms "red" and "black" measles originated from the appearance of the lesions for, in some instances, they actually contain blood and are maroon colored. Ultimately, peeling takes place thru the formation of fine scales which occasionally suggest scarlet fever.

Treatment is largely a matter of bed rest, fluids, and a soft diet. The room does not necessarily need to be darkened but glaring light should be avoided. Convalescent serum seldom helps in a well advanced case but, when used early, alleviates symptoms and reduces the period of disability. If itching is annoying, a soothing lotion may be applied. A boric acid eyewash or petroleum may be helpful in preventing the lids from sticking together. Should "hacking" cause discomfort, a cough medicine is indicated.

For those who have been exposed, the administration of convalescent serum or placental or gamma globulin will result either in complete protection or a modified form.

BABY TEETH IN ADULT

A. K. M. writes: The question from the mother of a 7 year old daughter who still has her baby teeth amused me. I am a healthy woman of 43 and still have four of my first set. A second tooth grew out only 3 years ago, so I have three more to come. Altho these milk teeth have been shaky for several years they are in good condition.

REPLY

This shows that adults can "teethe." In other words, nothing is impossible.

SLENDER FOUNDATIONS

Mrs. T. R. writes: I am 50 pounds overweight but my legs are thin. Is there anything I can do about this?

REPLY

I doubt if you can or need do anything about your legs, but I would suggest that you consult a physician on the obesity problem. A glandular disturbance may explain the combination you present.

ONIONS DAILY

J. Z. writes: Is it harmful to eat raw onions every day?

REPLY

Physically, no; esthetically, yes. In other words, your digestive tract may be able to stand it, but your friends can't.

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Faces, True or False

Portraits, historical ones, anyway, are rarely what they seem. Take those 19th century engravings of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth. The Pilgrim fathers are shown as bald headed ancients, hatless in December, handing a group of plump young ladies ashore from a boat too small to hold them all. They are about to set dainty feet on the Rock on which some Indian with an historical conscience already has carved the date 1620. Yet with a single exception all the pilgrim fathers were under 40, most of them in their '20s.

The picture every schoolchild knows of Washington crossing the Delaware is equally confusing. Washington stands with his foot on the gunwale, his pose as heroic as it is disdainful of the obvious danger of upsetting the boat or of sharpshooters' bullets from the shore. The boatmen feebly push away small icebergs which a current, presumably Arctic, somehow has brought up the river.

These and many other absurdities, which tend to make the average portrait useless as an historical document, are summarized in a paper, "False Faces," by Henry Wilder Foote of Massachusetts, an authority on colonial portraiture. Mr. Foote is pretty cut up about this stretching of the artistic license, which is neither new nor restricted to American history. The Pharaohs had a nasty habit of appropriating to themselves a good statue of one of their predecessors and replacing the original inscriptions with one bearing their own name, and a 16th century scholar, who wrote one of the earliest books on numismatics, went so far as to include alleged coin portraits of Adam and Eve. No contemporary likeness of Columbus exists, altho one or two verbal descriptions of his physical appearance have been found, but the Columbian exposition here in 1893 contained no fewer than 71 portraits, busts, or statues of him. These had every possible variation of complexion, feature, stature, and costume. Mr. Foote compares all of these to the spirit of the 9th century bishop, Agnellus, who undertook to write the biographies of the bishops of Ravenna and said, candidly, "When I have not found any history of these bishops and have not been able by conversation with aged men . . . to obtain information concerning them . . . I have composed the life myself with the help of God and the prayers of the brethren."

Mr. Foote gives 18 interesting pages of distortions, fanciful creations, and falsifications of historical portraits. Then:

"When McKinley was assassinated, Chicago promptly named a park for him. Some one suggested that it should contain a statue of the dead president. None being immediately available, they picked up a discarded statue of Columbus left over from the world's fair, which, after a suitable haircut had been administered, they set up with McKinley's name substituted for that of the discoverer."

The late Lorado Taft is not around to refute Mr. Foote, but the records of the Chicago park board certainly do. McKinley did die, a park was named for him, and a bronze statue of Columbus [one done by that eminent Italian, Charles J. Mulligan] was at loose ends, for it was deteriorating nicely in Grant park. A group of Chicagoans headed by Alexander H. Revell, Samuel Allerton, Charles G. Dawes, and Joseph Lee Otis, agreed to raise $11,000 for a statue of McKinley provided the city would donate the statue of Columbus, for its bronze was valued at $2,500. This was done, but Columbus' hair was not cut. He was melted down until he could be spooned up, and the sculptor, Taft, using the bronze, worked McKinley up from scratch. Not until July 4, 1905, was McKinley completed, approved, and dedicated.

No one knows what happened to all those heads, etc., of Columbus. Many were of terra cotta and crumbled. Chicago today has only one, in Grant park. Columbus park, by stipulation, contains no statues, for it was landscaped as a rolling prairie and contains only natural prairie vegetation, among which statues are not listed.

GOON LAW AT THE STOCK YARDS

Chicago, Oct. 26—This morning a bit of lawlessness was pulled off at the Union Stock yards. The CIO had taken possession of all the "L" stations in great numbers, for the purpose of forcing every one by hook or crook into their union. There was no way out—you either signed or you didn't work.

I reminded these folks that the law says that we don't have to join if we don't want to. The answer I got was, "We are the law." There was no protection from our police force. How long is it going to take before decent, law abiding citizens and ex-soldiers can get the protection of the law?

A STOCK YARDS WORKER AND EX-SOLDIER

HE FOUGHT DISCRIMINATION

New Orleans, La., Oct. 18—I have just read a letter in the Voice of the People in which the writer claims that my reference to the statement and order of President Truman to the Seafarers International union on the question of racial discrimination was false. He bases his argument upon an individual case that happened in San Pedro, Cal., 1944.

I based my argument upon the fact that while a member of the S. S. Mermacport of the Moore-MacCormick Steamship company's Scantic Line in February, 1939, at a crew's meeting held in the messroom, a represented elected officer of that union, who is still an official in the port of New York, ruled a colored cook off the ship because they would not sail with a mixed crew. As a member in good standing of the Pacific Coast Marine Firemen, I fought the case, but was ruled out of order by the union official.

In reference to the statement that I might be a sailor of the fresh water variety, allow me to inform the writer of that letter that I am an active merchant seaman since 1927, having sailed both the west coast and the east coast before this war and during the war, and at the present time am on the coast waiting to ship. During this war I sailed on S. I. U. ships [salt water] with mixed crews in all departments and have never seen a colored member ruled off any S. I. U. ship on which I served as a crew member. I still state that President Truman must have received his information from some landlocked seamen of the bughouse square variety principally found in the National Maritime union.

JOSEPH S. BUCKLEY

OIL DRUMS PREFERPED

Chicago, Oct. 17—A letter from my husband today refers as follows to the so-called 'lack of ships' to send service men home: "Those three men from transportation who are going home haven't left us yet. There is a ship here that is willing to carry 1,200 men back, but the island commander won't let them go. Instead the three eligible for return are loading empty oil drums. However, they hope to leave in the morning, hitch-hiking by air. The first ride they have is going to take them to Saipan, from there on they just have to trust to luck."

The three men referred to are navy men who were eligible for discharge on Sept. 17, as they have three children or more. The point is, are empty oil drums more important to the navy than getting our boys back to their homes?

CONFUSION IN THE RECORDER'S OFFICE

Chicago, Oct. 17—Why is the public so harassed by the neglect of the recorder's office to place late books of records so that they will be easily available to the public? At present there are scattered around the north end of the recorder's vault some 168 volumes of corporation records and 2,420 volumes, from 38,830 to 40,250, in which one must look for documents filed within the last couple of years. They are lying on tables and benches, not in numerical order, but in such a jumble that one has to spend hours moving them in trying to find any particular volume. The only help one can get from the employes is, "The book you want is in that heap, or that pile."

From October, 1871, after the fire, to 1891, there were but 2,500 volumes. It is very seldom that any one has to look into those volumes. If the county recorder or the county board cannot get additional metal shelves or cases, let me suggest that the recorder take from the cases the 2,500 old volumes and put in their places contemporary volumes in daily demand by the public.

WORRIED ABOUT THEIR PEOPLE

Park Ridge, Ill., Oct. 17—How long must we, who have relatives in Germany, wait before we can send a message to them? We cannot even communicate thru the Red Cross. Every day we read in the papers of the shortage of food and the starvation that the coming winter months will bring. How long before the mails will be opened? We are not asking anything unreasonable. Only that we be allowed to send help to starving sisters and brothers and aged parents. Surely any decent person, no matter what nationality, would wish to do the same.

BACK TAXES TO 1776

CHILD SUPPORT

Chicago, Oct. 29—When a court order states that the father of a child has to pay child support for a minor, [1] does the father have to pay support money after the child goes to work at the age of 15? [2] The court order does not specify to what age the father must pay support money for his daughter. V. C.

1. If, as seems probable, the court order is so worded as to require payment until the child becomes of legal age, then this wording would control unless the court is persuaded to change it on proof that the child no longer needs the money.
3. Doesn't it refer to her as a minor? We cannot construe the order to advantage without having its full wording.

KEESHIN QUITS HUGE INDUSTRY; BLAMES LABOR

Declares Pay Demands Are 'Impossible'

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

John L. Keeshin, at 45 largest individual truck operator in the nation, yesterday resigned as president and severed all connections with the Keeshin Motor Transportation System. He attributed his action to "impossible labor demands."

Declaring that labor apparently has selected the Keeshin system for new attacks, Keeshin said he believes the interests of the enterprises he founded and headed could best be served by his retirement. His resignation was accepted by directors of the various enterprises.

Driver of Horse Truck at 14

Keeshin started business as a boy of 14 in 1914, driving a horse drawn truck in the old South Water st. market. The vast system he built has approximately 2,000 trucks and 3,200 employes; six companies comprise the Keeshin system, including Keeshin Motor Express company of Illinois. He will devote his time to his racing and football interests and to his tire and battery company.

"My action," Keeshin said, "was made necessary by my belief that only in this way could I help save the system and draw attention to the critical situation of the trucking industry.

"The burdens that beset the Keeshin system, as well as the other major motor transportation systems should by this time be common knowledge. Thruout the war, these companies suffered substantial losses, whereas the railroads and private business have made profits and developed surpluses—and rightfully so.

Ground Between Two Millstones

"The motor transport systems have been held between two millstones. One was increasing costs of operations which could not be controled; the other was the inflexibility of their rate structures.

"Since V-J day our difficulties have increased. Traffic controls have been disrupted by interference with production and reconversion thruout the system.

"At a time when readjustment of even a profitable enterprise could be made only with a loss, the motor transportation industry has been confronted by new demands from labor, not only for increases in rates, but also for the establishment of featherbed [make work] rules. These proposed increases can result only in a catastrophe to the industry.

System Target of Workers

"The Keeshin system apparently has been selected as the guinea pig in the effort of the workers to obtain the increases demanded. Therefore, I have resigned."

Keeshin said that in recent years labor costs have gone up 56 per cent, rubber costs more than 300 per cent, and maintenance costs from 3¼ cents to 9 cents a mile.

"Just a month ago 200 men snapped to attention every time I spoke."

TRIBUNE STEPS AHEAD IN NEWS COLOR PHOTOS

Fire Pictures Rival Time of Black and White

THE TRIBUNE today presents a full page color photograph of the Tuesday night elevator fire, taken with a regular press camera at approximately the speed of black and white photography, and processed in THE TRIBUNE'S own news department darkroom in one hour.

The feat represents a long step toward the goal of spot news coverage in color photography.

Two Tribune camera men, Robert MacKay and Augie May, took the pictures, using a new type Ansco color film in standard press cameras, not the one shot color cameras used by the Tribune color studio. They arrived at the fire shortly after the first alarm was received at 8:27 p. m., and shot the first of their eight exposures at 9 p. m., a wait being necessary for a good shot.

The films were rushed back to the news photo room, arriving at 9:40 p. m., little more than an hour after the alarm was turned in. The films were put thru a 13 step development process and were delivered to the engraving room as dry transparencies in exactly one hour.

Engravers started work on the four color plates, black, red, blue, and yellow, by which the pictures are reproduced, at 1:15 a. m. today and completed them at 11 a. m., a little more than nine hours.

A detail of firemen yesterday was still pumping water on the smoldering ruins of the building, a seven story grain elevator, one of the oldest in Chicago, formerly owned by the National Grain company, and recently purchased by the Cuneo Press, Inc.

Loss Put at $25,000

Fire Marshal Corrigan said the ruins might smolder for two days. He estimated the loss at $25,000 and conjectured that the blaze might have been started by an unnoticed smoldering spark from acetylene torches being used by workmen to raze the building preparatory to construction of a new warehouse.

The structure, 133 feet high, and covering an area 90 by 252 feet, was described by John L. Finn, chief of the fire prevention bureau, as of frame construction. The lower part, he said, was part brick and part tile, with the upper part formed of wooden beams, mostly 2 by 8s, covered with corrugated sheet metal, in a type of construction known as "'cribbing."

Three Firemen Injured

Three firemen were injured battling the blaze: Acting Chief William Matthies, 52, of the 9th battalion, fractured a hip when he stumbled into a hole; Marshall Crohan, 30, of 6016 S. Washtenaw av., a member of engine company 48, suffered a head injury when he was struck by a falling ladder, and Charles Haynes, 53, of 7618 S. Carpenter st., a 9th battalion lieutenant, was struck in the eye by a stream of water.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Nov. 1—Last Great Yank Push of '18

THRU 36 days of the bleak autumn of 1918 the American 1st army had been inching its way northward between the Meuse river and the Argonne forest of northeastern France. The difficulties posed by the rugged terrain and the strong and intricate German fortifications had been conquered one by one by the vigor and selflessness of the attackers.

The Argonne had been cleared, the Hindenburg line disorganized, and the enemy so battered and stunned that only by near superhuman efforts could he summon further will to resist. Yet such efforts had to be and were put forth, for the long German front depended for its stability on communication systems whose key points were under American attack.

Now, on Nov. 1, the attackers stood poised for the last great American offensive of the war. In the blackness of early morning the artillery reached out to pulverize the advanced German positions.

At 5:30 a. m. the infantry stepped out. What followed was sensational. The Americans smashed thru the enemy's first defenses and on into his artillery zone. When the bloody day waned they found themselves on the heights of Barricourt, five miles from where they had started. Other divisions had lunged thru neighboring sectors of the strongly held German line with similar speed, and one had clawed itself a foothold in the enemy infested Bois des Loges.

"For the first time," Gen. Pershing wrote in his memoirs, "the enemy's lines were completely broken thru. Altho he had been badly beaten on all parts of the front, he had hitherto been able to avoid this disaster."

As a result of the terrific American offensive which began Nov. 1, and of other allied offensives coordinated with it, the German defenses crumbled and probably only the armistice of Nov. 11 prevented a helpless rout.

PRENATAL CARE CUTS RATE OF CHILD SYPHILIS

Since 1939, 94.31 per cent of 550 Illinois women treated for syphilis prior to the fourth month of pregnancy gave birth to normal, non-syphilitic children, Dr. Herman M. Soloway of the Illinois state department of public health reported yesterday.

A total of 1,448 pregnant women were treated for the disease by 1,087 private physicians since an Illinois law requiring attending physicians to test expectant mothers for syphilis took effect, Dr. Soloway disclosed in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association.

Poorest results, he said, were encountered in a group of 355 untreated cases of which only 93 had normal babies.

VERDICT FAVORS MACFADDEN IN DIVORCE BATTLE

Miami, Fla., Oct. 31 (AP)—A divorce was recommended today for Bernarr MacFadden from the English beauty contest winner who, the 77 year old physical culturist declared in his complaint, failed to keep her body beautiful, trim, and healthy.

Mrs. Bernarr MacFadden

Special Master John C. Gramling submitted findings favoring an end to the marriage nailed 32 years ago in London as a "perfect union." Seven children were born to the couple.

Mrs. MacFadden called her husband a "crackpot" during the bitterly contested proceeding and said he imposed extreme ideas of physical culture on his family.

A master's recommendation usually is accepted by the court but Judge Paul D. Barns must review it before making a final decision.

Norman Davis, 6814 Justine st., a luggage sprayer, whose wife, Lorraine, 39, is suing for divorce, was ordered by Judge Elmer J. "I never want to see him again," the girl objected. "Three weeks ago he slapped me and swore at me." "I can't counsel the girl to see you against her wishes," the court told Davis.

BETTER CITY TRANSPORTATION RUSH

Good news to Chicagoans is the visible proof of actual improvements already being made in Chicago Surface Lines transit service.

On October 1st CSL started a program of converting many street car lines to bus operations. These conversions provide substantially faster and more frequent service.

At the same time bus service was restored to three routes, which—by order of the ODT—had been discontinued almost three years ago as a war conservation measure.

On October 2nd a new bus route was installed on Harlem Avenue. Route extensions and desirable route changes are already being effected.

These improvements are only the first of many that will steadily bring you greater convenience, comfort and speed in your CSL transportation.

The important thing is ... they are happening now!

More and bigger improvements—with still better CSL service—will rapidly follow in the months ahead, as hundreds of new buses and street cars now being built for CSL are completed and delivered.

CSL NEEDS ADDITIONAL MEN FOR STEADY, PERMANENT WORK

In addition to welcoming former CSL men back from the service, we're employing hundreds of ex-service men and ex-war workers, too. There's important work here for dependable men, to keep CSL street cars and buses rolling. We need you now—so see us today, at 1165 N. Clark Street.

TWO SHOT DEAD IN 8 STORY JAIL BREAK; 6 FLEE

One Recaptured After He Steals a Bicycle

Shreveport, La., Oct. 31 [Special]—Two of eight prisoners who took part in a break tonight from the "escape proof" jail on the eighth floor of the Caddo parish courthouse here were shot and killed by a deputy sheriff who encountered them on the seventh floor of the building.

Their six colleagues in the jail break succeeded in escaping by commandeering an elevator on the seventh floor and riding to the second floor, from which they leaped from windows to the lawn.

One Is Recaptured

At a late hour tonight five of them were still at liberty. One, Louis Mantham, 22, was recaptured about 10 p. m. while riding a stolen bicycle about 12 blocks from the court house.

Those killed were identified by Sheriff Howell Flournoy as Leo Brady, 17, and William C. Moore, 26. He said Brady was awaiting transportation to a penintentiary to serve a sentence for theft and that Moore was a federal prisoner.

The sheriff said the eight men rushed upon George Joliff, jailer, when he entered a bull pen in which they were confined at 6 p. m. to bring them their evening meal. The bull pen was on the eighth floor.

Threatened with Razor

Joliff was overpowered and his keys taken from him after one of the prisoners held a razor blade at his throat, the sheriff said. A Negro trusty who accompanied Joliff into the bull pen was credited by the sheriff with saving the jailer's life by struggling with the prisoners.

Brady and Moore entered an elevator and rode in it to the seventh floor, the sheriff said. There they encountered Deputy Sheriffs Charles Kneippe and Gordon Kennedy. They slugged Kneippe, knocking him unconscious, but Kennedy fought the men off and drew a revolver. He fired four times, killing both men.

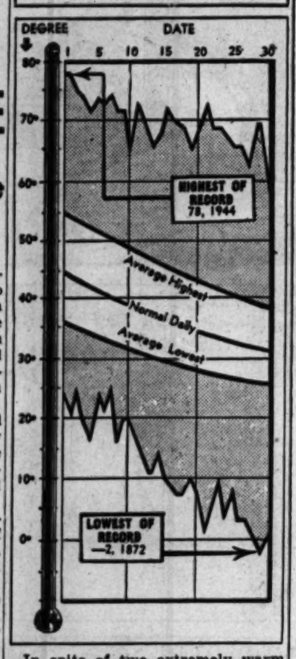
Six Slip Away

The other six escaping prisoners reached the seventh floor by a stairway and got into an elevator unobserved while the shooting was in progress.

Those still at liberty, the sheriff said, are John Cavalero, 18; John Eichmeyer, 18; J. V. Gunter, 27; William Tyler Nevers Jr., 20, and Otis J. Cook, 21.

Gunter, Nevers, and Cook were federal prisoners and the others were being held on state charges, the sheriff said. He described Gunter and Nevers as "dangerous criminals," with records as automobile thieves.

November Weather



In spite of two extremely warm days, one of which, Oct. 28, was a record breaking 75 degrees, October temperatures averaged more than a degree below the month's normal of 52.5 degrees, O. T. Lay, officer in charge of the Chicago weather bureau, said yesterday.

He characterized the month as cool, dry, and sunny. Rainfall totaled 1.18 inches as against a normal of 1.38 inches. Sunshine was about 10 per cent above normal.

The first killing frost in the Chicago area, Lay said, occurred on Oct. 10, 11 days earlier than normal. During November temperatures average 38 degrees, the rainfall averages 2.5 inches with about two inches of snow. About half the days have sunshine.

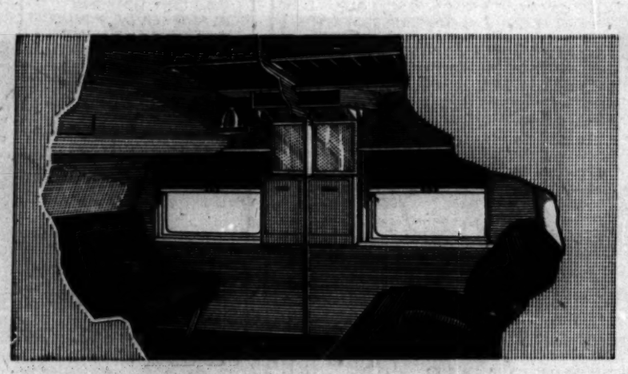
BUDD INTRODUCES
NEW SLEEPING CAR EQUIPMENT
OF UNEXAMPLED CONVENIENCE AND LUXURY

Rail travel in the post-war world will have vastly-improved sleeping car accommodations. The day of the open berth is passing. Sleeping cars of the future will be all-room cars, assuring to each passenger privacy and seclusion, and providing comforts and conveniences of a new order.

To provide such modern accommodations within all practicable price ranges, Budd has designed new sleeping cars with four types of private rooms. They include:



THE BUDGETTE

A room for individual occupancy, designed to meet a large demand at low-cost sleeping-car fares. Each Budgette Car, of standard 85-foot length, contains 32 rooms. Each room has a comfortable upholstered seat with its own window, private toilet and lavatory, mirror and other conveniences. Each has its own full-length, pre-made bed, which can be drawn into position instantly without opening the aisle door.

THE CABIN

A more spacious individual room with new comfort and conveniences for day and night traveling. The bed is pre-made and always ready. The Cabin has a luxurious seat for daytime, wide enough to seat two comfortably, a roomy wardrobe, toilet and lavatory, mirror, individual control of heat and air-conditioning, and many niceties which passengers will welcome.

THE DOUBLE BEDROOM

A genuine double bedroom with fully enclosed toilet and lavatory and shower bath. Each room has luxuriously-upholstered seats for three persons, two full-length beds which are pre-made, ready for instant occupancy, full-length mirror, wardrobe in which clothes may be hung without folding, space for extra luggage. In this room, toilet facilities have been moved away from the outer wall, permitting full-vision window, 45 inches wide. One type Double Bedroom provides beds lengthwise with the car. The other, beds across the car.

THE MASTER ROOM

This is the most luxurious apartment ever offered to train travelers. It is formed by the simple folding of a partition between two Double Bedrooms, thus providing beds for four people and seats for six daytime passengers, two enclosed toilets and lavatories with shower baths, two full length wardrobes, and ample space for setting up card table or dining table as desired. For parents traveling with children, the arrangement is ideal, as the partition between the two rooms may be closed at night—with communicating door. Two of the four beds are lengthwise of the car and two crosswise.

It is conceded by everyone that the volume of public travel in years ahead will be far greater than anything known before the war. To capture a large and growing proportion of this traffic is the opportunity that lies before the railroads now. The public expects a modernized, vastly improved sleeping car service. The railroads must have equipment which will meet and exceed the traveling public's expectations. Numerous surveys have indicated their preferences. In the new accommodations presented here, Budd not only has designed from the passenger's view point but has taken into account the expressed desires and practical needs of the railroads. They offer new trains that provide greater comfort, variety, flexibility and high capacity per car.

In this development, which is in many respects revolutionary, Budd continues a policy of bringing to the service of the railroads and traveling public the most modern ideas in passenger equipment engineering. Stainless steel streamline trains, now operating on America's foremost railroads, are a witness to the value of this policy. They are a constant source of pleasure to their patrons and of profit to their owners. In contributing to the modernization of sleeping car accommodations, it is Budd's purpose to render a like service to both railroads and public.

FEW RADIO SETS FOR CHRISTMAS, SAYS OPA CHIEF

Prices to Remain Near Levels of 1941

Few radio sets will be available by Christmas, Daniel Jacobs, head of the radio and miscellaneous section of the office of price administration, admitted in Chicago yesterday, tho he insisted that a flood of receivers will be rushing forth "soon" under the newly announced pricing formula. Jacobs met with manufacturers yesterday and explained the ramifications of pricing structure which permits manufacturers to charge October, 1941, prices plus 15 per cent on low cost sets and a 10½ per cent increase on higher priced sets. Distributors and retailers, however, must absorb the increase.

Jacobs argued that dealers would have greater "realized" profits under this order than in 1941 when sales prices were often less than listed prices and when liberal trade in allowances were made.

Make Same Models as in 1941

Manufacturers also are required under a new ruling to make the same variety of models as in 1941, thus assuring the public low priced as well as high priced models. If deviations from this production are discovered the OPA can block the manufacturers' reconversion price boosts, Jacobs stated. Another OPA order requires each new set to have the ceiling price plainly indicated.

Jacobs said manufacturers felt the new price scheme was fair. Manufacturers, however, were reluctant to say anything favorable.

"The OPA is only kidding itself when it tries to keep consumer prices the same when it has granted substantial boosts to parts manufacturers and may have to grant more before they begin producing in earnest," one manufacturer said.

May File Hardship Cases

Parts manufacturers have the set makers stymied because they say they are unable to produce at a profit under the 9½ to 26 per cent increase allowed them by the OPA. Parts manufacturers may file individual hardship cases with the OPA and in some instances tentative approval of increases up to 50 per cent have been reported.

By what magic the OPA can reconcile such increases in costs of production and still maintain the selling price of 1941 the radio industry is waiting to see.

W-G-N PRESENTS CHICAGO STORY, FIRST OF SERIES

A new weekly radio series, The Chicago Story, depicting the city's importance, had its premiere last night over station W-G-N. It is a 30 minute program from 9 to 9:30 p. m. presented as a major civic contribution of W-G-N to the city and the midwest.

Last night's program included a general view of the city as it might be glimpsed today from an airplane. Interludes of sound and conversation were introduced to represent different neighborhoods, sections, and citizens. Then there was a flashback to 1833 when the population was 200, and the city's history was brought up to date via recollections of such significant events as the Republican convention of 1860 and the nomination of Lincoln. . . . The fire of 1871. . . . The World Columbian exposition.

Next week the story will be devoted to the Chicago Historical society. Other subjects to comprise dramatic chapters in the Chicago story will be the Chicago tunnel, the stockyards, Hull House, Rush st., and St. Vincent's orphanage. Music is provided by a 17 piece orchestra conducted by Robert Trendler. A large dramatic cast is used, and scripts are written by Fran Coughlin and Jack La Frandre, who also will produce the show. John Mallow is narrator.

A simplified navigational radar designed especially for the merchant marine was announced yesterday by the Raytheon Manufacturing company, whose factory is at 7517 Clark st. The new gear has a detecting range of 15 to 20 miles for large surface objects, such as sizable ships, and four to six miles for such objects as bell buoys. The minimum range is 100 yards from the antenna. The developers assert the equipment has been simplified so that it can be operated satisfactorily by unskilled personnel. Complete installations will run under $10,000, it was stated.

Like most bandmasters who stand virtually all of their working hours, Kay Kyser has foot trouble. Courtney Barr Is Engaged to H. B. Clow III.

BY JUDITH CASS

CUPID is doing a rushing post-war business and hardly a day passes without bringing news of some engagement or wedding of interest. While close friends of Miss Courtney Barr and Pvt. Harry Beach Clow III. of the army air forces have known for a few weeks that they are engaged to be married, the formal announcement of their betrothal is being made today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Barr of Highland Park.

The announcement was delayed because of the marriage Oct. 20 of Pvt. Clow's father, Harry B. Clow Jr., and Miss Leonore Cudahy, and also because of the sudden death of Miss Barr's grandfather, John McCarthy of Evanston. Young Mr. Clow was here for his father's wedding, but since has returned to his post at Spence Field, Ga.

Pretty Miss Barr, who always is called Coco, has an older sister, Jane, who is a student at the University of Wisconsin, and a younger one, Meredith, who attends Highland Park High school, from which Miss Barr was graduated. Her fiance is a grandson of the senior Mrs. Clow of Lake Forest, with whom he had been living, and of Robert J. Dunham of Chicago. He attended Lake Forest academy and the Cate school in California. His mother is Mrs. John Rodman Hooker of Burlingame, Cal.

Other Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. S. Vance Dawson of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Mildred Elizabeth, to Lt. George B. Strother of the naval reserve, son of Mrs. Albert Tamm of Kansas City, Mo., and the late George B. Strother. Lt. Strother is being transferred to the 9th naval district after 18 months in the Pacific, where he was in command of an LCI. The wedding will take place at 3:30 p. m. Nov. 10 in the chapel of the First Methodist church in Evanston, with a reception following in the Michigan Shores club.

Lt. Wesley D. Hamilton, who will be one of Lt. Strother's ushers, and Mrs. Hamilton will entertain at dinner Tuesday in their home in Lake Bluff. Mrs. Tamm and Mrs. David Park, the wife of another usher, will give the bridal luncheon Nov. 9, and the bridal dinner is planned for that night, with Mr. and Mrs. Dawson as hosts.

Miss Dawson attended Lake Forest college. Lt. Strother was graduated from the University of Mis-

It is in a Chicago shop's new collection of floor length evening gowns. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo]

BY REA SEEGER

Appreciative women welcome the revival of real honest-to-goodness floor length, wide evening gowns, of handsome materials in super flattering colors. Temporarily banned during the war years, these long creations are especially tempting in the current collections. Taffeta, brocade, satin, and metallic weaves are dramatized in the width of the full skirts, in the distinctive contrast of insets of lace or filmly net, or because of the decorative contrast in the material itself—in stripes or dotted patterns, for example.

Black with brown, deep jewel tones of green, ruby, topaz, and amethyst are skilfully worked into gowns of exquisite beauty and harmony. Black satin vies with black velvet for other picture book gowns. Short and long sleeves are used with effective results, the short puffed ones to accent romantic off-the-shoulder effects, the long, fitted sleeves to dramatize handsome fabrics such as brocades, stiff faille, and velvet. Brand new sleeves with slashings show contrast puffings of chiffon, net, or lace.

Full long dresses for juniors are fashioned in demure shirtwaist models, with sleeves that end at the elbow or that are made in long lines ending in cuffs. Very fitted basque bodices define the tiny waistlines of other models and contrast the very wide full gathered skirts. For junior acclaim there are giddy multi stripes and vivid hues such as scarlet, kelly green, or bright gold in solid colors provide an interesting color range, along with the all time favorites in ink black. Evening gown collections for the juniors as well as the sophisticates are at a peak supply now, but going out fast. Shop while the new collections are here!

Capable Cast Rescues 'This Love of Ours'

"THIS LOVE OF OURS"

By Mae Tinée

It's definitely the woman who pays in "This Love of Ours."

Karin, an American actress, marries young Dr. Touzac in Paris. They have a child and a pleasant home, and Mrs. Touzac manages their small income like a wizard. On the baby's birthday papa goes shopping and hears two old hags gossiping, sees his wife enter a man's house, and that's all the evidence he needs. His wife is guilty and is given no opportunity to prove herself innocent.

In the cruel fashion of some quarreling parents, the child is a prize and a weapon, and papa steals off with her in the night. Karin searches vainly for them and finally returns to America to become a night club entertainer. The doctor and little Suzette also come here and are an overly devoted pair. The youngster has been told her mother is dead but is morbidly permitted to keep a shrine in her honor.

Mother and father eventually meet; he saves her life and asks her to return to his home, blandly introducing her as a new wife. Acquiescing only because she longs for the youngster, who quite naturally considers her an intruder and a rival, Karin finds herself in a most unhappy situation—until the problem is solved in highly melodramatic fashion.

Based on a play by Luigi Pirandello, the film is decidedly sticky at times, altho an able cast manages to carry it off fairly well. Miss Oberon suffers attractively, little Sue England as Suzette is a pathetic victim of parental inadequacy and stupidity, and Helen Thimig contributes exceptionally sensitive work as a sane and kindly governess. Claude Rains has another of his roles as a verbose, worldly-wise, and unhappy third wheel and does well with a part which gives him some incredibly pat lines.

Charles Korvin, who did good work in "Enter Arsene Lupin," has his first starring role as Dr. Touzac and is most attractive. He has looks and poise, and I hope he gets a more sympathetic role in his next film.

Giddy But Good Fun

"MEN IN HER DIARY"

Produced by Universal, directed by Charles Barton, featuring Peggy Ryan, Jon Hall, Louise Allbritton, Ernest Truex, Virginia Grey, William W. Terry, Alan Mowbray, Eric Blore, Samuel S. Hinds, Jacqueline de Wit, Maxie Rosenbloom, Sig Ruman, Addison Richards, Lorraine Miller, Robin Raymond, Minerva Uregal, Arthur Loft, Vivian Austin, and Lorin Raker. Also presented at the Palace.

This giddy comedy is pretty good fun. Peggy Ryan plays a plain Jane who invents romantic episodes about every man she encounters and records them luridly in her diary. When she is selected as the wealthy Randolph Glenning's secretary because his jealous wife judges her sufficiently unattractive to be safe, the boss becomes one of the leading characters in her pen and ink love life. You can imagine who finds the diary and the sort of divorce proceedings which result.

Miss Ryan is an effective love-sick youngster, Eric Blore contributes a very funny bit as a florist who takes his work to heart, Maxie Rosenbloom's court appearance is worth a laugh, and Alan Mowbray parodies a ham actor with great zest.

Style Show Displays Evening Wear Made of New Plastic Yarn

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. today demonstrated the versatility of its plastic yarn, velon, in a fashion show of evening apparel made from the synthetic which was used for war time military screening.

Rogers S. Firestone, manager of the new products division, said that during the war almost all velon production went into olive drab jungle screening in the Pacific. Now, he continued, the same monofilament is being used for colorful home screening, draperies, upholstery fabrics, and public transportation seat coverings.

"But with the perfection of a soft fashion fabric from a multifilament plastic yarn we feel we have started on the second lap of this great miracle," Firestone asserted. Describing the all-plastic fiber, he said that spots can be removed from it with a damp cloth and that the sun can't fade colors because they are incorporated into the fiber itself. "It is almost impossible to wear out the fabric," he added.

THE QUESTION

What do you think would induce more married women to return to home-making?

WHERE ASKED

River Forest State Bank building, River Forest.

THE ANSWERS

Nancy Wallace, bookkeeper, 1119 Washington blvd., Oak Park—I think those women who once stayed at home and had husbands who earned a living would be more than glad to get back to the home. With all the modern conveniences and appliances coming back on the market, domestic work should be more pleasant.

C. J. Christoffersen, cashier, 1915 74th av., Elmwood Park—After the last war women left the jobs they held during the absence of the men. Those things come about naturally. Women enjoy making a high salary and buying clothes, but most of them don't save their money anyway. They'd be just as well off home.

Mrs. R. C. Jamieson, savings teller, 203 Green st., Maywood—A greater percentage of married women would rather be at home if their husbands made enough money to support them. I know if it weren't for the shortage of help I'd rather be home. Husbands who make a living wage will bring it about quicker than anything.

E. F. Cronin, bank vice president, 9247 S. Bell av.—A decline in the demand for women automatically will force them back to their homes and home towns. Many won't want to go back because housework is certainly one of the hardest and most thankless jobs. But the majority of them will have no choice.

Mrs. E. Martin, cook, 235 S. Marion st., Oak Park—If I had a husband I'd prefer to stay home and keep house. The home is one of the most vital institutions in the country and to have a successful home some one must take care of it and devote full time to that job. This job is suited to a woman, so she should do it.

Hospitals Seek Nurses to Meet Civilian Need

BY GLADYS PRIDDY

Patients in civilian hospitals must recover on war rationed care inasmuch as the nursing shortage persists—even tho the emergency for which nurses were recruited into military service is over. In fact, cessation of hostilities actually has aggravated the shortage somewhat since married nurses who answered the civilian hospital call are returning to private life, in many cases to reëstablish homes for husbands coming back from military service.

The nation-wide requirement in civilian hospitals is estimated at 32,000 graduate nurses to help meet the greatest patient load in history, according to the American Hospital association. A survey in Chicago yesterday disclosed that the A. H. A. is hardly overstating the case.

There were 537 patients in St. Luke's hospital yesterday, 100 more than on the same day two years ago. In contrast, 41 general duty nurses were on hand to do the work of the 120 the hospital should have. Six graduates are doing part time duty at St. Luke's. The school of nursing enrollment has been increased, but since graduate nurses must supervise students the help from that source is limited.

Presbyterian hospital reported 30 general duty nurses as compared with the 100 it normally employs. There are 305 students in the school of nursing, but 66 of those entered this fall and are not yet working in the hospital. The reduced staff is looking after more patients. Presbyterian had 327 patients on Sept. 30, 1941, and 393 on Sept. 30, 1945. Care was given for 11,345 patient days last September compared to 10,801 patient days in September, 1944.

Miss Mary I. Bogardus, director of nursing service at the University of Chicago clinic, said: "We plan on a staff of 145 nurses for our patient load. We have about 90." She said that the clinic was receiving applications from young women just finished their training, but about as many married nurses are leaving to join their husbands. Often the reunion of couples separated by the war means moving to new areas.

Cook County hospital has one-half the nurses needed, Miss Edna Newman, director of the school of nursing states. There are nearly 100 wards and fewer than 150 general duty graduate nurses working. The hospital is keeping all senior students who wish to stay. They used to go into the army.

Prospects of help from nurses being separated from military service could be predicted only in terms of the rate of their departure from the service. So far, there are no statistics as to what percentage of them will go into the civilian hospitals. Army nurses were being relieved of duty at the rate of 40 a day at Fort Sheridan in October. This compared with 281 let out for the whole month of September.

"Pelleas and Melisande" One of Season's Best Reasons for Going to the Opera

With the possible exception of Bruno Walter's "La Forza del Destino," which I had the misfortune to miss at its first performance, last night's "Pelléas and Mélisande" was the season's most persuasive reason, so far, for going to the opera. It was a pity so many empty seats haunted so enthralling a performance, but Debussy's opera was restored only last season after long absence, for it disappeared from our midst with Mary Garden. Many of the older operagoers turned out to see it, and I think the younger ones would love it if it came their way, particularly the younger ones captivated by the fluid line and vivid mime of brilliant ballet. I hope some of them take a chance on the repetition, remembering that the entr'acte music is one of opera's major enchantments, not to be broken into bits by conversation or applause.

For that matter, there was little of either once the performance got under way and began to wrap the audience in its curious spell, as frail and yet as tenuous as a cobweb. Debussy's score is a mesmerizing experience, intangible, insubstantial yet real as a dream from which waking comes as a shock. It is a thing all air, and water, and light, and shadow, with an inexplicable quality of jewels caught under water, where they catch strange colors. In its spell Maeterlinck's story takes on an air of bewitchment, of some misty legend that flames again to life in the telling.

To give such an opera ideal performance is perhaps beyond the resources of any company, tho in the days of Mary Garden we did not think so. But when you try to recall why her Mélisande was so wonderful, what can you remember? Pale, flowing hair, a voice as strange as the words it sang, a curious stillness, an affinity with the water she could not escape, a spiritual elusiveness that easily could have driven Golaud to murder.

Comparatively, I can find no other Mélisande, but Bidu Sayao's is exquisite in its way. She has the size, the delicacy of movement, the limpid grace of voice, and a gentle aloofness that takes her far. To me her first scene is immeasurably more effective than last year, with a new air of water witch about it, and her submission to Golaud's drubbing has an eerie quality of something from another world that doesn't much care what happens in this one. But the thrill is still missing from the balcony scene. Not yet have Miss Sayao and Mr. Singher solved the handling of that cascading hair that is Debussy's operatic equivalent of his song, "La Chevelure."

But Mr. Singher's Pelléas is otherwise such perfection we should be eternally grateful to Edward Johnson for bribing him to sing the role with gifts of his own superb costumes, for, as you know, the Basque baritone always sang Golaud at home. This way we have our cake and eat it, too, for who would willingly remove Lawrence Tibbett from that role of the husband who in his jealousy resembles a French Boris Godounoff, and whose fury rises to high tragedy in a blazing scene climaxed with Arkel's compassionate curtain line, "If I were God, I would have pity on the hearts of men."

Mr. Moscona was a majestic Arkel, doing that line full justice, and Alice Tate was a particularly child-like Yniold. Miss Doe sang the letter Maggie Teyte, a famous Mélisande of older days, who now sings in recital, and Eugene Goossens did some wonders with a willing orchestra.

A Delicious Soup Highlights Dinner

The tantalizing aroma of a bowl of steaming soup adds elegance and interest to the simplest meal. You can prepare this "extra frill" in very little time now that delicious broth can be made almost instantaneously. And what a cozy warm feeling a bowl of hot soup gives on chilly nights. Serving soup every night as a first course is an excellent habit to form.

Clear Tomato Soup . . . adds warmth on chilly nights

Simmer 10 to 15 minutes
1½ cups tomatoes
2 tbsp. chopped onion
¼ cup diced celery
Put through a sieve.
Add 5 cups boiling water
¼ cup cooked rice
(add) 1½ tsp. sugar (optional)
3 tsp. WILSON'S B-V dissolved in a small amount of the hot liquid.

Garnish: salted whipped cream sprinkled with shredded almonds. Serves 6.

A Miracle Worker

is Wilson's B-V. Keep it handy as your salt and pepper to add extra flavor interest to all your gravies and soups. A teaspoonful of B-V in a cupful of hot water makes the most delicious bouillon you've ever tasted. Nutritious, too, because it's made from meat broth, concentrated.

What to Have For Dinner?

With this quick tomato-rice soup serve a thick slice of Wilson's Certified Tender Made Ham (isn't it grand to welcome it back?), baked stuffed potatoes (a generous cube of Wilson's Clear Brook Butter or Certified Margarine adds to their deliciousness), broccoli with Hollandaise sauce and a fresh fruit salad. While the oven is hot bake a quick spice cake for dessert, baked custard for lunch.

Time Savers

Mix cake batter in the morning, pour in pan, cover tightly and store in refrigerator for baking while you are getting dinner. Delicious served warm with whipped cream or a broiled icing. Do the same with baking powder biscuits

Yours for easier cooking,

INSTALMENT XLVI.

GUILTY

Mr. Izenga noticed with satisfaction the movement of a portiere. There was no wind. He dug his gun deeper into Ridge's ribs. "It's loaded now, I assure you." His voice was deadly. "Get back. I mean it. Who do you suppose fired that shot you just heard?"

Ridge choked. "You . . . you little beast? You fired at Huntley? You tried to kill him? Get out of my way till I see if he's hurt. If he is—"

"O cut it, Ridge. I fired up into the air, and that was my voice you heard."

Ridge Dawson glared down at him, breathing audibly. "Are you crazy?"

"No. I just wanted to prove to myself that you really had a father's instincts."

Ridge backed away in sheer stupefaction. "Good God, Cornelius, you don't . . . you can't know . . ."

"That Huntley is your son?" Mr. Izenga said. "Certainly I know it. Alicia came to me when she knew a child was on the way. She was terrified. She wanted to know what to do. I advised her. Do nothing. She was afraid her husband would suspect it wasn't his. He never found out the truth, poor fellow. Even Huntley doesn't know unless you told him."

"Letty . . . did she know?" he whispered.

"Not from me."

"You are the only person who knows then. If anything should happen to you . . . Huntley would be safe . . . forever." He took a step forward.

Mr. Izenga said, "I should think three murders would be enough for you, Ridge."

"Good God, Cornelius . . . are you mad? You can't honestly believe I'm guilty."

"Do you suppose I don't know who hit me over the head outside your apartment building? You put some kind of dummy head out of the window to cover the time you were running up the back stairs. Then you drew it in and put out your own head."

"Very interesting. Too bad it's not true."

"Men should never use perfume," Mr. Izenga said. "It was the whiff of that hair oil you use that gave me the right clew."

"You liar," Ridge laughed roughly. "Don't think I'm going to crack up and entertain you with the tale of my exploits. I'm not going to sanctify your wild guesses by confessing."

"I only want to know one thing," Mr. Izenga said. "When you attacked Letty the second time did she know who was killing her? Did she know it was her brother to whom she had been so kind and generous?"

"That's enough of that," Ridge snapped.

"Did she know, lying there in the dark that it was your hands around her throat? Did she say your name . . ."

"What is this supposed to be? A little torture party of your own?"

"Torture because it's true. She did know, didn't she? She spoke your name."

A tormented choking cry came from Dawson's throat.

"Tell me," Izenga demanded. "It's true, isn't it?"

"You'll die in torment," Ridge sneered, "not knowing."

Mr. Izenga's famous smile stung Ridge. "You surely don't think I need to be told do you? You and Letty staged that silly, stupid farce. It had to be some one close to her. Some one she trusted, poor girl. Her own brother. And then you murdered her . . . you dirty rat. The second night . . . it was real. And she knew . . . and you knew she knew . . . and it tortures you . . ."

"You nosy soul! You've got yourself one too many secrets now."

Even as he jumped and caught Mr. Izenga by the throat, there were men on him from the dark porch and from hiding places in the unlighted rooms. But they weren't needed. Mr. Izenga's gun had gone off at the beginning. And its bullet had found the right place.

They carried Ridge away, but Mr. Izenga knew it was not going to be any use to get a doctor. French was beside him, very stern.

"Was that necessary, Mr. Izenga? That wasn't in our plans."

"Would you rather he'd have choked me?"

"We were right there, as you know."

"Self preservation is a powerful instinct. I have plenty of witnesses, including yourself. There was no time to think it over."

Mr. Izenga and the lieutenant measured glances for a few portentous moments.

"I'm sorry to disappoint you," he said. "But the state is saved an expensive trial and the county a great deal of horrid slander. And you haven't forgotten your promise to keep any secrets that could be suppressed. Huntley's for instance. No good can come of dragging that out."

"Yes, I see no need of publicizing that." French looked tired. "Of course I appreciate the way you got Ridge Dawson to spend the night here, and all your other help."

"Well, I knew you wanted to give him a chance to attack Bennet. I wasn't sure why. But it seemed easier if he was on the premises. But when I went into his room he was in bed asleep."

"Yes. He probably trusted that glass of poisoned whisky he took Bennet to do the trick. We had to get him up again."

"O, so you staged those shots and racket downstairs?" Mr. Izenga nodded. "I wasn't at all sure what was going on. If I could have been told more of the plans . . ."

"But I didn't have any exact plans. We stirred up the hornets' nest and hoped for the worst. We expected Ridge to look into Bennet's room and see he hadn't drunk the whisky . . . and perhaps try to throttle him."

"Not with a trooper hidden in the closet."

"And instead he tried to throttle me," Mr. Izenga said. "And I wasn't having any. But there's one thing still missing. We don't know Ridge's motive for killing his sister. There's something missing in the picture."

A trooper from the library down the hall where Ridge had been carried, beckoned the lieutenant.

French said, "That's right, Mr. Izenga, see what you can dig up, will you?"

French disappeared down the hall.

Mr. Izenga, with a shudder, laid down his gun. His mind was busy with what French had said. Mr. Izenga had known Ridge Dawson many, many years. He knew him for a charter member of the Me-First society.

There was no doubt Ridge had many of a father's feelings for Huntley. He had had Huntley dine with him the night Lucianna was killed as much to provide the boy with an alibi as for his own sake. But how had he managed to kill Lucianna under those circumstances? Surely Huntley had not been persuaded to lie about it.

Toby Newcomb came out of the library. He gave Mr. Izenga an odd smile. Almost chummy. Mr. Izenga cried, "Wait," and caught Toby by the left arm. Toby jerked angrily away.

"Where's Erica?" Mr. Izenga demanded.

Casual Wear Is Suitable for a Movie Date

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"The fellow I've been wanting to date for months has finally asked me out. We're to go to a movie next Friday night, doubling with another fellow and girl. I've been wondering whether or not a movie date calls for high heels, or whether saddle shoes would be too casual. How 'bout that?"

on the SOLID side

Unless it's for a very special movie at a large, uptown theater, saddle shoes and socks, worn with a sweater and skirt or sport dress, would not be too casual an outfit. Perhaps you'd better check with the other fellow's date to find out what she's wearing. But for a neighborhood theater date, flats are acceptable. When the fellow asked you for the date, he didn't expect you to get duked out to match the movie's star!

"I dated a fellow two years older than I during the summer, while he was staying in our town. He went back home when school started, and we've been corresponding regularly since. He lives in a college town, and this week I received a letter from him, and one from his mother, asking me to come for a week-end for one of the football games. They want me to stay at their home, of course, and suggested that I bring a girl friend along. But my mother says I can't go. Who's right?"

The quotation has been revised to read "The mother is always right" and it holds in this case. Altho it would be permissible for you to go for the week-end, accompanied by a friend, your mother's disapproval cancels the deal. She undoubtedly has a good reason for not allowing the visit; either she feels that you don't know the boy or his family well enough, or she doesn't think you are old enough to make week-end trips to visit a fellow. So tell the boy and his mother you're sorry [and you are] and hope for better luck when the football season rolls round next year.

Child Resents Parent Who Opens Mail

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Your child and his, or her, mail was the subject of yesterday's column, touched on, however, in a rather general way. Today's presents a somewhat different situation of what we might call "mail eavesdropping."

An unsigned letter says:

"My daughter is 15½. Her best friend has gone to live in another city and they are carrying on a lively correspondence.

"Up to now I have always read my daughter's letters and she has never minded. But now she objects, even tho we are the best of friends. What hurts me is that now they write each other in a code, so I can't understand it. Do you think my daughter is doing the right thing?"

Any mother who looks back to her own girlhood knows that when you are in your middle teens you say things and write things to a contemporary that you would never write or say to even your most intimate grownup. For one reason if for no other, namely, that you know it would seem silly to them.

What it is often hard for a mother—or a father, for that matter—to accept, if they have been "pals" to their children is this: that no matter how free, even perfect, their relationship may have been they cannot fulfill every human need for their child; that the companionship of another child [or of another young person] affords a something, a satisfaction of its own which no adult can supply.

It may be giggles, or waves of laughter, or rough and tumble, or seeing thru a child's eyes; or later, the dreams and thoughts and experiences and "crushes" of adolescence which only their peers can share.

So it is quite natural for this teen-age girl to resent her letters being opened and read by her mother without her permission. She shouldn't feel compelled to share her thoughts and feelings and those of her friend—especially when the latter has written only for the eyes of "Dear Jane."

This mother will win back her daughter's confidence and respect if she will show hers by admitting herself in the wrong.

Do you remember the letters you used to write to your best friend when you were about this age?

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Why Women Are Absent

Absenteeism—that headache to Mr. Employer—can be traced to clear cut causes, according to a study made in Great Britain.

Figures compiled in a six month study of 20,000 women workers, show a loss of 8 per cent of the total work days thru illness. Married women are ill more than single women, with a 65 per cent higher sickness rate. Women ranging in age from 30 to 50 are absent more days than those in other age groups; employes who have held their positions two to three years have fewer but longer illnesses than employes who have worked a shorter time. White collar girls in clerical jobs have the lowest absenteeism record [as against women in industrial jobs]. And — you guessed it—colds account for the greatest number of absences.

Several conclusions can be drawn which might apply to any group of business girls. Employes who have been with a firm any length of time develop a sense of responsibility; they tend to override small illnesses, and when they are not able to report for work they generally are ill enough to be absent a fairly long time. Married women with the strains and stresses of a household to shoulder often lack sufficient rest to weather colds and other ailments; hence, their absenteeism rate is high.

On the Memo Pad

One of the largest manufacturers of typewriters is predicting it will take four years with a production 35 per cent above average to put new typewriters on your desks .... There's room for more girls in the sky. Thirty-five Chicago girls are being sought by United Air lines as stewardesses. A call to this desk will tell you where the interviews are held and the qualifications .... And, speaking of air lines, one of the major companies is considering a "baby special," with stewardesses trained in infant care—a sort of "stork flight," if you please ....

Several W. C. G.s think "Best regards" hackneyed for a business letter. But what is a good substitute? .... And a reader, Grace G., considers the idea of "Nosey for vice-president simply atomic." He could run on the platform—"Your business is my business," says Nosey's well-wisher.

Wedding News

Now back from a wedding trip to Texas and getting settled in their home in E. Scott st., William J. Caveney and the former Lorraine Feagin are receiving the best wishes of their friends on their marriage Sept. 19 in Chicago. The bride, a Texan, has a number of friends here as she was stationed in Chicago until recently as a lieutenant in the WAVES. She now is on terminal leave following three and a half years of service.

Before entering the WAVES the former Miss Feagin was a practicing member of the Texas bar for 11 years and served as administrative assistant for the United States district attorney's office in the northern circuit of Texas. She was graduated from the University of Texas and from its law school. Mr. Caveney, who has been a widower for 15 years, has two daughters, Mrs. Paul L. Poole of Lake View av. and Mrs. Harry W. Lewis of Eagle, Colo.

The dinner party which Mr. and Mrs. Gordon E. Taylor of Winnetka will give Saturday night in the Homestead in Evanston will be a bridal dinner for their daughter, Miss Virginia Calvert Taylor, and Capt. William MacDonald Milne Jr. of the marine corps reserve, who will be married in a small ceremony at 8:30 p. m. Monday in the chapel of Evanston's First Methodist church. The wedding plans were completed when Capt. Milne returned 10 days ago from the Pacific after more than 35 months overseas. He served on Saipan, Tinian, and Okinawa, and expects to receive his discharge soon. Capt. Milne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milne of Evanston, and his fiancée were graduated from Northwestern university.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	5 clubs	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead, king of spades.

I shall risk today a somewhat premature selection of my choice for the hand of the year. It appeals to me because, in much the fashion of the hand discussed yesterday, it involves perfect technique and at the same time capitalizes on human frailty.

The only thing that mars this offering as a perfect piece of workmanship is South's final bid. It seems to me he might better have called six no trump.

The king of spades was led and taken by the ace. The king of clubs revealed the shocking news and declarer abandoned trumps to cash the three top hearts. He then cashed three top diamonds, in the meantime discarding two spades from dummy. The jack of diamonds was then led with the hope that East would have to follow. This would bring him down to nothing but clubs and he would be obliged to ruff his partner's good spade trick and lead into dummy's tenace position in trumps, permitting declarer to take the balance of the tricks.

Declarer started to reach for a spade out of dummy, but paused in time to reconsider. If East's 13th card happens to be a heart [12 of his cards are already known, he has five clubs, has followed three times in each of the red suits, and once in spades] the hand can be made by ruffing this trick with the queen of clubs. A spade will then be led and East with nothing but trumps will be forced to ruff and give declarer the balance. If East's unknown card is a spade, he might make the mistake of letting it go.

That is just what happened. When the jack of diamonds was ruffed with the queen, east hoarding his trumps, disposed of the five of spades. The eight of spades was led from dummy. East had to ruff and could return nothing but a club. When declarer ruffed with the queen of clubs East could have defeated the contract by underruffing with the three of clubs and he should have.

Men's Clothes Supply Is Short —and Shrinking

The American male won't be reduced to going about in a barrel, but his clothes are likely to be a bit seedy for a long time, representatives of leading Chicago men's stores said yesterday.

White shirts are only a dim memory. Underwear is a rare and unusual item. Pajamas are scarce. Suits are available, but there isn't much choice. Shoes are far from plentiful.

Most stores agreed the condition is likely to get worse before it gets better, and that there isn't much hope for plentiful supplies until next spring, at the earliest.

"Our stocks are fairly good at present," said one store manager. "But don't mention our name, or we'd have a big run and everything would be cleaned out in a few days."

A buyer for a chain of stores said his company has virtually no reserve stocks of men's furnishings. Supplies come in fairly regularly, but they are sold quickly, altho the "one to a customer" rule applies on scarce items.

Men's suits are so scarce that some stores are selling blue-black naval officers' uniforms, with some alterations and without brass buttons, to civilian buyers.

A large loop store reported one bright spot in the suit market. Imported cloth is beginning to arrive, including Scotch plaids and tweeds. Imported worsted materials also are expected to arrive soon.

Store managers agreed that the end of shoe rationing would have little effect. Many men still have two or three shoe ration coupons because they have been unable to use them, one manager said.

Beginning Nov. 5 most work clothes made of denim will cost more at retail, the OPA in Washington said yesterday. The price boost will result from increases granted to mills and garment manufacturers under the Bankhead cotton amendment. The higher retail prices are expected to affect about 75 per cent of the volume of denim work clothes.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 31—Louis Calhern will do "The Magnificent Yankee" for Arthur Hopkins in New York, and Lillian—not Dorothy—Gish is being paged for the role opposite him. You must know by now it's the story of Oliver Wendell Holmes. . . . Ezra Stone not only got his old radio job back, but his family made him a gift of a 75 acre farm outside New York. . . . Because the Andrews Sisters have rhythm, Bill Robinson is teaching them to tap dance. . . . Leonard Sues signed a radio contract as hot as his trumpet. . . . Tony Veiller, writing son of Bayard, will marry Ann Hyland when her divorce is final. . . . Olivia De Havilland is in Del Monte with a bad case of bronchitis. . . . Mrs. Duncan McMartin is all over Mexico City. Guess her divorce is going thru down there. . . . Bonita Granville meant it when she said she was sick of sticky heroines, so she's playing a lady of the evening and a murderess in "Glamour Girl." . . . Buddy De Sylva is much better, but even so, he won't return to strenuous picture production until spring.

Giddy-Up; Time to Get Going

Marriage certainly helped Mona Freeman, 'cause Paramount gave her the lead in "Black Beauty," which means that in three weeks she'll have to learn to ride a horse. She might get Alan Ladd to teach her. He's become an expert since he trained for his picture, "California," which he ain't a-gonna do. . . . Bill Sloan put up with me 56 straight weeks—he timed my radio show—so you know what a nice fellow he is. He'll marry lovely Genevieve Clark of Oklahoma City, Okla., at the end of January. She has a brother in the navy, and another, Robert, who acts at R. K. O. But Genevieve has no desire to be anything other than Mrs. Bill Sloan. . . . Jim Moran, the fabulous fellow who actually took a bull into a china closet and found a needle in a haystack, now yearns to go south and learn who fired the last shot in the Civil war. I'll bet that guy could tell you what "Mildred Pierce" did.

A Note to Busybodies

I wonder why certain people here keep trying to separate Carlton Alsop and Martha Scott. There is no separation except a distance of 3,000 miles. In a wire from Martha to Carlton she said, "Let's just ignore all these rumors and not suspect each other. We knew it would happen when you took a job as producer at Metro and I signed up to stay in 'Voice of the Turtle' back here till June." As Alsop told me, "We've got a 3½ year old son to raise. We love him. What are we going to do—cut him in two just to please busybodies?" . . . I wonder how "Blithe Spirit" will go over in Brooklyn. Post 573 of the American Legion went on record Oct. 18, 1945, after a unanimous vote to boycott all Noel Coward's plays and motion pictures because of his attack on Brooklyn soldiers. The boys in post 573 say, "The uncalled for remarks by a foreigner earning money from the American public will never be forgiven by this post!" . . . Bob Cummings, his brother, and their wives returned from an eastern vacation in Bob's private plane, a twin-engine job. After a Paramount press party in New York they got away for four weeks of real vacation, flying all over the country.

Third Time's a Charm

For the third time in three years Sister Elizabeth Kenny arrived here, was greeted with open arms by Rosalind Russell, with camera accompaniment. Roz will play Sister Kenny on the screen. This time I think she'll really do it. . . . If the bull which Esther Williams is going to fight in "Fiesta in Mexico" has been cut out of the picture, Metro doesn't know anything about it. But there are so many in this town tossing the bull, mix-ups are bound to happen. . . . Johnny Weissmuller gets a normal haircut for "Swamp Fire." Isn't he afraid he'll get pneumonia?

Thru the Looking Glass

We think many mothers who are having trouble impressing the importance of good grooming and cleanliness on their young daughters might take a leaf from the woman we overheard chatting with her teen-age daughter on the bus. The child was describing something and in so doing held up her hands to indicate the size of an object. Her mother listened and commented and then remarked how pretty the youngster's hands were and how nice her nails looked. The compliment was so well put that you could hardly detect the admonition to keep them looking that way always instead of only occasionally.

Judging from our mail, more than one mother is having a hard struggle trying to teach her daughter to be neat about her person and that lipstick and nail polish won't cover up carelessness. Constant nagging makes it a contest of wills when it should be a smooth case of undetected coaching and unconscious forming of good habits.

No adult would appreciate being told that her shoes look a sight or that her nails look as if she'd been digging potatoes, and it certainly isn't likely to establish friendly relations with a sensitive teen-ager. A gentle steer in the right direction with a well put compliment when the youngster has made an effort to spruce up will work wonders in developing pride in her looks. She'll be aware that she has a choice of good or bad appearance and will be ashamed to let herself become slovenly. A sincere remark about the prettiness of a crisp hairbow or the nice look of the leather in freshly polished shoes will get the point over if it isn't tainted with sarcasm that makes the youngster feel she's being badgered.

Make your teen-ager feel she's achieving results and praise each new move forward. Encourage her in her efforts of getting the problem of keeping herself scrubbed and brushed and attractive, under control. Don't spoil it all by ignoring the progress and picking out the remaining flaws.

LOUISE DOOLEY.

MAJORS DRAFT PLAYERS FROM MINORS TODAY

Chandler Presides at Chicago Meet

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The big league magnates, not all of them, of course, but at least a fair representation, will gather in the Chicago office of the baseball commissioner at 2 p. m. today for the purpose of picking off minor league talent. Whether there actually is talent available is questionable, but anyway it is going to be the annual draft session in which the majors pluck from the class AA minors at $7,500 per head down to $2,000 for the class D grade of ivory.

It will be the first draft meeting for Al B. Chandler, the new commissioner, but because of the scarcity of worth while athletes more than a few of his employers may elect to stay at home. Up to last night only one club had revealed its plans—Washington announcing that it would not be represented, but that it had drafting plans which would be looked after by the commissioner's secretary.

A's Have First Choice

Under the rotation system governing the player selection, first choice at today's meeting will go to the American league's eighth place club, namely and as usual the Athletics. The Phillies, tail enders in the National, will have second choice, and so on back and forth between the leagues until the Cubs — National league first placers — are reached. This process is repeated until the club can draft no further because of reaching the player limit or there is no desire for additional selection.

The breaking up of the meeting scheduled for today doesn't necessarily mean the drafting has been completed. The rules, being what they are, permit a club to put in additional drafts up to midnight of Nov. 4, telegraphic advice to the commissioner's office being sufficient. In fact the entire draft could be conducted in this fashion but the magnates, even when travel is tough, seem to delight in making themselves uncomfortable.

Novikoff Available

Among the hundreds upon hundreds eligible for plucking are a number of former major leaguers, but most of them, now that men are returning from service, have lost their attractiveness. For instance, there's Lou Novikoff, the ex-Cub slugger who didn't slug; Zeke Bonura, Ira Hutchinson, John Whitehead of White Sox fame, Ewald Pyle, and Larry Rosenthal.

Yes, and Frank Demaree, who was a Cub fly chaser a good many seasons ago, can be had for $7,500 from the Portland [Ore.] club. The same club has such other draft eligibles as Jake Mooty, Ad Liska, Marvin Owen, and Billy Holm.

Tomorrow the members of a committee delegated to make suggestions as to how baseball can be promoted the length and breadth of the land will meet here. The proposal has been made that $50,000 be appropriated, two-fifths of it to come from the minor leagues—if the minor leagues prove willing to take the tap.

HUNTERS, DON'T EXPECT BIGGER SHELL SUPPLY!

East Alton, Ill., Oct. 31 (AP)—If you don't already have your shells for this season, don't get too excited over the lifting of all government restrictions on ammunition.

According to the fellows who make those shells—or at least a good part of them—it won't be possible to produce many more for immediate use than would have been, anyway.

A spokesman for the Oil Industries, Inc., which controls two of the largest producers of civilian ammunition—Western A Cartridge and Winchester—puts it this way:

Since Aug. 31 they have been permitted to make just as much civilian ammunition as possible. The restrictions were on distribution and retail sales. Hunters were on the preferred quota list.

The view of the oil company is that the war production board action which releases all controls as of today merely restores the whole manufacturing, distribution, and retail selling cycle to the industry.

RICHARDS FIRST BRITISH RIDER TO WIN 3,000 RACES

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 31 (AP)—Gordon Richards, 41, rode his 3,000th winner today and became the first British jockey to accomplish the feat. Number 3,000 was achieved aboard Exotic in the Icklingham stakes. It was Richards' 104th winner this season.

LONGDEN HAS 2,417

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—The American jockey closest to the mark of 3,000 winners set today by Gordon Richards is Johnny Longden, who has booted 2,417 winners home, according to the latest records. He is followed by Johnny Adams with 1,867 winners and Al Robertson with 1,865.

NAVY OFFICIAL ADMITS TEAM MORALE SHAKY

Critics Say Duden Beat Penn

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 31 (AP)—Critics attribute Navy's poor and indifferent play this fall on the gridiron to low morale and discontent in the football ranks today and assert without qualification that Dick Duden should get all the credit if the midshipmen pull together against Notre Dame in Cleveland Saturday with rejuvenated spirit.

Growing reports of difficulties causing the team to perform dispiritedly and squeak thru to victories which should have been easy were confirmed by Capt. C. O. Humphreys, navy director of athletics.

"We have known there has been something wrong," Humphreys said, "and we have been trying to put a finger on it, but we haven't been able to determine whether the trouble was with direction of the team, among the players or what. We have heard sharp criticism and we know the squad has not lived up to potentialities or expectations."

"Our Morale High"—Hagberg

Commenting on recent criticism of Navy's field appearances, Comdr. Oscar E. Hagberg, head Navy football coach, said:

"After the Penn game our morale is high and it gets higher as the Notre Dame battle approaches.

"We should be ready for one of our best efforts Saturday. The midshipmen are confident they are going to hit their stride, and when they do they are going to look like a real team."

A Baltimore News-Post sports writer is quoted in an article today: "How does Hagberg feel about the T formation for next year with most of his men returning? 'Well, I won't be here next year,' explained Swede. 'I'll be going out, so I can't answer that. My job is to bring the boys along for this season's finish.'"

Have "Don't Care Attitude"

A member of the squad said that "the team never has played the game the fellows wanted to play. The result has been a don't-care attitude and we've managed to win thru individual brilliance displayed at just the right time."

Another source connected with the team said "dissension and discontent" had reached a stage that some of the lower-classmen players were considering resigning from the academy within the not-too-distant future. This source said that "Plebes, for instance, lead a dog's life down here and definitely are dissatisfied."

After Navy had sputtered ineffectually to a 20 to 6 victory over Georgia Tech, one man associated for years with academy affairs said that "This team is poorly prepared for a big time schedule, poorer than any Navy team I have seen as to precision, attack, and spirit. Definitely something is wrong and we have a right to expect more from the fine players."

Duden Saves Penn Game

Duden, left end and captain, was given full credit for the lift in morale and for the explosive drive that pulled the Penn game out of the fire after the Middies trailed with only eight minutes left. Teammates told this story of how Duden took full command and directed the operations that inspired Navy to score two touchdowns in that time against Penn.

Duden called the Middies together in a huddle during a time out, gave them a pep talk, and asked them if they wanted to beat Penn. Assured, he said that time was running out and that as captain he would take full command and direct play.

Offers Hoernschemeyer Credit

"If things don't work out," he was quoted, "then I'll take the rap and full responsibility. If we win, Bob [Hoernschmeyer], you're quarter back and you can have the credit."

Teammates said that Duden then began improvising Navy's attack, inspiring confidence that plays would work. A basketball player, he directed Hoernschemeyer to pass to him at a certain spot. The play clicked for 25 yards. Again he gave directions and Hoernschemeyer threw a bull's-eye pass to Duden, who scored.

With a minute and a half left, Navy again got the ball on its 20 yard line. Duden directed a series of plays, using Tony Minisi and Pete Williams to effect long gains, with Hoernschemeyer handling the ball perfectly. Another pass, a forward-lateral, put Navy on Penn's 22.

Duden told Minisi where to go and Hoernschemeyer where to throw, acting himself as a decoy. The pass clicked for the winning touchdown with 25 seconds left.

Devore Legends Inspire Notre Dame's '45 Eleven

BY DAVID CONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 31—Because a smiling Irish lad from New Jersey would rather play football than do anything else, the foundation for Notre Dame's current undefeated eleven was built 15 years ago on the fourth floor of the university administration building.

Hugh Devore

The Irish lad, with grandparents from Counties Donegal and Limerick, was Hugh John Devore. In 1931 and 1932 he was a hard charging end; in 1933, with Tom [Kitty] Gorman, he was co-captain of the Irish and received All-American mention.

Today, shy and unassuming, teacher of the talents he mastered, Devore is acting head coach at Notre Dame. On a campus where often have been repeated the legends of Devore, the player, similar discussion is made of Devore, the coach, producer of an eleven victorious in five straight games and ranked second in the nation. He's the coach for whom the team stopped its singing after the Pittsburgh victory to exclaim, "Gosh, we forgot something. Nine cheers for Devore."

Devore is a Notre Dame man who relishes ice cream in the cafeteria, shyly asks an attendant if it would be too much bother to ask for a second cup of coffee, and then tells of the reserve back who threw 62 passes in a B team game.

Routs Staff Early

Modestly, Devore lives in a student residence room and routs his staff from bed each morning in time to hear mass. Openly, he's proud of the inspired performances of a team that so far has distinguished itself with its sportsmanship and determination.

A three sport star at St. Benedict's [N. J.] High school, Devore appeared in South Bend in 1930 and soon learned that his tasks as a freshman football player included scrimmage against a varsity ranked among Notre Dame's greatest. So unawed was the youth that, covering a punt one afternoon, he savagely tackled the receiver, Frank Carideo, All-American quarter back. The tackle must have jarred the entire campus. Knute Rockne ascertained the freshman end's name and called him to the sidelines.

"A nice play, Devore," Rock snapped, "but at Notre Dame we tackle them, not murder them!"

Practiced in Residence Quarters

The daily sessions on Cartier field never satisfied Devore's desire for perfection. Each evening, until lights were turned out, Hugh and a teammate practiced charging and blocking in the administration building residence quarters. It was in these practices that Hugh developed the hard hitting tactics which made him an outstanding end.

His greatest playing performance is supposed to have been against Pittsburgh, when he took out three Panthers with one block. Another time, he played against Army with a broken hand and caught a touchdown pass.

On that football foundation gained in the residence hall Hugh added experience received under Rockne and Hunk Anderson; as end coach at Fordham under Sleepy Jim Crowley and a then promising line coach, Frank Leahy, the navy lieutenant whose place at Notre Dame Devore now is holding.

After serving as a frosh coach in 1934, Devore left Notre Dame. Leahy brought him back as end coach in 1943. In March, 1945, Devore telephoned his wife and four children in New Jersey to tell them "Notre Dame has made me head coach until Frank Leahy returns."

Tells of Scouting Days

Devore likes to tell of the three years he scouted Pittsburgh for Fordham, all three meetings between the schools ending in scoreless ties, and of 1942, when as an assistant at four times defeated Holy Cross he scouted an undefeated Boston college team that was boomed as one of the greatest of all times. The result of that game is legend: Holy Cross, 55; Boston college, 12.

Lately, Devore has been planning for the difficult assignments against Navy, which the Irish meet Saturday, and Army, 59 to 0 victor last year, to be played in New York the following week. Hughie concedes that the outcome of these games has every one guessing except, perhaps, those three Pitt Panthers, who still are trying to figure just what hit them that autumn afternoon more than 12 years ago.

ROOM SHORTAGE NO BAR TO MEET, MILLS ASSERTS

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 31 [Special]—A housing shortage in Champaign and Urbana cannot be given legitimately as the reason for eliminating a 16 team state high school basketball tournament, Athletic Director Doug Mills of the University of Illinois, said today.

"We found out last week-end in connection with the Illinois homecoming," said Mills, "that 20,000 visitors could remain overnight. Many townspeople, who cannot rent a room to a student for nine or 10 months, are willing to provide housing for a few days."

Mills also said that a general order from the university president's office, issued before the state high school principals suggested cutting the tourney finals field to four teams on Oct. 17, was not aimed at cutting down the tournament. The order asked deans and athletic heads not to arrange meetings that would keep large groups on the campus over night.

BEARS TO START GENE RONZANI IN LUCKMAN'S SPOT

Swisher's Back

BOBBY SWISHER, one of the Chicago Bears' pre-war star half backs, yesterday rejoined the Bears after his discharge from the navy. Swisher, former Northwestern player, left the Bears for the navy after the 1941 season. Swisher, 31, played with the Iowa Pre-Flight eleven in 1942. He recently returned from the South Pacific.

BY EDWARD PRELL

Sid Luckman, who has lost his forward passing touchdown magic in a season which threatens to be the most disastrous in Bear history, will give way Sunday to 36 year old Gene Ronzani. Hunk Anderson and Luke Johnsos, co-coaches of the Bears, said after yesterday's drill that Ronzani will start at quarter back against the world champion Green Bay Packers in Wrigley field.

Anderson emphasized that this is not a strategic move in which Ronzani will play only briefly. It is one born of desperation after five straight defeats, an unprecedented experience in the career of the habitually top riding Bears. In those five games Luckman has pitched only two touchdown passes. In other years this has been his approximate average for a single contest.

He'll Be There at Start

"Genie will be in there at the start," said Anderson, "and he will be given every chance to get our attack going against the Packers."

In other games this season, Ronzani has been used mainly to give Luckman a rest, or after the Bears were far in arrears. Gene's Sunday assignment is a tremendous one for a fellow who quit big time football half a dozen years ago and who came out of his second retirement this fall when he left the Notre Dame coaching staff.

Luckman is as puzzled as any of his critics as to reasons responsible for his slump. Pictures of Bear games have revealed that Sid's receivers are nailed on the spot most of the time. In other seasons the pass catchers often were in the clear and ran for long gains or touchdowns after making the catch.

Bears Tipping Their Hand

One theory is that the Bears inadvertently are tipping their hand on passes. It could be that Luckman's fine art of faking before throwing has declined. This could be traced to effects of injuries he has suffered. Sid's nose was broken in the first game with the Packers in Green Bay. The next Sunday it was cracked again in Cleveland. Since then he has been wearing a nose guard. This gadget, he says, cuts down the sweep of his vision.

Luckman's pass completion average has not suffered in ratio to his touchdown comedown. He has completed 53 of 100 passes for 726 yards, with six intercepted. In 1943, his record year, Sid hurled 28 scoring passes in 10 games. He completed 110 of 202 for 2,194 yards, with 12 intercepted.

Ronzani's Record Good

Ronzani played several excellent games for the Bears last year when Luckman was unavailable. He pitched three touchdown passes when his team tied the Lions in Wrigley field, 21 to 21.

The Bears held a line scrimmage yesterday to further their preparations for the Packers. Three players have been placed on the reserve list because of injuries. They are Ed Sprinkle, guard, whose jaw was refractured in Detroit; Abe Croft, end, whose back was injured in training camp, and Tipp Mooney, half back, who suffered a dislocated hip in the Detroit game.

Highland Park Rejoins Suburban Prep League

Highland Park High school, member of the Suburban league until 1942, yesterday was readmitted to the league and will resume competition with spring sports, A. E. Walters, Highland Park principal, said last night.

BY EDWARD BURNS

The largest crowd that ever saw a National Hockey league season opener or a league game on a week night—18,727—witnessed the post-war Blackhawks outskate and outscore the New York Rangers, 5 to 1, in Chicago Stadium last night. It was estimated 5,000 fans were turned away, after standing room and rafter space had been exhausted.

In ringing up their second victory in their third start in this, the 20th Hawk season, four fine young gents supplied the Chicago tally total. The two goaler was Wingy Johnston, left wing on the third line. Johnston was making his Chicago bow after being in the Canadian service for two years. Doug Bentley, a one year absentee, assisted on one Johnston goal. Alex Kaleta, away for three seasons, assisted on the other.

First score of the evening was made by Capt. Red Hamill, who has been away for two years, assisted by Don Grosso. It was Red's third counter of the season.

Max Bentley Clinches Game

The second goal, the one which counted for victory purposes, was made by Max Bentley, who served two years in the Canadian army. The tally put Max at the top of National league scorers with four goals.

Johnston's first score in 13:56 of the opening period, gave the Hawks a 3 to 0 lead and a bit later, in 17:21, Goalie Mike Karakas, playing his first league game, lost his shutout when the lads forgot to protect him on a long dash by Hank Goldup.

Tho the tempo was not diminished in the second period, there was no scoring. In 2:48 of the third, with Eddie Wares in the penalty box, Johnston scored after he and Kaleta had rushed down the rink in a series of zig-zag passes.

Mosienko Scores Final Goal

The final goal was made in 5:32 of the final sessio Wares took a long pass from the blue line and Mosienko picked it up off the toes of Goalie Jim Henry's boots and converted for goal No. 5.

The Hawks showed the results of their extended training period and their short passing game was sharpened, perhaps, by their two earlier games in league competition. Their shots on the cage weren't as accurate as they probably will be after a few more clashes, but five goals will suffice for victory in most of their games.

The outcome was in happy contrast to the opener last year, at which the former opening night attendance record — 18,618 — was set. That was a rather sorry festival, for the Toronto Maple Leafs, who will be here Sunday night, and a week from Sunday night, jolted the war riddled Hawks 11 to 5.

FENWICK GETS FOOTBALL BID FROM FLORIDA

Fenwick High school has been given a tentative invitation to send its football team to Florida for a post-season game, it was revealed last night.

Attempts are being made to arrange a meeting between the Friars, undefeated to date in Catholic league competition, and the Hillsborough, Fla., eleven, some time after Dec. 1, provided the proposal is acceptable to each school and that Hillsborough obtains a permission from its state athletic association.

George Edmondson, Tampa, a member of the Orange Bowl committee, has contacted Fenwick officials on the plan.

CAREY ESTATE FILES FOR DATES AT HAWTHORNE

Heirs Consider Three Operating Proposals

Date Applications

THE five Chicagoland race tracks have applied for the following dates for the 1946 season:

Sportsman's Park—April 27 to May 18.

Lincoln Fields—May 27 to June 29.

Arlington Park—June 17 to July 27.

Washington Park—July 29 to Sept. 2.

Hawthorne—Sept. 2 to Oct. 12.

Sportsman's Park—Oct. 14 to Nov. 2.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Chicagoland's five race tracks yesterday applied to the Illinois Racing board for a total of 170 days of racing in 1946, of which 36 were requested for Hawthorne by the estate of Thomas Carey thru Robert Carey, representative of the eight heirs of the old time Chicago millionaire brick manufacturer and politician.

The Carey estate filed for dates in place of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association whose lease on the property expired last night. Charles Bidwill, chairman of the board, and Charles Krutckoff, president of the association, were notified some time ago that the lease the association has held since 1931 would not be renewed.

Expect Decision by Jan. 1.

Carey, an attorney and son of the late Thomas Carey, reiterated yesterday the estate's decision not to renew the lease to the Bidwill-Krutckoff organization, but at the same time said the heirs have three propositions under advisement—two proposals from other interests and operation of the plant themselves. A decision is expected to be made by Jan. 1.

"I do not believe it would be proper at this time to release the names of the parties with whom we are discussing the future of Hawthorne, but it will remain a race track and I have asked the Illinois Racing board for a 36 day meeting next year opening Sept. 2 and closing Oct. 12," Carey said.

Arlington to Have Own Meet

Return of the Arlington Park and Lincoln Fields meetings to their original plants after three years of doubling up, the former at Washington Park and the latter at Hawthorne, also was indicated by the applications yesterday.

Arlington Park requested 36 days, June 17 thru July 27 and Washington filed for 31 days, from July 29 thru Sept. 2, Labor Day. Hawthorne also asked for Labor day as its opening date, as usual, but for the last five years it has been included in Washington Park's program.

Sportsman's Park, John L. Keeshin's half mile track in Cicero, filed for its usual spring dates, April 27 to May 18, a period of 18 days, and asked for 18 days in the fall, Oct. 14 to Nov. 2. Lincoln Fields' application called for the period between May 27 and June 29.

Fairmount Park, the southern Illinois track outside of Collinsville and near St. Louis, Mo., has applied for a spring meeting from May 25 thru July 6, and a fall meeting from Aug. 31 thru Oct. 5.

ROBINSON WINS FIRST ROUND IN LEGAL FRACAS

Ray [Sugar] Robinson won yesterday's round in a $5,480 attachment suit filed against him by Fred Irvin, New York promoter, when Municipal Judge Oscar Caplan refused Irvin's request for an eight days continuance of the case and ordered that it go to trial at the earliest possible time, so as not to inflict any undue hardship on Robinson.

The court then ordered Irvin and Robinson to appear with their witnesses for the next round tomorrow morning, a decision which caused the welterweight contender to express confidence in his ability to register another triumph.

Irvin claims the money is due him for services rendered in connection with Robinson's 12 round bout with Jack Lamotta in Comiskey park Sept. 26. Robinson was guaranteed $25,000 for the encounter, which he won. Irvin charges George Gainford, Ray's manager, agreed to pay him 15 per cent of the guarantee for publicity and an additional sum for expenses. Gainford, however, says Irvin was hired by Jack Kearns, matchmaker for the Coliseum Athletic club.

Ice Follies Bowlers Roll Benefit Match Tonight

The Ice Follies' bowling team of Eddie and Roy Shipstad, Oscar Johnson, Heinie Brock and Russ Tuckey will meet the Pabst Blue Ribbons on the Arena's Ontario st. alleys tonight in a benefit match for the Bowlers' Victory Legion. The Ice Follies will open a 17 day engagement at the Arena tomorrow night.

Sonja to Open Show in Chicago Christmas Night

Sonja Henie and her Hollywood ice revue will make their annual appearance in Chicago Stadium Christmas night, opening a run of 23 Chicago performances, Producer Arthur M. Wirtz said yesterday.

Miss Henie has been rehearsing the 1946 show for several weeks and opens the 1945-'46 tour in Indianapolis Nov. 15. After the Indianapolis engagement the revue will move to Detroit before opening in Chicago. The revue also is scheduled in Madison Square Garden, New York, and will wind up in Los Angeles. More than 200 are in this year's revue.

WAGE BOOSTS, FROZEN PRICES HELD POLITICAL

Industry Rips Plan of President

President Truman's program for higher wages and the six month period he set before wage increases may be taken into consideration for a raise in price ceilings were branded "political double-talk" and "contradictory" by Chicago industry leaders yesterday.

W. Homer Hartz

The President in his Tuesday night radio talk gave no consideration to manufacturers' costs increased by wage boosts already granted, said W. Homer Hartz, president of the Morden Frog and Crossing works and past president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. It seems that such manufacturers will be expected to grant another wage increase without immediate price relief, he said.

Some Firms Held Doomed

The six month lag before higher wages would figure into ceiling prices would force some companies out of business, he said. Smaller manufacturers would not have the money to maintain operations during the interim.

Hartz contended that the President's program would mean a spiral in wages. Employes still working 48 hours a week will wish an increase as well as those working 40 hours. Then when the longer work week eventually is cut to 40 hours such employes will wish another increase to maintain their take home pay. In the Truman program the wage increases under such conditions would go as high as 69 per cent, he said.

J. C. MacKeever of Joliet, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, said he was making inquiries among member companies regarding the probable effect of the President's program.

Hits Employment Service Plan

"We will defer general comment until the inquiry has been completed," he said. "I know, however, that the manufacturers of the state, particularly the smaller manufacturers, will be especially concerned over that portion of the program which contemplates wage increases without immediate and corresponding adjustments in price ceilings."

Another part of the President's speech, in which he demanded that the United States employment service be kept in federal hands instead of being returned to the states, drew fire from Robert L. Gordon, Illinois director of labor.

"Illinois wants it back, and as quickly as possible, because we cannot run a successful employment security program without the integration of unemployment compensation and the employment service," he said. "This is more important than ever during the reconversion period."

Curb on Brewery Malt Use May Be Eased Soon

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP)—Restrictions on the use of malt by breweries may be relaxed within a few weeks, department of agriculture officials said today. A decision is expected about mid-November. Use of malt in making industrial alcohol has decreased.

SEC RULES COMPANY IT 'KILLED' MUST PAY OFF DEBT AT PREMIUM

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP)—The securities and exchange commission today for the first time required a company to pay more than principal amount in an involuntary debt retirement when it denied American Power and Light company permission to retire its $36,389,600 of debentures, due in the years 2016 and 2022, at 100 per cent of principal amount plus interest.

In a 4 to 1 decision the commission termed the plan unfair and inequitable, and stipulated that any retirement must be at 110 per cent, the price at which they may be redeemed "at the option of the company." The SEC withheld for 30 days its order disapproving the plan to give American time to amend it.

American, which is under an SEC order to liquidate and dissolve now being contested before the Supreme court, contended that because the retirement was compulsory the 100 per cent maturity price applied.

The decision rested heavily upon the distant maturity dates and the holders' right to receive interest at the prescribed rate over the remaining 71 and 77 years. It concluded that the debentures' value is 110 and would have been substantially higher except for the 110 call price.

Faster Travel Forecast Thru Turbine Train

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP)—Two Philadelphia manufacturers today depicted the train of tomorrow as a giant, steam turbine gear locomotive capable of 130 mile an hour speeds pulling streamlined, stainless steel cars in which each passenger can have his own radio. The forecasts were made separately by the presidents of the Baldwin Locomotive works and the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company.

Ralph Kelly, president of Baldwin, reported that a steam turbine gear locomotive had been run 40,000 miles as a test and had proved 40 per cent more efficient than regular type steam locomotives.

Refuses Russian Credit Deal

Baldwin has 15 million dollars' worth of orders for locomotives from American roads and 45 million from abroad. France has ordered 260 locomotives. Russia wishes to buy about 8 millions worth of unfinished engines that were to have gone to her under lend-lease. A 25 million deal has fallen thru, Kelly said, because Russia wishes to buy on credit rather than for cash, using part of a long term loan from the American government.

"Steam turbines, turbine electrics, and diesel electrics will be the locomotives of the future," Kelly said. "The replacement will be gradual, with present engines gradually going onto slower runs. Within five years we expect to see the run between New York and Chicago made at an average speed of 85 miles an hour, including the time for stops."

Radio in Every Seat

Edward G. Budd, president of the railroad car manufacturing firm bearing his name, said railroads were making bids on cars which would have a radio speaker installed in every seat. The listener would have a choice of stations, but the radio would not be audible to the man in the next seat.

Budd said train passengers desiring to listen would only have to lean their heads against the seat back and that most of the sound would be communicated to them by vibration.

CELOTEX CORP. SEEKS BY-LAW, BOARD CHANGES

Proposals for increasing the number and changing the tenure of directors, and amendment of the by-laws and certificate of incorporation of the Celotex corporation will be presented to stockholders at a special meeting Nov. 20, the company said yesterday.

The proposals include an increase in directors from nine to 11. Albert C. Simmonds Jr., vice president of the Bank of New York, and Parrish Fuller, Louisiana lumberman, formerly of Shelbyville, Ind., will be recommended for the vacancies. Division of the directors into three classes will be asked, with terms arranged so approximately one third will be elected each year for three year terms. The by-laws and certificates of incorporation would be changed to set forth in more detail the objects, purposes, and nature of the business.

Westinghouse 9 Months Sales Decline 15 Per Cent

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—Westinghouse Electric corporation sales billed for the first nine months this year were $518,869,515, a decrease of 15 per cent from $612,063,591 for the same period of 1944. A. W. Robertson, chairman, said today. He said the figures reflected termination of war contracts and a 20 day strike of salaried employes in six plants in September. Net sales billed in September were $27,287,955 compared with $45,000,946 in August.

CHARGES U. S. INVITES PRICE RULE COLLAPSE

N. A. M. Aid Assails Wage Coercion

America needs price controls, but confused governmental policy invites their failure, Louis Ruthenburg, president of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce, charged yesterday at the annual meeting of the American Meat institute in the Stevens hotel. He also is a director and member of the executive committee of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Louis Ruthenburg

"Chester Bowles and his office of price administration associates sit on the price ceiling safety valve and yell for sustained price controls, while other government departments throw gobs of fat in the form of wage increases on the raging fires beneath the economic boiler," he said.

Ceilings Cannot Long Resist

"As the floor under wages rises irresistible pressure is created beneath price ceilings, and the price ceilings cannot long resist. The rules of arithmetic and the laws of physics will prevail despite legislation and burocratic meddling."

The problem is created by a universal desire for full employment and a high American standard of living, but there is no agreement on the method by which they can be attained, he said.

"Restrictive influences again threaten to throttle our freedom," he warned. "Coöperation has been replaced by short sighted, suicidal selfishness of classes and groups. Statesmanship is superseded by political expediency."

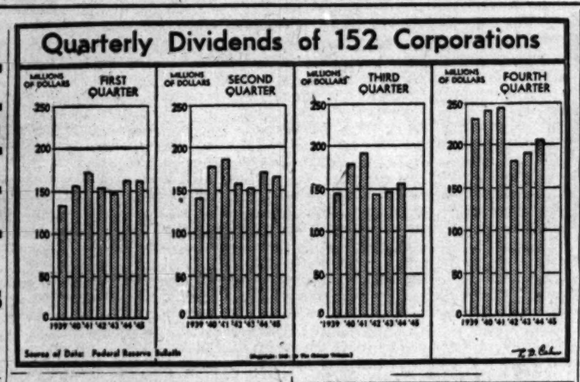
Productivity Must Increase

Ruthenburg contended that the traditional pattern under which the American economy has advanced so rapidly to such high achievements "is one in which increased real wages have followed the attainment of increased productive efficiency and have been accompanied by equitably distributed benefits to labor's partners in the achievement." In recent years, however, money wages have been advanced by coercive measures without regard for productive efficiency or the interests of consumers and investors.

Frank A. Hunter, president of the Hunter Packing company, East St. Louis, Ill., warned that the meat industry must not sit back and wait for a rush to buy meat when it becomes more plentiful. Meat substitutes have been widely introduced, and production of eggs and poultry is far above pre-war levels.

Utah Radio Sells Motor Division to Oak Park Firm

The motor and generator division of Utah Radio Products company has been purchased by the Electro Engineering company, Oak Park, the companies announced yesterday.



Ask OPA Cut Home Buyers' Waiting Time

BY AL CHASE

Revocation of the office of price administration order which compels the buyer of a house to wait six months before he may move out a tenant and occupy his own premises was urged yesterday by the Chicago Real Estate board. Restoration of the former 90 day waiting period limit was asked.

The board also requested that more authority be delegated to city OPA rent administrators to make rent control more flexible and less dependent on rigid directives from Washington, D. C.

The so-called "eviction" period extending over six months does as much harm as good in a community's housing situation, said Floyd G. Dana, realty board president.

Charges Vacancies Created

"It is causing owners to leave houses for sale vacant rather than let them be used for rent until a sale is made," he contended. "To that extent it decreases the rental housing supply. These vacancies are in addition to those created when frozen rent levels are so low that landlords consider it better to keep properties idle than operate at a loss.

"The six month waiting period also fails to take into account that as long as an owner is prevented from occupying the house he has bought, he still is occupying rental accommodations and rental opportunities are lessened just that much."

Acts with National Board

Dana said the Chicago board was acting jointly with the National Association of Real Estate Boards in requesting more power for local OPA rent control agencies to make rent adjustments.

"We are receiving an increasing number of letters from landlords who have given up trying to rent their apartments under the conditions resulting from an inflexible national policy," he said. "When apartments are kept vacant because they can be rented only at a loss, nobody benefits."

LAMP INDUSTRY IS HELD BACK BY MATERIALS LACK

Labor adjustments and materials shortages are delaying production of lamps for the home and large output will not be attained until mid-1946, John C. Goodall, general manager of the Merchandise Mart, said yesterday. Many manufacturers will produce less goods in the fourth quarter of this year than in the first three quarters because they used their allotted raw materials as soon as they were available and no more are at hand.

Dividend Total Rises

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—The New York Stock exchange reported today that dividend payments on the 877 common stocks listed on the exchange increased 4.2 per cent in the first nine months of 1945 over the corresponding 1944 period with a total disbursement of $1,537,542,000.

The largest gain, 26.8 per cent, was in textiles; second, 15.8 per cent, was in finance; third, 10.3 per cent, amusement, and fourth, 10 per cent, building. There were four declines: Business and office equipment, 6.4 per cent; aviation, 0.7 per cent, and mining and tobacco, 0.5 per cent each.

Public utilities led in volume of payments, disbursing $232,612,000, a 2.4 per cent gain.

Report on Tax Free Incomes to Be Out Soon

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 [Special] — The federal government's first inspection of income and asset data on tax exempt organizations, such as labor unions, is expected to show annual untaxed income of about 3 billion dollars and untaxed assets possibly exceeding 15 billions in 1943. The joint committee on internal revenue taxation will make the data public in a few weeks, members of the staff said today.

The government obtained access to this information for the first time thru a section in the revenue act of 1943 which required most classes of the tax exempt groups to file special returns showing assets and income.

Even tho the date for filing has been advanced it was said that a number of important organizations still will not have filed in time to have their data included in the overall figures to be made public. However, it was believed the statistics would give for the first time some idea of the income and assets which go untaxed by virtue of special exemptions which, for the most part, date from the first corporate income tax act in 1909.

Groups required to file include tax-exempt corporations, mutual banks, and certain trade associations, such as chambers of commerce. Tax exempt fraternal organizations, charitable groups and educational associations were not required to supply the data.

SUPPLY OF MEAT ANIMALS BIGGER, PRICES STEADY

Farmers again increased their marketings of meat animals yesterday. Hog arrivals in Chicago totaled 16,500 head, the biggest Wednesday supply since January, and 28 per cent more than a week earlier. Buyers continued to pay ceiling prices for nearly all hogs.

Packers paid fully steady prices for 10,000 sheep and lambs, the largest Wednesday supply in eight months. Lambs from Washington as well as several native states reached the $14.65 top. Yearling wethers sold at $12.75, a firm price, and old ewes sold up to $6.50, steady.

The cattle run of 13,000 head was largest for a Wednesday in five weeks. Steady to strong prices were paid for all classes except bulls, which weakened. More than 100 carloads of steers and some heifers brought the $18 ceiling.

INLAND STEEL'S EARNINGS FALL; FIELD'S STEADY

Edison Net Profits Up in 9 Months

Net earnings of the Inland Steel company and subsidiaries in the quarter ended Sept. 30 and the first nine months of this year were lower than in comparable periods of 1944.

The quarter profit this year was $2,016,017, or $1.24 a share, compared with $2,499,491, or $1.53 a share. The nine month total was $7,228,617, or $4.43 a share, compared with $7,670,909, or $4.70 a share.

Strikes Curtail Production

Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the board, said the drop in quarterly income was caused partly by a strike in August at the Indiana Harbor plant. Tonnage shipped dropped 12½ per cent below a year earlier. He said the fourth quarter also will be affected because coal strikes early in October curtailed production of pig iron and steel.

Marshall Field & Co. had September quarter profit of $1,033,819, equal to 45 cents a common share, compared with $1,050,990, or 42 cents a share after larger preferred dividend requirements a year earlier.

In the nine months ended Sept. 30 profit rose substantially to $3,594,769, or $1.56 a share, from $3,146,081, or $1.27 a share in 1944.

Edison Profit Rises Slightly

Commonwealth Edison company net income in the first nine months of 1945 was $17,312,700, or $1.33 a share, compared with $16,542,629, or $1.30 a share, in 1944. Electric power sales amounted to 7,808,474,393 kilowatt hours, down 0.3 per cent, and gas sales were 231,730,136 therms, up 1.8 per cent.

Westinghouse Electric corporation net income the first nine months was $13,673,825, or $1.05 a share, compared with $16,711,097, or $1.29 a share.

U. S. OWES LESS THAN 3½ BILLION ON WAR ORDERS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP)—The government owes industry less than 3½ billion dollars on claims arising from the flood of war contract cancellations before and after V-J day, the office of contract settlement announced tonight.

The agency's goal is to settle the bulk of all claims for reinbursement on uncompleted war work by Dec. 31, said Robert H. Hinckley, director, in his first quarterly report to congress since the Japanese surrender. Of 288,000 prime contracts canceled, 185,000 already have been settled.

V-J day brought the cancellation of contracts for 24 billion dollars of war goods, increasing total cancellations to 62 billions. Claims against the government run to about 10 per cent of the contracts, and are designed to recompense contract holders for material purchased but not used and for other expenses.

GRAIN FUTURES END IRREGULAR; FIRM AT OPENING

Grain futures prices closed irregular yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Announcement of the administration's wage and price policy failed to affect prices. December and May rye opened at new seasonal peaks and other grains were firm, but general selling developed late. Wheat closed ¼ cent a bushel higher to ¼ lower. Corn was unchanged to ⅛ lower, oats ¼ to ⅝ lower, rye ⅞ lower to ½ higher, and barley ¾ to 1 cent higher.

CAB Fixes 45 Cent Mail Rate for Four Air Lines

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP)—The civil aeronautics board today set mail pay rates at 45 cents a ton mile, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1945, for American Airlines, Eastern Air Lines, Trans-Continental and Western Air, and United Air Lines. The rate first was ordered last August on a temporary basis. The previous rate was 60 cents.

School Board Sells Land for Plant, Homes

The board of education approved yesterday the sale of 108 acres of school fund land on the west side which James B. McCahey, board president, said would return $300,000 annually in taxes when the land is improved thru erection of industrial and residential buildings.

A 53.7 acre site between Roosevelt rd. and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad right of way, and Central and Laramie avs., was bought by the Chicago Flexible Shaft company on its bid of $543,969. B. A. Graham, president of the company, said the purchase was part of an expansion program.

Factory to Double Space

A one story factory will be built on the site, giving the company more than twice its present floor space of 450,000 square feet in scattered plants. Most operations will be transeferred to the new plant.

Twenty-four tracts containing 49.3 acres in the area bounded by Monroe and Congress sts. and Central and La Vergne avs., were sold for $851,000 to John A. O'Keefe, agent for 112 persons, and five acres east of Laramie av. between Congress and Harrison sts. were sold to S. E. O'Toole for $75,000. Most of the land in these two sales will be used for residential building, board officials said.

Formerly Part of Austin

All of the land was acquired by the school board in 1899 when Austin was annexed to Chicago, and the only income it produced was $1,500 a year rental on one small piece of property. McCahey said the sale money will be invested and used for educational purposes, and a "for sale" sign is now on all school property which is not in use or which the board has no plans to use.

REVERE COPPER WILL EXPAND IF PRICE IS HIKED

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., announced today a 4 million dollar expansion program, "contingent upon a substantial increase in prices."

C. Donald Dallas, president, said Revere planed to expand production facilities at its Rome, N. Y., Manufacturing company division, and to enlarge facilities for producing aluminum and magnesium sheet, tubes, and forgings.

STOCKS BOUND ON INFLATION, TAX PROSPECTS

Recovery Is Broad in Heavy Trade

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—The stock market made a fast and broad recovery today as inflationary interpretations of the President's wage-price policy inspired heavy investment buying in nearly all groups.

Wall street opinion generally was that, notwithstanding the hold-the-line decree of the chief executive, his advocacy of boosted pay ultimately must involve price increases if industry is to continue to operate. In addition, bullish sentiment was encouraged by the belief that approaching tax relief would go a long way in offsetting lifted wages.

Volume Largest Since June

Heavy purchasing of low priced utilities quickened dealings in the forenoon. Steels, motors, rails, and liquors exhibited strength. Many closing gains ranged from 1 to 3 points. Eastman Kodak rose 10 on light sales.

Transfers totaled 2,060,000 shares, largest since June 28. Volume on the Curb was 960,000 shares. The Associated Press 60 stock composite rose 1.1 points to 72.6, equaling the rally of Sept. 18 which was the widest gain since Aug. 23. The utilities established a top since March 9, 1937, up 0.7 to 50.3.

CHICAGO STOCKS CLIMB

Prices advanced in an increased turnover of 63,000 shares on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. More active issues included Central and South West Utilities, up ½; Yates American Machine and Middle West corporation, each up 1⅛, and Chicago corporation and Asbestos Manufacturing, each unchanged. Six new highs were registered. North West Utilities 7 per cent preferred rose 10 points.

M-K-T BONDS ARE STRONG

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—A late increase in demand for selected rails resulted in gains of fractions to about a point today for leaders in an otherwise listless bond market. Issues of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas road displayed particular strength, the first 4s advancing 3 points to 88 and the 5s and adjustment 5s rising 2⅝ each.

UNIFORM STATE INSURANCE LAWS RECOMMENDED

Enactment of uniform state laws regulating the insurance business was recommended yesterday by James M. McCormack, Tennessee insurance commissioner and president of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

McCormack told the 40th annual meeting of the American Life convention in the Edgewater Beach hotel the United States Supreme court's decision last year holding insurance to be commerce subject to federal regulation pointed up the advantages of state supervision. He urged that these be developed fully.

Vast Sums Invested

"The policyholders of America have invested billions of dollars in the insurance industry and should be vitally interested in the quality of the supervision that the companies receive thruout the various states," McCormack said.

A uniform statute should include six points, he said.

1. Each state should have an insurance department which is not a division of or subordinate to another department.

2. Qualifications of the commissioner should be set out by statute with no authority given to the appointing power to reduce these qualifications.

Urges Definite Income Source

3. Commissioners should be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate.

4. The department of insurance should have a definite source of income.

5. The commissioner should have the power to make all reasonable rules covering insurance plus reasonable discretionary authority.

6. The official actions of the commissioner should not be controled by any board and should be subject only to the insurance statutes as legally interpreted.

CURB ON TECHNOLOGY

Speakers at the recent annual meeting of the National Machine Tool Builders' association were quoted as saying that inadequate allowances for depreciation under federal tax regulations penalize installations of improved productive equipment. What are the allowances?—D. U.

It is the contention of some machine tool makers that the tax rules do not permit manufacturing industries to recover the cost of productive equipment thru yearly depreciation charges against income rapidly enough to keep pace with obsolescence. The effect, they assert, is to impose a tax penalty on progressive industries which scrap outmoded machines before depreciation allowances have equaled the cost.

George H. Johnson, president of Gisholt Machine company, said he understood depreciation schedules approved by the revenue bureau for manufacturing equipment average about 20 years, and of course much can happen in 20 years in the way of technological advances.

Write-offs of special war facilities during five years or less is permitted by law but Johnson said such allowances were an exception. On regular equipment the revenue commissioner favors the "straight line" or fixed percentage method of charging depreciation each year during the estimated useful life of the property.

Depreciation schedules approved by the commissioner vary with different kinds of equipment and with different industries. For producers of metal products the approved rate for machine tools and electrical equipment is 17 to 20 years, for certain other machinery 20 to 28 years, and for tractors 12 to 20 years. In logging operations, a five year period is allowed for crawler type tractors.
